Soviet Teacher Leaps From Consulate Window; Samarine Testifies That He Feared for His Life; Molotov Charges 'Kidnaping' in Protest to U.S.

Moscow Papers Loose Enraged Blast Against Officials, FBI

London, Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Soviet Foreign Minister Viacheslav Molotov has protested personally to Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, American Ambassador in Moscow, against the alleged kidnaping of two Russian teachers in New York, the Moscow Radio disclosed tonight.

Molotov demanded the immediate release of Mikhail Ivanovitch Samarine, who appeared before a congressional committee in Washington today, and the punishment of "all persons who have taken part in the kidnaping of the Soviet citizens."

The second citizen is Mrs. Oksana Stepanovna Kosenkina, who jumped from a third-story window into a courtyard of the Soviet Consulate General in New York today.

Protest Made Wednesday

Moscow Radio after giving Molotov's detailed protest said:

"Gen. Bedell Smith promised to bring the Soviet government's declaration to the notice of the United States Government and assured Mr. Molotov that American authorities would make a strict investigation into the facts set out in this declaration."

Moscow disclosed that Molotov's protest was made to General Smith yesterday.

The broadcast said Molotov "invited" Smith to the Kremlin, where the three Western envoys talked over the German crisis with him tonight.

Moscow's announcement came after a long, blistering broadcast in English revealing how seriously Russia regarded the case of the two teachers.

Radio Moscow said Molotov told Smith:

"In addition to the declaration made by the Soviet Ambassador in Washington, I, on the instruction of the Soviet government, protest against the connivance of United States authorities in the criminal action concerning Soviet citizens

Babe Ruth Rallies; Condition Termed Still Critical

New York, Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Babe Ruth rallied today in his fight for life.

Dr. Hayes Martin announced that baseball's famed Sultan of Swat showed a stronger pulse and "general improvement."

However, Ruth's condition was termed "still critical."

At 6:30 p. m. (EST) it was announced that Dr. Martin has been in consultation on Ruth's case with Dr. George Baehr, president of the New York Academy of Medicine, and that the condition of the former home run king "remains the same."

The Babe's wife, Claire, spent the day at his bedside. She left only for a few minutes during the morning, when she said, "He's feeling much better."

Memorial Hospital, where Ruth is a patient, was flooded with letters and telegrams from well-wishers. Mrs. May Singhi Breen, who has been answering Ruth's fan mail for four years, said more than 8000 letters have been received since June 24. There has been a heavy increase since he was placed on the critical list yesterday.

'Red Herring' Charge Repeated

Truman Hits 80th Congress As Gathering of 'Do Nothings'

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman called the Eightieth Congress a "do-nothing" body yesterday and disagreed with a Republican claim that prices are leveling off.

Mr. Truman also reiterated his statement of last week that the Capitol Hill spy hearings were a "red herring." He added this time that it was one that had the strongest kind of smell.

The thesis about prices was put forward Monday by Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, chairman of the Republican Policy Committee. He said there were many reasons to believe that "we are reaching a stabilizing price level."

Mr. Truman was asked at a White House news conference if he agreed with Taft.

He said that he hoped the Ohioan was a good prophet, but added that he didn't agree with him. He said there had been frequent predictions that prices would level off. They level off each week, he said, but always at a higher level.

The bumper crops this year would help in the price situation, Mr. Truman said, but he felt that the effects would not be reflected in the cost of living for some time.

The Chief Executive, who has made some fiery statements in recent weeks, spoke in a mild voice yesterday. Once he was asked if he blamed Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, his rival for the Presidency, for the poor record of Congress. He declined to comment.

Earlier, Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, challenged Dewey to "take a positive stand" on the record of the special session. He charged that the New Yorker had refused to talk while Congress was in session "when there was any danger he might have to produce some congressional action to back up his statements."

Plans for attacking Dewey undoubtedly were discussed at a meeting which President Truman held at the White House last night. In attendance were Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, his running mate, Chairman McGrath, and White House staff members and publicity men of the national committee.

Most of Mr. Truman's remarks at yesterday's news conference came in response to questions.

"Would you call it a do-nothing session?" a reporter asked in connection with the recent meeting of Congress.

The President said that he certainly would, and he went on to add that he thought do-nothing would be a good name for the whole Eightieth Congress.

In response to another question, he said he still thought that the Capitol Hill spy hearings were a "red herring" to divert attention from the failure of Congress to act on the high cost of living.

A reporter reminded the President that Representative Mundt (R., S. Dak.) said the results of the spy hearings would make him eat his words.

Mr. Truman remarked that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower apparently doesn't share Mundt's views. He was referring to a statement by the

The Federal Diary

Studies Vary On Moving Agencies

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

The National Security Resource Board is drafting a report on possible additional decentralization of Federal agencies here.

The document, it's said, will oppose any large-scale transfer of Government bureaus out of this city for security reasons. It will explain that no city or activity can be isolated from today's modern weapons; that any security advantage by decentralization would be more than offset by the loss of efficiency and economy.

On the other hand, it's said that the report will urge that steps be taken to protect this city in event of war. Also, it will not object to transfers of minor Federal bureaus. In short, the NSRB is slated to oppose establishment of regional capitals.

The Hoover Committee also is drafting a report on further decentralization of Federal agencies here. A preliminary report—subject to committee approval—is said to recommend a rather wide transfer of both authority and activities to other cities.

CIVIL SERVICE has that proverbial hot potato in its lap—in the form of a committee to decide cases where racial discrimination is charged. The President ordered the commission to set up a seven-man fair employment practices committee for the Federal service. The commission def-

Polio Strikes 3 More Here; Total Hits 62

N. C. Officials Ponder Additional Measures To Combat Epidemic

Three new infantile paralysis cases were reported in the Washington area yesterday, bringing the year's total to 62.

All the new polio victims were young children, two of them District residents and the third from Alexandria, Va., the District Health Department reported.

A 2½-year-old girl living in the 100 block of Bryant st. nw. was admitted to Children's Hospital on Monday, while the following day a 3½-year-old boy from the 1400 block of 44th st. ne. was admitted.

The Alexandria case was that of a 6-year-old boy whose address is listed as RFD Route 4. He was taken to Children's Hospital on Monday.

Of the 62 infantile paralysis victims admitted to Washington hospitals so far this year, 31 have been District residents and 31 have been from nearby counties. Last year at this time three District cases and seven from nearby communities had been recorded.

Meanwhile, the District of Columbia Chapter, National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Inc., announced it had spent $1869 for nursing expenses for 20 victims, including two Maryland and four Virginia cases, from July 2 through 31.

Under a plan agreed upon before the so-called "polio season," the local chapter is paying bills at Gallinger Municipal Hospital for out-

Fully Dressed Officer Fights Man in River to Rescue Him

A heroic Metropolitan police private yesterday quelled the frantic struggling of a drowning man and hauled him to safety after diving for him three times during the battle.

The dramatic rescue took place in the Eastern branch of the Potomac just north of Benning bridge shortly before 2 p. m.

The policeman, Paul V. Minnick, 33, a patrol wagon driver attached to the Eleventh Precinct, arrived at the scene in answer to a report that a man had jumped into the river, at about 1:43 p. m.

Minnick saw the man's arm disappearing under the surface about 40 feet from the bank.

He jumped from the wagon, tore off his heavy service revolver and cartridge belt, and plunged in, fully clothed.

He swam to where the man, later identified as Melvin Handsbough, 28, had disappeared. Then Minnick dived, grabbed Handsbough by the hair and hauled him to the surface.

Handsbough fought off the policeman hysterically and sank. Again Minick dived and dragged him up only to have the same thing happen.

Worn by the struggle and fighting for breath, the policeman dived a third time. This time Handsbough was too weak to continue the battle and Minnick hauled him to shore.

Head Injury Contention of Russian Envoy Is Contradicted

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Mikhail Ivanovitch Samarine, 39, a good-looking, stocky blond Russian school teacher who eluded the arm of Soviet secret police a few days ago, quietly testified yesterday he has good reason to fear for his life at the hands of Communist agents.

He publicly denied the official Soviet protest that he had been "abducted" and said instead he had fled from the Soviets voluntarily and wanted to renounce his Soviet citizenship.

And the House Un-American Activities Committee at the same time contradicted Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin, who previously had told our State Department Samarine could not be believed because of a head wound suffered in World War II.

Injury Refuted

The committee produced a doctor's certificate signed by a doctor-member of Congress, Dr. Walter H. Judd (R., Minn.), swearing that a medical examination showed that Samarine had had no "gunshot wound or other head injury" and that the reflexes and tests of the cranial nerves are all normal.

Representative Karl Mundt (R., S. D.) said the committee believed the doctor's certificate essential "in view of the similar false smears and innuendoes circulated about other witnesses as well in order to discredit their testimony."

The committee announced that Samarine would remain under subpena as a witness and would be given full protection in this country. Mundt later underscored the fact that the FBI will NOT be involved in that protection.

Samarine's voluntary appearance before the committee in executive session climaxed another day of sensational developments in the committee's hearing of charges of Communist espionage in high Government circles here:

Possible Perjury

1. United States District Attorney George Morris Fay came to the committee office yesterday and asked for a complete transcript of the testimony to date. Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) said Fay is particularly anxious to examine the record for evidence of perjury, which can bring a maximum jail sentence of 10 years under District of Columbia laws. Committee members have been urging perjury prosecution for some time after listening to contradictory stories from various witnesses.

2. Charles Kramer, a former congressional committee aide under Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) refused on grounds of self-incrimination to say whether or not he was a member of the Communist Party.

Immediately afterward Kramer said he belonged to only two organizations in the last five years, the American Economic Association and the Royal Economic Society, and drew a flat charge that he had then and there perjured himself.

3. A. George Silverman, former civilian employe of the Army Air Forces, like Kramer another who was named by Elizabeth T. Bentley as a member of a Communist spy ring, declined to say whether or not he was a Communist or knew Miss Bentley, pleading the

It is foolhardy for any nation in the world to underestimate the force and ingenuity of the Soviet Intelligence as a gleaner of information and dispenser of forceful propaganda.

The main thing to remember is that whatever they want Soviet citizens to believe, they can make them believe, through complete control of all information. What is even more of an achievement however, is that much of what Soviet Intelligence wants to have believed abroad is, thanks largely to cooperative Communist sympathizers or misled writers and commentators, largely believed there, too.

Russia is a land whose people and whose customs have always been strange to the Western man. There is often a basic ignorance of both the Russian people and their history. It has been possible for the Soviet to exploit this ignorance in propaganda, by creating a "make-believe" Soviet paradise out of an unknown Russia, which would never be accepted of a country better known.

It was and still is a source of never-ending wonder to me how otherwise intelligent people in the West, who show the greatest skepticism when told things about countries they either know or whose people they have met, still believe the wildest assertions made by the Soviet.

These people never seem to ask

The session lasted for two hours and 45 minutes. When it was over, United States Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith said: "We are still without any conclusions."

Mrs. Kosenkina Tells Friend at Hospital, 'I Had to Get Out'

New York, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—A Russian woman teacher flung herself from a third-floor window of the Russian Consulate today and tonight told a friend from her hospital bed, "I had to get out."

The teacher, Mrs. Oksana Stepnovna Kosenkina, 32, lay critically injured in Roosevelt Hospital. Her dramatic mid-afternoon leap climaxed an amazing story with international ramifications.

Police at the hospital said she told them she had jumped deliberately.

A Friend Visits Her

Later she asked that a White Russian (anti-Communist) friend, Vladimir Zenzinov, be brought to her bedside.

Police took him to the hospital and as he left, he told newsmen she said:

"I was struggling to break out. You know——." Here he gave a pantomine of pushing obstacles aside. "I was like a bird in a cage. I had to get out."

Mrs. Kosenkina jumped into the consulate courtyard at 3:20 p. m. (EST). She landed enmeshed in the wires of a fence.

Police on guard outside leaped the fence to help her. They reached her just as consulate employes picked her up and carried her inside. Forty minutes later she was taken to the hospital.

Zenzinov, a journalist, described himself last Saturday as the man who spirited the teacher away from New York and to a white Russian camp at Valley Cottage, N. Y., 30 miles north of the city.

Embraces Journalist

Soviet officials took her from there Saturday. Their self-described "rescue" of her brought to light her story.

Zenzinov had to wait an hour at the hospital to see the teacher, while she recovered from effects of sedatives.

A witness to the meeting said she embraced the journalist, and that Zenzinov told her "the police and the United States Government were behind her and that nothing could happen to her now."

Asked if he believed Mrs. Kosenkina had been held at the consulate against her will, which the Soviets have denied vigorously, Zenzinov replied with a shrug:

"What do you think—if a woman has to jump out a window to get away?"

"I Did Jump"

Zot I. Chepurnykh, Soviet vice consul who went to the hospital to try to see Mrs. Kosenkina, was asked about her statement that she had jumped. He replied:

"What else could it be? She was very nervous and kept complaining about the crowds in front of the building since her return."

He said she left several letters "but only to her relatives in Russia."

The police refused to permit Chepurnykh to see her.

Earlier at the hospital Deputy Chief Police Inspector Edward Mullins said the teacher told him:

"I did jump."

A 24-hour guard has been placed around her, Mullins added. He said policewomen would be in her room at all times.

Mundt Seeks Inquiry

The questioning was brief, Mullins said, because Mrs. Kosenkina was slipping into unconsciousness.

The teacher was carried into the consulate at 7 East 61st st., just off Fifth ave., after her leap at 3:20 p. m. (EST). Forty minutes later she was removed to the hospital.

In Washington, Representative Karl E. Mundt (R., S. Dak.) at once wired New York police to probe the incident fully, suggesting Mrs. Kosenkina might have been thrown from the consulate window.

Police were told by Yakov Lomakin, the Soviet consul general,

Officially Listed as Suicide

Russian Woman's Plunge Recalls Fate of Krivitsky

Mrs. Oksana Stepanovna Kosenkina's plunge from the Russian consulate building in New York yesterday recalled to many the fate of Gen. Walter G. Krivitsky.

Suicide was the official verdict in the case of the former Soviet espionage agent, who turned against his masters, and whose body was found in a room at the Bellevue Hotel here February 10, 1941.

One shot had pierced his right temple. Friends of Krivitsky scoffed at the suicide version and charged flatly that the general had been assassinated by the Russian secret police for "knowing too much" and for revealing some of that knowledge in magazine articles and to the Dies Committee.

The former Soviet agent was not in ill health, nor had he financial or romantic difficulties in the opinion of investigators.

In one of the three notes he left he wrote to his wife: "I want to live very badly, but it is impossible."

One theory given at the time by men who had had dealings with Soviet Russia was that Stalin's agents had made a "deal" with Krivitsky. If he would kill himself, all would be well; if he refused, then vengeance would be visited upon his wife and his child.

After he told the Dies Committee about Soviet spies in the U. S. Army and Navy, a bodyguard was ordered for him.

Krivitsky declined, saying:

"They (the OGPU) never forget. If I had a hundred bodyguards they would still get me."

PEOPLE In The NEWS

Dickstein, Who Issued Writ in Kosenkina Case, Is No Stranger to Espionage Matters

New York State Supreme Court Justice Samuel Dickstein, pushed to the center of the Congressional spy probe yesterday, is no stranger to detection of espionage activities in the United States.

JUSTICE DICKSTEIN
No stranger to spy detection

Whether the habeas corpus which Dickstein issued for a Russian school teacher being held in the New York Soviet consulate is needed now or not, it is certain that the New York jurist was convinced a crime was being committed in the consulate when he ordered the writ. (The woman, Mrs. Oksana Stephanovna Kosenkina, was seriously hurt in a leap from an Embassy window yesterday).

It was the same type of certainty Dickstein displayed as a member of Congress when, as vice chairman of the McCormack Committee of the House Investigating Un-American Activities in 1934, he denounced Fascist activities in the United States so vigorously that his own life was frequently threatened.

Because of such threats, usually in anonymous note form, Dickstein hired a bodyguard, who accompanied him whenever he made a public appearance.

In 1937, Dickstein was again in the news when he charged "Mr. Hitler" with trying to create a world war, and said that "in this country men are drilling in uniform under the swastika."

In the same year, as chairman of the House Immigration Committee, Dickstein charged Nazi representatives in the United States with trying to obtain pledges of loyalty to their government from German-Americans. He sponsored a bill prohibiting naturalization of aliens who believe in the preservation of racial ties despite American citizenship. He later led a congressional probe of anti-Semitist in the United States.

Justice Dickstein resigned his seat in the House in 1945 when he was eleted to a nine-year term as a New York Supreme Court Justice representing the First District.

A product of New York's lower East Side, Dickstein was known to his congressional constituents as "Sam." One of his most cherished political trophies is a silver loving cup, accompanied by a bronze plaque, inscribed: "In appreciation of the services of Sam Dickstein, our boy of the Fourth Assembly District."

Born in Russia in 1885, the son of a Rabbi, Dickstein was brought to this country at the age of 3. He attended New York City's law college from 1903-06 and was admitted to the New York bar in 1908. He served two terms as a special deputy Attorney General for the State of New York from 1911 to 1914 and in 1917 was a New York City alderman. From 1919 to 1922 he was a member of the New York Assembly and the following year was elected to Congress.

Of medium height, Justice Dickstein off the bench is addicted to unusually colorful business suits and joining organizations. He is a Shriner, Elk, and a member of many Jewish fraternal groups. His philanthropies have included the Grand Street Boys' Association in New York.

Known for the long hours he keeps, Dickstein takes a cat nap at his desk if his tasks become too tiresome. A man of meteoric moods, Justice Dickstein sits upright and pounds things when he talks to convince, and leans back in his chair and closes his eyes when he explains an obscure point. His voice changes from a sharp and clear to a low and husky tone, depending on his mood.

State Department Withholds Comment

The State Department had no comment last night on the case of the Russian schoolteacher who fell or jumped from a fourth-story room of the Soviet Consulate in New York yesterday afternoon.

Department spokesmen said Mrs. Oksana Stepanovna Kosenkina's plunge and her removal to a hospital left the diplomatic aspects of the affair just as knotty as ever.

They admitted they are up against an "unprecedented" problem in trying to figure out what to do about the New York court writ ordering Soviet Consul-General Jacob Lomakin to produce Mrs. Kosenkina.

Russ Teacher Seriously Hurt

that Mrs. Kosenkina jumped or fell from the window after hearing a radio broadcast which told of the international wrangling about her. He said she was alone in a room at the time.

Charging that the teacher was a prisoner in the consulate, an anti-Communist group, Common Cause, sought to have her produced in State Supreme Court this morning. Lomakin declined to obey the court's order.

Court Reserves Decision

After her plunge, the consul general told police she was not held against her will.

Justice Samuel Dickstein, who signed the writ of habeas corpus directing the teacher to appear in court, reserved decision today on any further steps. He pointed out that "international questions" were involved.

Mrs. Kosenkina's dramatic leap climaxed five days of mounting tension revolving around her. In the background have been the sensational charges of spying on behalf of Russia aired before congressional committees in Washington.

After her body landed in the courtyard next to consulate building, Soviet officials and police both raced to pick her up.

The officials got there first while police were scrambling over a fence. They carried her into the consulate with two patrolmen right behind them. She was moaning in Russian:

"Leave me alone."

At first other police were barred from the building but later they were admitted while arrangements were made to take her to the hospital.

Path Cleared to Hospital

Police radio was pressed into service to order a completely clear path through midtown Manhattan to the hospital.

Her case drew immediate attention in Washington.

Mundt, a member of the House Committee on Un-American Activities which earlier in the week sought to question Mrs. Kosenkina, wired New York Police Commissioner Arthur Wallander that "in view of the many suspicious circumstances surrounding the disappearance, the recapture, and the present injury of Mrs. Kosenkina, strongly urge that New York police provide complete protection while she is in the hospital.

"Also urge complete investigation with public report as to the circumstances under which she jumped or was thrown from the window of the consulate."

Consulate officials were not permitted in the teacher's hospital room despite their strong protests.

Mullins said they might be allowed in later after given "proper authority." He indicated this should come from the district attorney, the FBI and the State Department.

The ornate consulate, situated in a fashionable section of New York, was the scene of great excitement when the woman plunged to the ground at 3:20 p. m. (EST).

Scores of reporters and policemen have been outside the building all week, ev.. since the storm of controversy broke about Mrs. Kosenkina.

Police stationed outside the consulate had difficulty in reaching Mrs. Kosenkina as she lay in the courtyard after her plunge.

Her body was against a wire mesh door leading from the yard to the consulate building. Consulate employes rushed out and had to push the teacher aside to open the door to get to her.

Meanwhile, two patrolmen had scrambled over an iron fence to her side. They accompanied the employes who carried her into the building.

Mrs. Kosenkina was not taken to the hospital for 40 minutes. In the interval Police Detective Frank Farrell sought to enter the consulate and at first was refused admittance. After 10 minutes, he was allowed in and helped carry her stretcher to an ambulance.

Police barred another woman and two men, who came out of the consulate, from entering the ambulance.

The injured woman reportedly suffered broken bones but was conscious. Further details were not given.

Lomakin has contended Mrs. Kosenkina was not being held in the consulate against her will. One day this week, he said, she left and went to a motion picture.

The bizarre sequence of events involving the teacher began last Saturday when police in Rockland County were advised that the teacher had been taken from a White Russian (anti-Communist) camp at Valley Cottage. The camp is run by Alexandra Tolstoy, youngest daughter of the late Count Leo Tolstoy, Russian author.

Lomakin, who headed the party which brought Mrs. Kosenkina from Valley Cottage to the consulate here, then called a press conference to give his side of it.

With the teacher present and presumably confirming his statements, he declared she had been kidnaped by the White Russians just before she was to sail for her native land. He said his party had "rescued" her after receiving a letter from her.

The Consul General has continued to maintain all week that she was happy in the consulate and was ready to return to Russia as soon as transportation became available.

However, Lomakin refused to permit police to interview her, although he demanded that they investigate her alleged "kidnaping" and he said emphatically that a subpena of the House Committee on Un-American Activities could not be served on her.

Miss Tolstoy said Lomakin's statements were "a lot of baloney."

She insisted Mrs. Kosenkina left the camp with the Soviets because she was "terrorized" and said the teacher was terror-stricken at the idea of returning to Russia.

The controversy about the teacher landed in the courts yesterday.

Common Cause, Inc., self-decribed anti-Communist group, obtained a writ of habeas corpus from Justice Dickstein directing Lomakin to produce Mrs. Kosenkina in court today.

The application for the writ said she was held a prisoner in the consulate by "power, deceit and terror." Chistopher Emmet, chairman of the board of Common Cause, said he had not talked with the teacher before asking for the writ.

But, he said, she "should be released from the Soviet Consulate and brought before American authority not only for her own sake but also because the investigation and prosecution of foreign espionage and Communist subversion are primarily matters of American security."

Samarine and Mrs. Kosenkina both taught at a school for children of Russian personnel at the United Nations.

The school was closed and the teachers were scheduled to sail for Russia July 31.

Samarine, however, disappeared and has been hiding from the Soviets ever since. His wife, who also was a teacher at the school, and their children have been under guard at a White Russian retreat.

Lomakin did not appear in Supreme Court today but he did advise Justice Dickstein he was checking on his rights in the writ of habeas corpus suit.

The justice announced he was delaying any further action.

The international questions to which Justice Dickstein referred apparently bothered the State Department in Washington, too.

It sent an urgent message to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey in Albany asking that action against the consul be held up. Dewey promptly relayed the request to Dickstein, explaining he was just an intermediary in the matter.

The State Department acted after receiving a protest from the Soviet Ambassador against issuance of the writ by the court.

Dickstein said Lomakin notified him he was seeking advice from the Soviet Embassy in Washington "as to his rights and status on this question."

Kosenkina and Samarine and his family.

"The Soviet government insists on the immediate release of Samarine and his family and on their transfer until their departure home to the Consulate General of the Soviet Union in New York, as well as the punishment of all persons who have taken part in the kidnaping of the Soviet citizens."

Molotov's statement said, according to Radio Moscow, that a number of Russian citizens including the two teachers were scheduled to leave New York July 31 for Russia. But the two teachers did not appear before the ship left, although they had paid their passage and had their luggage put aboard, Molotov said.

He added that Mrs. Kosenkina left her apartment between July 30 and July 31 and that on August 7 Russian Consul General Yakov M. Lomakin "thanks to mere chance" received from her a note saying that she was at the Reed Farm "which belongs to a White Guard gangster organization going under the name of the Tolstoy Foundation."

Woman Is Located

"In her note Mrs. Kosenkina asked the Soviet Consul to save her from the hands of this organization, which by all sorts of threats was trying to get her to refuse to return home and to publish in the press a declaration hostile to the Soviet Union," the statement said.

The Consul found Mrs. Kosenkina and she expressed a desire to go with him immediately to the consulate, it was added.

The "gangsters" on the farm attempted forcibly to prevent her from leaving but did not succeed, the statement said.

Molotov was quoted as saying that Mrs. Kosenkina told at a press conference in the Soviet consulate, August 7, she was pursued by unknown persons.

"According to the New York correspondent of the United Press agency, Alexandra Tolstoy confirmed to this correspondent the participation of her organization in the kidnaping of Samarine," the statement continued.

In its long commentary preceding its disclosure of the Molotov protest the Moscow Radio followed the line of Moscow newspapers which in dispatches and editorials blasted the United States earlier in the day for the "kidnapings."

"Criminal Activity"

"Criminal activity," "profound indignation," and "intolerable" were some of the expressions used in the newspaper blast.

"The entire Soviet nation will support the . . . report of the Soviet Ambassador in Washington demanding, not only the liberation of Soviet Citizen Samarine, his wife and three little children, but also urgent measures to suppress the criminal activity of bandit-like organizations hostile to the Soviet Union and threatening the safety and interests of Soviet citizens in the United States," one editorial said.

Izvestia, organ of the government; Pravda, organ of the Communist Party, and other newspapers devoted columns to the "abduction" of Samarine and Mrs. Kosenkina. One headline:

"Bandit-Like Morals of American Intelligence Service."

Photographers Record the Drama of Mrs. Kosenkina's Plunge

BACK IN—Two policemen rush to the back door of the Russian consulate after Mrs. Kosenkina hurtled from above, but not until she had been carried part way through the barred door

QUICK ACTION—Almost as soon as Mrs. Kosenkina struck the ground two unidentified men and a woman appeared and hurried her back into the building. As they lifted her she moaned, "Leave me alone, leave me alone"! It was reported her leg was broken themselves why, if all were so free and so popular in Russia, the NKVD is still the strongest and most efficient of all Soviet organizations.

Exploiting all dissatisfactions in any country by simply saying "that does not happen in Soviet Russia," they made converts among the Cuban Negroes, who disliked either the white planters or the American owners; amongst disgruntled school teachers, social misfits and emotional cranks.

I found to my surprise that this propaganda had succeeded in creating out of Soviet Russia a sort of Utopia, not quite of this world.

By withholding honest research and checking of facts, Russia managed to relegate most arguments to the free choice of opinion for lack of facts. These tactics were propagated cleverly and energetically by a fifth column adroitly planted in every country. As one who believed without question before being "exposed" to democratic criticism, I am sure this is what makes Soviet-dominated people such a menace to the world. They believe only what unscrupulous leaders want them to believe. Therefore, isn't it logical to expect these unfortunately misguided people to do whatever the leaders want to do?

America and England are particularly well covered by Soviet agents. When I worked in the special communications branch the vast majority of the telegrams came from England and the United States. Telegrams from other countries were lost in the flood.

Sarayev, the Military Attache at the Soviet Embassy in Washington, had five cipher clerks working for him, which gives some indication of the amount of information he alone sent.

"How is it," I once asked, "that the authorities of America and England are unable to uncover our agents when there are so many of them?"

Our section chief smiled warily.

"The large numbers of our agents in those countries are our strength. The authorities nip one and turn to another interest while nine agents stay free," he said.

Later the same afternoon, he returned to my desk to add:

"We are also materially aided in our work by influential friends of the Soviet Union." He showed me a still coded telegram. "This is information from an American who holds a high post in the United States Government. He not only supplies our Military Attache with any data, on request, but is also in a position to influence questions of national political importance. A man like that is worth 20 agents to us."

"At least 20," I agreed.

The identity of the friendly American of influential stature was never disclosed to me, but it is quite apparent that he could be one of several Government figures who are frequently quoted in the press on matters of beneficial interest to the Soviet cause.

Are such personages "paid off" to contribute aid?

I don't believe so. Many individuals obviously following the Communist Party line are men of considerable personal wealth and business affiliations. Many, I would also suggest, would strenuously oppose the transforming of America into a Communist state. Then why do they preach and promulgate the Soviet cause so vigorously and frequently?

One answer, I learned through experience at the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa, lies in flattery.

Flattery is used as the "pay-off" by trained Soviet Intelligence heads. The "understanding friend" is invited to receptions. He is fussed over and praised. He is frequently a guest at private functions. His ears become attuned to skilled comment which, although he may not realize it, is strictly along the party line. In return for supposed confidences he is rather proud to pass on to his "friends" of this great Soviet Union any confidential data which they have "every damn right to know about." The boisterously convivial Russian parties flavored with vodka "bottom-ups" lend themselves naturally to inspiring such confidential disclosures.

There are astonishing numbers of prominent people who are amazingly eager for the spotlight. What better way have recent years provided to win the spotlight than pumping for causes in the interest of "our gallant Allies of the Soviet Union," making speeches on "Let's understand Russia," or organizing branches of "Friends of the Soviet Union"?

He also receives by word of mouth a delicate suggestion now and again that suggests a speech with earmarks of sure-fire front page coverage in local papers and pick-up comment perhaps in the national news services. The "dissolution" of the Soviet Comintern undoubtedly gave him opportunity for public praise of "this practical demonstration of Soviet friendship."

Such a personage is, in reality, a most valuable Soviet agent.

(Tomorrow: Gouzenko is given instructions for assignment to Soviet Embassy in Canada and is told United States will soon be ripe for Communist domination.)

Samarine Feared His Life in Danger

right against self-incrimination. During Silverman's testimony it was developed that former Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers (Ret.), now in jail for inducing perjury before another Senate committee, was one of those who recommended him.

But it was Samarine who held the real spotlight for the day. His appearance was so calm and unexcited that it underscored the grave drama of the day.

Before he briefly spoke at an interview with the press, Thomas read out the Soviet laws governing those of its officials abroad who refuse to return to "the confines of the U. S. S. R."

The law classifies such a refusal as treason, punishable by confiscation of all property, and "Shooting him to death within 24 hours after the identification of his person."

Further, the law states that the names of outlawed persons "shall be communicated to all executive committees of the (local) soviets" and the agencies of the Secret Police.

Samarine, when asked what would happen if he were sent back to Russia, replied:

"My wife and I would be shot or sent to concentration camp for life."

Almost at the very moment Samarine was talking here in Washington, his friend and fellow teacher, Mrs. Oksana Stepanovna Kosenkina, was plunging from a third story window of the Russian Consulate in New York.

Samarine told the committee, it was reported, that he knew that Mrs. Kosenkina had also wanted to come to the committee, tell her story, and place herself under its protection.

The fugitive Russian schoolteacher was interviewed in an unprecedented hubbub of motion picture cameras, still photographers, and struggling correspondents trying to understand his heavily accented English over the clicking, whirring, plate-shifting racket.

Mundt said later that it was at Samarine's own specific request that the committee called in the motion picture cameramen and still photographers.

"He said to us, 'My friends tell me it is safer that way. The better I become known the more difficult it will be for them to get at me.'"

Under Mundt's questioning at the interview, Samarine told reporters he had been very anxious to testify before the Un-American Activities Committee.

"I want to speak openly and truthfully before an official American body about the tactics of the Soviet dictatorship and the conditions of life of the Russian people," Samarine said.

His executive session testimony is now being checked for possible clues to lead to further developments in the intricate story of espionage in Washington. Thomas said yesterday the committee now plans to continue its hearings indefinitely and will soon investigate many other government officials and military men not yet mentioned.

Samarine's public questioning was limited to four points:

Q. Did you desire to have this subpena served upon you by this committee?

A. Yes.

Q. Why did you desire to have this subpena served upon you?

A. Because my family and I do not want to return to the Soviet Union; because my wife and I have renounced our Soviet citizenship, and because I want to speak openly and truthfully before an official American body about the activities of the Soviet dictatorship and the conditions of life of the Russian people under it.

Q. What would happen to you now after making this statement you would be returned to the Soviet Union?

A. My wife and I would be shot or sent to a concentration camp for life.

An interpreter from the Congressional Library, Dr. V. Gsovski of the Foreign Law section, was present, but Samarine spoke enough English to be able to do without him.

The spelling of the name of the Russian professor yesterday was discovered to be Samarine instead of Samarin as first reported from New York. Mundt told reporters and Samarine confirmed it that the correct spelling as listed on his passport had the "e" on the end.

The husky Russian teacher, who touched off an international incident and an official protest from the Soviet government when he fled to White Russians in New York after the Soviets had ordered him and Mrs. Kosenkina back to Russia, was congratulated by some of the reporters and cameramen after he finished his statements.

Calm, unperturbed, he wore a navy blue suit, white shirt and red tie.

Shortly before two o'clock he walked across from the New House Office Building to the Old House Office Building, accompanied only by Mundt and Louis J. Russell, committee investigator who was an FBI agent for 10 years.

Capitol policemen were watching on the sidelines.

It was in Mundt's office in the New Building that Samarine was examined to see whether the Rus-

Soviet Charges West Forms Secret DP Military Units

Geneva, Switzerland, Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Russia charged today that the Western occupation powers are organizing defense groups "of a camouflaged military character" in German displaced persons camps.

A. H. Kulagenkov, Soviet delegate to the United Nations Economic and Social Council, said the units were being organized among "war criminal groups." He charged also that the preparatory commission of the International Refugee Organization is recruiting former Gestapo agents to administer the camps.

"These persons are being especially indoctrinated with anti-Soviet ideas, Kulagenkov told a meeting of the Council's social committee.

Kulagenkov introduced a resolution that would bar persons who spread anti-Soviet propaganda from displaced camps.

The Soviet delegate charged that Soviet citizens who wish to return to their homeland are "beaten up" by the head of a displaced persons camp at Oldenburg in the British zone. He said the camp chief was a secret agent for the Gestapo during the war.

He said the head of Camp Lyssenko, near Hannover, served as mayor of a Soviet town under the Nazis and took part in the "mass annihilation of the Soviet population."

Samarine Eludes Russian Agents

sian Ambassador's statement about his head wound was correct.

Mundt brought with him to the executive session this letter from Judd:

"This will certify that I have today examined Mikhail Samarine in your office.

"There is no scar or evidence whatsoever of previous gunshot wound or other injury to the head of Mr. Samarine. His reflexes and tests of the cranial nerves are all normal.

"On the left hand of Mr. Samarine the ring finger has been amputated following what he says was a gunshot wound sustained in World War II as a soldier in the Russian army.

"If desired, I shall be glad to testify to this effect under oath before your committee."

As the morning session opened Thomas made the announcement that District Attorney Fay had voluntarily asked for a transcript of the hearings to determine what perjuries had been committed.

"I want to take this opportunity to compliment Mr. Fay, not only on his alertness and energy in coming to us without our having to get in touch with him, but also for the splendid record that he and his office have achieved over a period of the past years in bringing these Communists to trial, and bringing about perhaps an unanimous record of convictions of all of the Communists that have been brought to trial.

"I think that his record stands out in Government, and certainly we can all be very proud of it."

Quickly Representative F. Edward Hebert (D., La.) added his praise to that of Thomas remarking, with emphasis, that the committee would appreciate "more and similar cooperation from other divisions of the Government that we are receiving in this instance from Mr. Fay."

Hebert also said:

"I think it most significant, and certainly a refreshing, new development from the Department of Justice, in taking cognizance that the law has been violated before this congressional committee. And, too, I want to extend to Mr. Fay from this side of the chair the highest commendation for his activity."

Hebert, who has tried to have every witness who has been discussed get every opportunity to refute charges, said:

"If any individual who has been smeared, is innocent, I am sure this committee will do everything it can to remove that smear. The only way we can do it is in an open forum here, with everybody telling the truth, and I hope that these perjury charges are prosecuted to a decision."

The first witness of the morning was Kramer, and his presence led to the most violent explosion yet heard during the course of these comparatively quiet hearings.

Kramer absolutely refused, under a criss-cross of questions, to stay whether he ever had been or now was a member of the Communist Party, on the ground that an answer would tend to incriminate him.

He said he denied the charges of Miss Bentley against him, but again, on ground of possible self-incrimination, he refused to say whether he knew her.

Just as he was confronted by her, a cameraman's flash bulb exploded with a loud bang.

A room full of 1000 spectators caught its collective breath for a second.

"The chair would like to announce that that is all we needed," commented Thomas.

Kramer was the first witness to refuse to say whether he knew Whittaker Chambers, a $30,000-a-year senior editor of Time magazine, who named him as one of an early group of "elite" Communists who were going places in government.

Kramer declined to talk on the ground that an answer might incriminate him. Other witnesses questioned about Chambers have said they never knew a man by that name, or have otherwise qualified their answers without pleading self-incrimination. Chambers said that during the years about which he testified he used only the Communist Party name of Carl.

On the ground of self-incrimination, Kramer also refused to say whether he knew any other persons named by Chambers as members of that "apparatus." These were John Abt, Alger Hiss, Donal Hiss, Lee Pressman and Victor Perlo. He also refused to say whether or not he knew William J. Gold, Joseph B. Gregg and William L. Ullman. He refused also, pleading possible self-incrimination, to say whether he ever had been in the home of Nathan Gregory Silvermaster.

Kramer also told the committee that he had no opinion as to whether or not it was in the best interest of this country "to furnish classified information to agents of the Soviet government during the war, at the time that they were our allies."

His statement came directly after he had been sternly told by Representative Richard Nixon (R., Calif.) that in his opinion he had just committed perjury. Nixon is the only lawyer currently sitting on the committee.

Kramer testified that he had signed the Form 57 in applying for a position with the Government. He said he did not recall how he had answered the question, "Are you a member of the Communist Party?"

Kramer protested violently against being called before the committee.

"This is no forum for accusations and charges," he said.

"This is a forum for fact finding, and that is what we are trying to do—find the facts—and you won't help us to find the facts," said Hebert, his face flushing angrily.

"You are not trying to get the facts," shouted Kramer. "You are making a circus to show up what Congress has not been doing for the people; that is what you are doing."

Then Hebert reminded the witness that the committee was trying to get the facts about the existence of an espionage ring and commented that Kramer had refused to answer questions about that because "if you will, you will incriminate yourself as well as your confreres."

"You can draw any implication that you want from that, but that is a protection of the innocent, remember that," retorted Kramer. He added that Hebert was drawing an implication from this.

"You know you sold your Government down the river, and you know it will be proved if ever the proper authorities show the desire to prosecute," Hebert hurled back.

"The proper authorities have been acting in this case, have they not?" retorted Kramer. "Why don't you trust the proper authorities?"

His reference was obviously to the New York Grand Jury, now in recess, which has returned indictments against 12 Communist leaders, but has not indicted any other persons against whom evidence was laid.

"We have been trying to make the proper authorities do their duty," said Hebert. Hebert, Democratic strong man on the committee, has frequently joined with other members in criticism of the Justice Department' handling of the case before the grand jury.

Kramer disclosed that he, like Abt, Perlo and Pressman, is now working for Henry A. Wallace's Progressive Party. He declined to say whether or not he knows Henry Collins, executive director of the American Russian Institute, a Communist front, who was named as one of the "elite" group by Chambers. His refusal was based on the possibility of self-incrimination.

Kramer also said he saw no reason why a man could not be loyal to the American Government and to the Communist Party at one and the same time.

Kramer refused to state on grounds of possible self-incrimination whether he knows Dr. Harry Dexter White, Lauchlin Currie, Irving Kaplan, Solomon Adler, Norman Bursler, Frank B. Coe, Sonia Gold, and Abraham G. Silverman.

He was represented by Ira Gollobin, a New York attorney, who has represented another of the accused witnesses.

The second witness was Abraham George Silverman, who was represented by Bernard Jaffee of 52 Broadway, New York City.

Silverman was Economic Adviser and Chief of Analysis and Plans, Assistant Chief of Air Staff, Material and Services, Air Forces, from March 1942 to August 1945. Before that he was the director of the Bureau of Research and Information Services, Railroad Retirement Board.

Silverman, charged by Miss Bentley with giving information to the Silvermaster ring, which, she said, he acquired from Lauchlin Currie, who takes the stand today, pleaded possible self-incrimination if he answered the question of whether he knew Elizabeth T. Bentley or was a member of the Communist Party.

He refused also to say whether or not he had access to reports relating to the B-29, the production figures concerning aircraft, location of aircraft plants, the names and types of aircraft, and the location and construction of aircraft material.

Miss Bentley earlier had sworn her ring got the plans of the B-29 which she in turn handed over to Russian agents.

Silverman declined also to say whether he knew William Ludwig Ullman, named by Miss Bentley as the official photographer for the ring who microfilmed secret Government documents. Ullman has denied that he photographed secret Government documents.

Silverman confirmed the fact his immediate superior in the War Department was Gen. Bennett Meyers, but declined on the ground of self-incrimination to say whether Meyers had recommended him for his position.

He declined to say whether he himself had recommended William Ludwig Ullman for officer training school during World War II.

He declined to state, on grounds of possible self-incrimination, whether he knows Edward J. Fitzgerald, Joseph B. Gregg, Rose Gregg, Maurice Halperin, Irving Kaplan, William H. Taylor, Donald Iven Wheeler, Harry D. White, Allen Rosenberg, Henry A. Wallace, Frank Coe, Norman Bursler, Lauchlin Currie.

He declined to say whether he had ever carried any packages to the home of Nathan Gregory Silvermaster.

Revercomb Seeks Records Subpena

A Senate Immigration Subcommittee yesterday plunged into the running fight between the Truman Administration and the Republican-controlled Congress over secrecy of executive branch records.

Chairman Chapman Revercomb (R., W. Va.) revealed that Secretary of State George C. Marshall has "politely refused" the committee's request for State Department records on aliens admitted to this country to take part in United Nations activities.

Revercomb said the committee will try to subpena the records, if its legal staff advises that it has that power.

The committee has been investigating charges that "foreign agents" are using the U. N. headquarters in New York as a gateway to enter America for "subversive work."

The charges were made by two subordinate officials of the State Department's visa section, Robert C. Alexander and William Harlow.

But Herve J. L'Heureux, chief of the visa section, pooh-poohed the charges in testimony before the subcommittee Wednesday.

Marshall himself repudiated the charges some time ago by saying emphatically that he doesn't believe U. N. personnel constitute any danger to United States security.

Revercomb conceded that his committee "will be stopped" if its legal experts rule that it has no power to subpena State Department records.

they did so. By the time American MPs arrived, the Russians had withdrawn from their sector, too.

British sources reported that more Russian troops were expected to arrive in Germany in the "near future" and that factories in the Soviet zone were swamped with orders for uniforms.

The British-licensed newspaper Telegraf said Russian military authorities were deliberately trying to create a chaotic situation in Berlin which would justify Soviet military intervention.

Today American authorities froze all goods and stocks on hand in western sector warehouses in another move to counteract the Russian blockade.

U. N. Rejects Any Move Now To Disarm As Too Dangerous

Lake Success, N. Y., Aug. 12 (U.P.).—The United Nations voted today to put off any disarmament program until the big powers had achieved friendlier relations.

The decision came in the U. N. Commission for Conventional Armaments on the usual 9-2 vote, with the Soviet Union and Ukraine in the minority.

The commission, spearheaded by the United States and Britain, approved a working committee's report that found that the Berlin crisis, the failure to agree on control of atomic energy and other East-West differences made it too dangerous to contemplate reduction of armies at this time.

Furthermore, the commission adopted the Anglo-American view that there should be a U. N. world police force in operation before arms reduction.

Soviet Delegates Jacob Malik of Russia and Dmitri Manuilski of the Ukraine placed blame for the failure of the disarmament study on the United States. They charged that the United States had "sabotaged" disarmament by linking atomic energy to arms reduction.

Because of the world propaganda battle with Russia, the United States was forced to reverse itself and agree that a disarmament study should continue. The Russian propaganda machine recently began making capital out of the alleged refusal of the United States to consider disarmament, thus forcing the Americans to change positions.

Wallace Calls House Probe Hitlerism

New York, Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Henry A. Wallace, Progressive Party presidential candidate, charged today that the House Un-American Activities Committee is using the political techniques of Hitler and Mussolini.

"We cannot allow the Un-American Committee to determine standards of loyalty for American citizens," he said in an address over BMC. "These men are using the political techniques of Hitler, Mussolini, Goering, Tojo and Franco. It is the technique of political gangsterism and tyranny."

Wallace charged that the committee was backed by international capitalists and munitions makers whose profits "go up and down precisely with the degree of international crisis which can be whipped up—with the amount of the Red scare which can be engendered for the purpose of addling the brains of the American public."

"These men who want war scares rather than peace are the ones responsible for our boys going into uniform again next month," he said. "They are the ones responsible for trying innocent people by innuendo in the headlines. It used to be our proud boast that we had a Government of laws. Today we have Government by investigation, leak and yellow newspapering. The material of these men did not pass the scrutiny of a grand jury but it is good enough for the press."

Wallace said that the Progressive Party is the only thing that stands between the world and another war and promised that "after the election, no matter how it comes out, we shall work harder than ever . . . for democracy, peace and every man's right to live creatively and abundantly in freedom."

Molotov Sees West's Envoys

Frank Roberts and French Ambassador Yves Chataigneau went to the American Embassy to discuss the communuications they will send to their home capitals.

There is no sign that the negotiations with the Russians are nearing an end. Asked by a newsman if there would be more conferences, Smith replied: "We never know that, but I do think so."

When another correspondent remarked to Smith that he did not seem as tired as after the meeting Monday with Molotov, the American diplomat said, "Well, it was a pleasant talk and it was shorter than last time." Actually today's conference was only about 15 minutes shorter than the Monday session.

It is known that Russian views were presented Monday, and it is logical to suppose that the meeting today was devoted to the answers given by the United States, British and French governments.

The Western diplomats met at the American Embassy and talked among themselves before they saw Molotov.

244,000 DPs Reported Resettled in 10 Months

Lake Success, Aug. 12 (AP).—The United Nations tonight said 244,000 displaced persons in Europe had been resettled or repatriated in the past 10 months.

This work is being carried on by the preparatory commission for the International Refugee Organization, which now is arranging for the departure of about 20,000 refugees a month from camps.

IMPORTANT NEWS ABOUT STEAKS AND BEEF at your nearby SAFEWAY

You, of course, are greatly concerned about high meat prices . . . so are we. While we have always endeavored to give you the best quality meat obtainable at the lowest possible prices, we cannot control the market price and therefore are obliged to set retail prices in line with our cost. The price of top grades of beef have reached unpredicted levels and we feel that we owe it to our customers to do something about the situation. Accordingly we are again stocking U. S. Commercial Grade Beef, which we are able to buy at several cents per pound under "U. S. Good" Beef, and as a result offer it to you at a substantial savings. In making this move we will continue to carry "U. S. Good" Beef for those who desire it, but in addition we will also stock only top grade "U. S. Commercial," which will be properly aged, and will carry the same guarantee and method of trimming as our "U. S. Good" grade.

We have every reason to believe that this beef will give you complete satisfaction. All we ask is a trial and if you are not completely satisfied, your money will be refunded without question.

Germans Beat U. S. Soldier at Protest Rally

Frankfurt, Aug. 12 (AP).—Thousands of German workers demonstrated in the United States occupation zone today against high food prices and policies of the American military government. One crowd beat an American soldier and his German driver in Frankfurt.

An official of the Hessian Trade Union said 390,000 persons turned out for mass meetings in the main industrial centers of Hesse. Demonstrators demanded that Gen. Lucius D. Clay, the American military governor, approve a law providing more say for workers in management.

The rally in Frankfurt was the city's noisiest and biggest since the end of the war. It drew approximately 20,000 office and industrial workers, who protested high food prices.

The crowd called for dismissal of Prof. Ludwig Erhardt, director of economics for the British-American zones. Hecklers shouted "Hang the responsible men! The others were hanged, too."

An American jeep was overturned as it tried to force its way through the crowd. The German driver was assaulted. An American soldier got out of the jeep as it toppled over. He tried to keep away his attackers by brandishing a hammer, but was hit several times.

In most cases the workers passed resolutions demanding higher wages and lower prices and reinstatement of price controls. Many controls were dropped when the new western currency was introduced in June.

Weekly to Suspend

Hazleton, Pa., Aug. 12 (AP).—The Hazleton Sunday Times will suspend publication Sunday. The publishers said suspension of the 27-month-old paper was prompted by expiration of the old printing contract and an anticipated increase in costs. The paper was Hazleton's only Sunday newspaper.

Angry Germans Upset U. S. Army Jeep

Communists Tighten Hold In Yugoslavia

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Aug. 12 (AP).—Yugoslav Communists have swept three state cabinet ministers out of office in Bosnia-Herzegovina in their drive to strengthen their governing power in the country, it was disclosed today.

The shakeup followed last week's firing of the vice president and several ministers in Montenegro.

Belgrade newspapers said the presidium of the southern republic (province) of Bosnia-Herzogovina made these replacements: Forestry Minister Vojo Ljujic with Ilija Materi, Minister of Education Slavko Michanovic with Radoavan Papic, Minister of Finance Obren Starovic with Ilija Doshen.

Advo Humo, former Bosnian minister without portfolio, was named vice president. It was not made clear whether the office was vacant or if Humo succeeded an incumbent.

Promises to strengthen party ranks made at the recent congress of Yugoslav Communists were being carried out throughout the country.

The "People's Youth" organizations were being merged with the smaller but more tightly organized Communist Youth. This will bring almost all the youth of Yugoslavia into a kind of junior Communist organization.

AMG Post Awarded To Baltimore Doctor

Nuernberg, Aug. 12 (AP).—Dr. Howard H. Russell of Baltimore, Md., was named today by Gen. Lucius D. Clay to assist in moving the American military government from Berlin to Nuernberg. Four sections of the government already have been shifted.

Greeks Drive on North Rebels

Athens, Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Greek army troops drove through the Grammos Mountains to the Albania border today in an attack which United States Army observers predicted would wreck insurgent attempts to form an independent rebel state in northern Greece.

A government communique announced the advance. Aged Premier Themistokles Sophoulis, who went to the front to watch the fighting, predicted victory over the most potent guerilla forces in about two weeks.

Guerillas taken prisoner said the morale of insurgent Gen. Markos Vafiades' soldiers is cracking, regular army sources said. Guerillas are deserting and Markos' routes are so cut up that he no longer can maneuver his forces on a large scale, the army sources added.

As the Greek regulars drove to wipe out Markos' "Free Greece," guerilla bands struck elsewhere.

Cuban Police Arrest 3 Bank Robbery Suspects

Havana, Aug. 12 (AP).—Police announced tonight the arrest of three men as suspects in yesterday's $562,000 robbery of a midtown Havana bank.

A police announcement said they "answered generally the descriptions given by employes of the bank who had a chance to see some of the robbers."

West Seeks To Widen Reds Danube Plan

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Aug. 12 (U.P.).—The western powers sought today to overthrow a Soviet plan to limit the proposed Danube River commission to Russia and six other river states, but the attempt appeared to be a futile gesture.

The United States offered a proposal to broaden the commission to include the United States, Britain, France and Austria. Germany would be added later when her peace treaty is concluded.

Under the Soviet plan, commission members would include only Russia and her satellites in eastern Europe. The Russian draft provides for admission of Austria when her peace treaty is settled, but says nothing about admitting Germany.

Walter A. Radius, deputy chairman of the United States delegation, said he was willing to make one concession—American membership. He said the United States would be ready to give up its seat on the commission when Austria and Germany become members "and provisions are made for adequate non-riparian representation."

Earlier Radius proposed that the Danubian commission function within the framework of the U. N.

Yugoslav Delegate Dr. Ales Bebler charged that Britain and the United States are planning economic penetration into Yugoslavia. Sir Charles Peake, British delegate, replied that Yugoslavia never complained about Anglo-American penetration when they were receiving United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration aid.

Stalin Held Hitler Sane, Hopkins Noted

Josef Stalin at Tehran in 1943 "questioned the wisdom of the unconditional surrender principle" as a wartime measure, the late Harry Hopkins noted in a memorandum at the time.

The Soviet generalissimo felt also, according to Hopkins' papers, as published in Collier's, that the German mentality made Allied measures for Germany's subjugation and control "inadequate." He felt, Hopkins noted, that the German habit of discipline and obedience could not be overcome.

Stalin disagreed with President Roosevelt, according to Hopkins, that Adolf Hitler was mentally unbalanced "and countered that only a very able man could accomplish what Hitler had done in solidifying the German people."

Invasion Date Given

Hopkins noted also that Mr Roosevelt himself "listed briefly the operations planned" against Japan and gave the Soviet leader the tentative date of May 1, 1944, for the cross-Channel invasion of Europe. That date, Hopkins said, had been fixed at the Quebec conference.

[Maj. Gen. John R. Deane, head of the wartime United States military mission to Moscow, wrote in his book, "The Strange Alliance," that the Russians were given an invasion date of "during the month of May" at Tehran. He wrote that on April 7, 1944, he gave May 31 to the Russians at Moscow as the date.

[Subsequently, General Deane wrote, he gave them the succesive dates of June 2, June 5 and June 6 as they were transmitted to him from Washington. June 6 was the date upon which the invasion finally took place.—Editor's Note.]

Iowa Nearly Torpedoed

The current installment of the Hopkins story, compiled and edited by Robert E. Sherwood, reveals that the new battleship Iowa on which the President's party was sailing to Cairo was nearly torpedoed by an escort destroyer. The President, Hopkins noted, was entirely calm and refused to go inside when the torpedo's wake was sighted, saying he wanted to see what went on.

Sherwood said the identity of the destroyer was in Hopkins' notes but he witheld it for the sake of the vessel's commander. That officer, he wrote, probably didn't know the President was aboard with Gen. George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff; Admiral Ernest J. King, Chief of Naval Operations; Gen. H. H. Arnold, Chief of Air Forces; Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, Chief of Service Forces; Admiral William D. Leahy, Chief of Staff to the President, and Hopkins.

The incident, Hopkins wrote, was explained by the destroyer's skipper as resulting from the torpedo being loosened from its moorings by heavy seas. But King and Capt. John McCrea, commanding the Iowa, said Hopkins, "thought this pretty thin."

Hopkins in Vital Role

Sherwood noted in describing the Tehran conference that Hopkins acted throughout "in effect as Secretary of State. His opposite numbers, Sherwood wrote, were Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and British Minister Anthony Eden.

Hopkins made a note of what he said was Mr. Roosevelt's suggestion to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower at Oran soon after landing there that Marshall should be given command of the operation against continentental Europe. The President pointed out, Hopkins wrote, that field commanders were remembered in history while chiefs of staff were forgotten and he felt Marshall should be remembered.

3—Once aboard, the "rescued" airmen start up the motor and head for shore. The 30-foot boat is equipped with many comforts and complete navigating equipment

Jap Regime Opposes Red Strike Stand

Tokyo, (Thursday), Aug 12 (AP).—The Japanese government took a firm stand today in the face of a Russian demand that it cancel its ban on strikes by government employes.

Maj. Gen. A. P. Kislenko, acting Russian member of the Allied Council for Japan, wrote General MacArthur yesterday insisting that MacArthur's letter suggesting the ban and the Japanese government order putting the ban into effect "be canceled." He said it violated the Potsdam declaration and Far Eastern Commission policies.

MacArthur's headquarters made no comment.

The Japanese government issued a four-point note to all government unions today, interpreting its no-strike, no-collective-bargaining ordinance. It reiterated those two bans, added that all existing government-union contracts are invalid, and said employes working exclusively for unions but paid by the government "shall not be recognized hereafter."

Reports from Hokkaido, where a considerable number of railwaymen were staying off jobs, said 65 might be prosecuted. (Railways are government-operated.) Fourteen others had been discharged and 29 had been fined for absenteeism.

Employes of one rail division have canceled a contemplated one-day strike, and nearly 100 railwaymen who had been idle on Shikoku Island have returned to work.

'Ike' Goes Fishing

Airfield Club Gets Gen. Andrews Portrait

A portrait of the late Lieut. Gen. Frank M. Andrews of Nashville, Tenn., was presented yesterday to the officers' club of the Maryland airfield that bears his name.

The 5-foot-square painting by Max Westfield of Nashville was unveiled by the general's widow, Mrs. Jeanette A. Andrews of Miami Beach, Fla.

General Andrews, then commanding all United States forces in Europe, was killed in an airplane crash in Iceland May 3, 1943.

Millions of women who serve margarine proudly on their tables say...
UNTIL THE LAW LETS US BUY YELLOW NUCOA*
WE'LL COLOR IT AT HOME THE BEST WAY...
by NUCOA'S "Bowl Mix"

BECAUSE it protects the fine flavor and texture that make Nucoa our favorite margarine!
You're right, ladies! We tolerate no short-cuts on quality in the making of Nucoa, so why should you tolerate them in coloring Nucoa for your table? Nucoa is churned, chilled, made into pounds and luxuriously triple-wrapped, so that it comes to you with the finest churn-fresh flavor, the smoothest churn-fresh texture any spread can have. It is not melted and poured into any trick coloring package, because we know you would not like the flavor and texture of delicious Nucoa impaired in this way.

BECAUSE we get the best margarine this way—at less cost!
Right again! If you buy margarine in a trick coloring package, you pay extra for the package. When you buy Nucoa, you buy its finer flavor, its year-round churn-fresh goodness, its rich food energy and dependable Vitamin A. You get the margarine you're proudest to put on your table—actually cheaper! What could be better?

BECAUSE we find it as quick as any way—and so much more appetizing!
Yes, ladies! Just let Nucoa stand at room temperature until it is soft—not soupy, but soft enough for quick sandwich spreading. Then remove it from the package to a large bowl and with a large fork or spoon cream in the coloring shaken from the pure color wafer. It takes less than a minute and a half to mix the color in evenly—and no other method is quicker than this; no other method so well protects the texture!

* Obtainable yellow (where not prohibited by state law) at higher cost, to cover high Federal taxes and license fees.

Civilian Job Draft To Age 65 Favored

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 12.—With men 18 through 25 scheduled to start registering August 30 for the draft, there is considerable sentiment throughout the country to require all other adults up to 65 to register with draft boards for civilian defense or war work in case of war.

A coast-to-coast poll finds that 6 out of every 10 voters would like to see all citizens under 65 register with draft boards so that they could take part in defense or war work if necessary.

Also, 7 out of every 10 voters think that young men of draft age who are not taken into the armed forces should spend time in training for local defense or war work.

The poll results are:

"Should a law be passed now which would give the Government the right to require all citizens under 65 to register with draft boards so that citizens could take part in defense or war work if they are needed?"

Yes	60%
No	33
No opinion	7

"Should the United States Government require young men of draft age who are NOT taken into the armed forces to spend time in training for local defense or war work?"

Yes	70%
No	21
No opinion	9

A group of clergymen opposed to the 18-25 military Draft Act passed this year by Congress are urging that Sunday, August 22, be set aside as a "day of mourning" to protest the measure.

The views of these clergymen do not, however, reflect the views of the majority of Americans, who since as early as 1942 have favored one year's military training in peacetime for young men.

In nearly a score of surveys of public opinion during the past six years the Institute has found support for the measure averaging about two to one.

Some observers feel that setting up a program for civilian defense mobilization is more important even than the peacetime military draft. The next war, they say, may play such havoc with our cities and factories that the Government must have the power to compel large sections of the population to move to safe areas and to change their jobs accordingly.

This principle of drafting for jobs was widely discussed during World War II. Congress refrained from passing a national service law with such a provision, although civilian manpower grew acute as the war progressed.

However, such a law would have had wide support from public opinion, judging by many surveys on the issue conducted between 1942 and 1945 by the Institute. As early as March, 1942, when we had been in the war for only a little more than three months, 61 per cent of voters polled favored a total mobilization program that would give the Government power to tell each citizen what to do for the war effort and then require him to do it.

Three years later, in February, 1945, this type of mobilization was still approved by 56 per cent of all voters polled, with 36 per cent opposed and 8 per cent undecided.

Malay Rebel Center Hit

Kuala Lumpur, Malaya, Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Royal Air Force advanced headquarters lifted a week-long news blackout today to announce a "highly successful strike" with bombs and rockets against a rebel headquarters and supply depot.

It said RAF Spitfires scored hits on three buildings at the rebel center, south of the Siamese border in the Jeli forest reserve.

Headquarters of the guerillas were said to have consisted of "several large, well-constructed buildings on a steep hillside, partially cleared from a jungle area."

British officials also announced the arrest of Tong King Nyin, former leader of the anti-Japanese underground, but current leader of rebels in the Pulai area of southern Kelantan State, where British troops have met heavy resistance.

The 51-year-old wartime hero received the British Empire Medal after the Japanese surrender for his "courage and loyalty during the occupation."

U. S. Recognizes New Korea Regime

By the United Press

The United States seized the initiative on the Far Eastern front of the cold war yesterday by granting diplomatic recognition to the Russian-boycotted new government of Korea.

Korea has been jointly occupied by United States and Russian troops since the Japanese were driven out in 1945. American efforts to grant the country independence under a democratic government of its own have been a major issue in the world deadlock between the two great powers.

The United States finally took the dispute to the United Nations in September, 1947, and the U. N. General Assembly passed two resolutions on last November 14 calling for election of a national government to represent all of the divided nation.

Elections were held under the sponsorship of a U. N. commission on May 10, but Russia refused to let Koreans in its northern occupation zone take part.

Despite the Soviet boycott, the National Assembly delegates elected in the United States-occupied southern zone of Korea met and drew up a constitution. They completed the job recently by electing Dr. Syngman Rhee President, and notified the U. N. Commission that Korea now has a national government, ready to take over from the occupying powers.

In a formal statement yesterday, the State Department asserted that this government should be regarded as the government of all Korea, including the Russian zone.

To underscore that stand, President Truman appointed John J. Muccio of Rhode Island as special United States representative to Korea with the personal rank of Ambassador.

State Department officials said privately that this amounted to "de facto" diplomatic recognition. They said formal recognition will be postponed until the U. N. Commission officially reports to the General Assembly meeting in Paris next month.

The Soviet Union is expected to counter by going before the General Assembly with its own version of a national government for Korea. Russian-sponsored elections will be held in northern Korea this month to set up a rival "national government."

Thus the way will be cleared for a bitter General Assembly fight over the future of the hapless country of 30 million persons which was "liberated" from decades of Japanese domination only three years ago.

A key role will be played by the eight-nation U. N. commission ... sored the May e... and at last reports, it was still bit...y divided over whether to certify the Rhee regime as the national government.

State Department officials explained that the United States hastened to grant recognition to the Rhee government, before either the U. N. commission or General Assembly has done so, because this country is the occupying power which must do business with the Korean government.

(Gen. John R. Hodge, United States commander in Korea, announced at Seoul yesterday that negotiations for formal transfer of authority to Rhee's government were expected to start next Monday.

(Hodge made it clear, however, that the United States would retain authority over its military bases.)

Officials said the date for withdrawal of United States troops will have to be decided in United States-Korean negotiations. Russia has indicated she will pull her troops out of northern Korea at the same time United States troops leave southern Korea.

U. S. Text On Korea

Text of statement yesterday by the United States Government on the new Korean government:

In the joint declaration issued at Cairo on December 1, 1943, the three subscribing powers—the United States, China and Great Britain—expressed their determination "that in due course Korea shall become free and independent." This determination was reaffirmed in the Potsdam declaration of July 26, 1945, with which the Soviet Union associated itself upon its declaration of war against Japan on August 8 of that year. On December 27, 1945 in Moscow the foreign ministers of the Soviet Union, the United States and Great Britain concluded an agreement, later adhered to by the government of China, designed to reestablish Korea as an independent state.

Although the annexation of Korea by Japan was effectively terminated with the occupation of that country by the armed forces of the Soviet Union and the United States in August and September, 1945, the freedom and independence of Korea so solemnly pledged by the four powers have proven slow of realization. After nearly two years of painstaking but unavailing effort to give effect to those pledges through negotiations with the other occupying power, the United States Government, on September 17, 1947, laid the problem of Korean independence before the General Assembly of the United Nations. The will of an overwhelming majority of that body was expressed in two resolutions adopted by it on November 14, 1947, the purpose of which was to make it possible for the Korean people to attain their long-sought freedom and independence through the holding of free and democratic elections and the establishment, on the basis thereof, of a national government.

In pursuance of those resolutions, elections were held in Korea on May 10 of this year, under the observation of the United Nations Temporary Commission on Korea, for the purpose of electing representatives to a national assembly which might in turn form a national government. The national assembly so elected convened on May 31 and was proceeded to form a government—a government in which it is hoped that the people of North Korea, who were prevented from participating in the May 10 elections by the refusal of the Soviet Union to permit the implementation of the General Assembly resolutions in its zone of occupation, will be free in due course to assume their rightful role. Notification of the formation of the new government was communicated to the United Nations Temporary Commission on Korea on August 6, 1948.

It is the view of the United States Government that the Korean government so established is entitled to be regarded as the government of Korea envisaged by the General Assembly resolutions of November 14, 1947. Pending consideration by the General Assembly at its forthcoming third session of the report of the United Nations Temporary Commission on Korea, the United States, pursuant to its responsibility as occupying power, is sending to Seoul a special representative who will be authorized to carry on negotiations with that government, in consultation with the United Nations Temporary Commission on Korea, concerning the implementation of the further provisions set forth in paragraph 4 of the second of the General Assembly resolutions of November 14, 1947. As such special representative the President has named the honorable John J. Muccio of Rhode Island, who will have the personal rank of ambassador.

Draft Units May Locate In Tempo. 2

The District's peacetime draft setup—15 draft boards, three appeal board panels, and local Selective Service headquarters—will be quartered under one roof if the Public Buildings Administration can work it out.

John L. Nagle, deputy PBA commissioner for real estate management, disclosed yesterday that his office is trying to place the entire draft machinery in Temporary Building No. 2, 19th and D sts. nw., where the D. C. Office of Selective Service Records now is located.

Nagle said local draft officials have requested the space occupied there by the OSSR, 2500 to 3000 square feet, be doubled. That would provide an additional "eight or ten rooms," he said.

"Barring unforeseen obstacles, I can't think of any reason why we can't do it," the deputy commissioner said. A decision will be made in a few days. If the draft machinery is located there, some Federal Works Agency officers in the building will have to be transferred, according to Nagle.

National Selective Service officials announced yesterday that $74,897 has been appropriated for District draft expenditures through the end of the fiscal year. Virginia will receive $462,471, and Maryland $205,389.

The draft will get under way August 30

The lead elements of returning members of the District Air National Guard—20 F-47 fighter planes—will arrive over Washington in midmorning today. After circling Washington and Alexandria the planes will land at Andrews Field.

The remaining guardsmen will leave Dover, Del., Air Force Base by motor convoy at 7:30 a. m. and are expected at Andrews Field by 4 p. m. A total of 403 District men participated in the 15-day training period.

The 121st Fighter Squadron placed first in the aerial gunnery competition yesterday with a score of 6.27. The only squadron firing today was far behind and given little chance of winning.

Col. Laidler B. Mackall, 4434 Garfield st. nw., commander of fighter group units from Washington, Baltimore and Richmond, praised the outfit's showing, telling the men: "Your shooting and maintenance have been superior. I'm extremely proud of all of you." Less than 20 man days were lost by the District guardsmen from illness during the encampment.

Col. W. A. R. Robertson, chief of the aviation group of the National Guard Bureau at the Pentagon, toured the base for two hours yesterday before flying to Wilmington.

'White House' Squadron Takes First in Gunnery

Washington's 121st "White House" National Guard squadron in the second half of its two-week summer training at Dover (Del.) Air Force Base, yesterday moved into top place in the Fifty-third Fighter Wing air gunnery competition.

Still soaking wet, Minnick drove the patrol wagon back to the Eleventh Precinct, where he changed his clothes and went back on duty.

Truman Hits At Congress

General that the country keeps its major secrets pretty well.

Asked about his travel plans between now and Labor Day, Mr. Truman said that all he had in mind was a cruise down the Potomac on his yacht, the U.S.S. Williamsburg.

He said, in response to another question, that he had not thought about putting women on the draft boards. But he saw no reason why they should not serve on the boards.

At the outset, discussing the special session, Mr. Truman said that there should have been more action. He pointed out that it took Congress only 40 minutes to pass legislaion authorizing a 65-million dollar loan for the United Nation headquarters in New York. If the Republican leaders had wanted to, he said, they could have acted just as fast on the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill and on Federal aid to education.

The commission first approached seven outstanding citizens to serve on the FEPC board, but were turned down cold. Now the commission is considering a group of fair and impartial present and former employes — people who have had operating experience in Federal agencies.

Incidentally, several Southern Congressmen have threatened to try to cut off funds for the anti-discrimination board when Civil Service's budget is again considered by Congress.

STORY: If you ask a Budget Bureau fiscal expert if the Government will again go in the "red" this year he may reply with this question:

"Do you mean before Millikin or after Millikin?"

The question is logical. Here's why: Senator Millikin (R., Colo.) put through a law which required Uncle Sam to take three million dollars of the record surplus in fiscal 1949 and transfer it to this fiscal year.

AFGE: Membership in the AFL's American Federation of Government Employes is on the upgrade. In the months of May, June and July, the official records show a net increase of 3774 new members. The opponents of former President James Burns are pointing out that membership was on the downgrade while he was in office. Burns, a candidate for reelection, resigned in April.

Besides James Yaden, a Civil Service official, Burns also is being opposed by John Murray of Boston, a vice president who has the indorsement of the First District; James Campbell of Cincinnati, who has the support of the Sixth District, and the Twelfth District in California—Burns' home territory—has indorsed a local man for leadership of the union.

NOTES: Attorney General Tom Clark has ordered his staff to clear all letters to members of Congress through Peyton Ford, assistant to the Attorney General. The order has delayed answers to congressional mail . . . Ruth Freeman has taken leave as chief of nursing at the Red Cross to join the medical staff at the National Security Resources Board. Another NSRB addition is Irl Brent, who is working on relocation of Government . . . Navy Secretary Sullivan has overruled his agency's employe loyalty board on four cases. The board ordered the four accused persons to be ousted. After personally studying each case, the secretary ordered them restored to duty.

HERMAN KAHN has been appointed director of the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library at Hyde Park, N. Y. He was director of the natural resources division at National Archives here . . . ARTHUR M. SANBERG has joined Agriculture's Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations to make studies on foreign fish markets . . . The President yesterday said he knew nothing of reports that ALEX M. CAMPBELL would be appointed an Assistant Attorney General.

POLITICS: At his press conference yesterday, the President was asked about GOP charges that 15,000 employes were being added to the Federal payroll each month in an effort to make Democratic votes.

The President explained that the employes were being added because of increased agency appropriations approved by Congress. He said that Economic Cooperation Administration was among the agencies that were expanding. He pointed out that all of the appointments were under Civil Service and that he wasn't making any of them.

In fact, employment will continue to rise for another six months.

AAUW to Appeal D. C. Ouster Check

The American Association of University Women said yesterday it will appeal a District Court order prohibiting expulsion of the Washington branch for refusal to accept Negro members.

The board of directors announced, simultaneously, that the entire racial discrimination issue will be "resolved completely by the association's internal procedures at the biennial convention at Seattle in June, 1949."

Stands on Bylaws

Pending the results of these actions, the board said, no steps will be taken further to implement the policy of membership which it has construed to be correct." The board believes that the present AAUW bylaws provide only one qualification for membership—an educational requirement.

The dispute arose in October, 1946, when the Washington branch of AAUW refused to admit as a member Mrs. Mary Church Terrell, a Negro and widow of a Municpal Court judge. In December, 1946, the national board passed a resolution stating that persons should not be denied membership on racial, religious or political grounds.

Expulsion Ordered

When the deadlock continued into this year, the national body moved to expel the Washington chapter. The latter group forestalled action by going into court here for an injunction.

Last July 16, Chief District Court Justice Bolitha J. Laws ruled in favor of the Washington chapter. He said that "only by the adoption of amended bylaws by a national convention . . . and a subsequent refusal by a branch to abide by such bylaws may a branch be lawfully expelled for refusal to admit Negroes to its membership."

24 Feet Needed

Men to Make Mt. Rainier 2d Highest

Paradise Lodge, Mount Rainier, Wash., Aug. 12 (U.P.)—A man-made molehill will make this fourth-rated mountain the second highest peak in the Nation soon.

The mound will be a 24-foot extension, built by a foursome of grease-painted, parka-clad mountaineers. They are on their way up to do the job.

Cold-shouldered for centuries by Colorado's second-place Mount Elbert (14,431 feet) and Mount Massive (14,418 feet), crater-cropped Mount Rainier suddenly has developed growing pains.

The lofty mount looked down on Mount Whitney, the Nation's tallest, a few million years ago. But in a moment of youthful impetuosity, Mount Rainier blew its top.

Rainier wound up an also ran—11 feet short of third spot and 23 feet shy of second place.

Today, Dr. C. A. Mittun, prominent Northwest Alpinist, headed a four-man party up the mountain's crevasse-flawed slopes. They must ice-axe their way past Nesqually Glacier's traverse to Kautz Ice Falls and on over sun-pitted snowfields.

West Coast Airlines officials have offered to help the climbers determine the projecting's exact location. That will make the new elevation official to every loyal Washingtonian because even United States map officials have said "aeronautical maps must show accurate altitudes."

However, final ruling must come from the National Bureau of Geographic Names.

Truman to Aid Airlines Allay Money Woes

President Truman stepped in yesterday to help the airline industry with its money problems.

He ordered a thorough financial study of the entire air transport industry to find the best way to finance both immediate requirements and long-term development.

The President acted after a conference with top officials of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Civil Aeronautics Board and the Budget Bureau.

His order followed by one day a CAB call for an industry-wide meeting here August 19 to study plans for passenger fare boosts and ways to cut operating costs.

Airlines recently have run into financial difficulties because of rising costs and declining revenue from passenger traffic. Several have asked permission to boost passenger rates and for a hike in mail pay.

The Air Transport Association said operating costs have soared because of higher salaries, higher prices generally and cost of replacing outdated planes.

The ATA said the way the RFC might help airlines is by "financing loans more reasonably."

The White House said Mr. Truman is "extremely interested" in finding a solution to the problem, and that he asked the RFC to give him its recommendations "at an early date."

The CAB and the Budget Bureau were directed to assist the RFC.

Ex-Police Job Seeker Faces Kiting Penalty

A man who had recently applied for a job on the Alexandria police force was convicted in police court there yesterday of passing two bad checks totaling $218.49.

Judge James R. Duncan postponed imposing sentence until August 24 to give the defendant, Edward P. Hall, 25, of 325 Clifford ave., Alexandria, a chance to make the checks good.

Hall had pleaded innocent to the charge. He contended he had sufficient funds in the bank when he wrote the checks, but that he had closed his account a few days later, apparently before the checks had time to clear.

Hyman Kandill, owner of a market at 416 Hume ave., said Hall had cashed the checks at his store, saying he was a contractor and needed the money to pay his employes. On the court records, Hall's occupation was listed as a clerk.

Hall, who at 6 feet 7 inches and 240 pounds, would have been the largest policeman on the force, had already been turned down, according to Maj. Edgar Sims, because of bad eyes.

of-town cases and has provided group and special nurses, with costs chargeable to Maryland and Virgina chapters.

The Foundation, supported by the March of Dimes, also supplements on a year-round basis the physical therapy staffs at Children's Hospital and at the Gallinger Crippled Children's Clinic.

Equipment furnished by the local chapter was on hand at both hospitals before this year's first new case was reported on June 30, according to a report by Sarah E. Wilson, executive secretary. Follow-up treatment is also provided at clinics and homes.

The chapter reported 1948 receipts from the March of Dimes campaign in January at $62,000. This sum represents 50 per cent of the total contributions in the District, the balance having been sent to the National Foundation in New York for research, education and epidemic aid, according to the report.

In North Carolina, 32 more cases of polio were reported yesterday, bringing that State's total for the year to 1417.

State Health Officer Dr. Roy Norton said the question of delayed school openings this fall because of the epidemic in that State, will be left to local authorities. He pointed out that there has been a great variation in the number of cases in the various counties.

$110,300 Suit Filed in Man's Boat Death

The mother of a Government Printing Office linotyper, who was fatally stricken with a heart attack on a Wilson Line boat en route to Marshall Hall, Md., August 19, 1947, yesterday asked District Court to award her $110,300 for the death of her son.

The suit was filed by Mrs. Rachel Rochelli, administratrix of the estate of Peter Rochelli, 47, 717 3d st. ne.

She charges that Rockelli became ill on the evening cruise to Marshall Hall, and begged those in charge of the boat to turn back or put him ashore so he could get medical aid. The boat had no doctor or any adequate medical aid aboard, according to her suit.

She also claims that when the boat reached Marshall Hall more than two hours after her son was stricken, the defendant provided neither a doctor nor medical treatment. A friend of Rockelli's then put him in a taxicab to rush him back to the District but her son died en route, the suit charges.

Mrs. Rockelli asks $10,000 losses resulting from Rockelli's death; $25,000 compensatory damages; $25,000 punitive damages; $50,000 for his wrongful death due to defendant's negligence and $300 for funeral expenses.

Mrs. Rockelli's lawyer, Phillip Austin, said that Rockelli, who was a local musician, had been under treatment for a heart ailment. He said the boat was opposite Alexandria when the attack occurred.

Health Unit Seeks Poison Ivy Vaccine

A synthetic form of the toxic agent in poison ivy for use in a "vaccine" is now under study by United States Public Health Service researchers seeking an eventual preventive and cure for the poison.

The synthesized substance in pure form, first produced economically in quantity by the PHS and at Columbia University three years ago, will be used with human albumen in experiments, it was reported yesterday.

"No significant results," however, can be anticipated before "a year or two," according to Dr. Howard S. Mason, of the PHS division of industrial hygiene.

He drew this picture of findings and projected experiments:

Th substance is a synthetic product of pure crystalline ivy poison.

The synthesis is "no tremendous novelty," but it gives hope of more success than previous experiments with the crude extract taken from the plant itself. It can be produced in large amounts for testing purposes.

It is different from commercial "vaccines" on the market, which are also derived from the poison ivy plant.

It will be possible to determine exactly the sensitivity of patients before and after treatment.

Tests will be made first on animals, and if successful, later on human beings.

Some 700 treatments for poison ivy have been reported, but none has given completely satisfactory results.

3 D. C. Men To Enter Army MC Reserve

Three Washingtonians will be among 35 recent medical school graduates throughout the Nation who will be sworn into the Reserve Army Medical Corps Monday, the first group of Army internes to be trained in civilian hospitals at Army expense.

Army internes previously have been trained only in Army hospitals.

The three District men in the program, all of whom started their internships July 1 of this year, are:

John B. Logan, 26, of 6001 Nevada ave. nw., a graduate of Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia, interning at Providence Hospital.

2 Graduates of Georgetown

Antony V. Torre, 23, of 123 Pennsylvania ave. se., graduate of Georgetown Medical School, interning at Providence Hospital.

William F. Colliton, jr., 22, of 7330 14th st. nw., graduate of Georgetown Medical School, interning at Providence Hospital.

Local hospitals participating in the plan by reserving internships for qualified Army doctors are Gallinger, Providence and Garfield.

Regulars in '49

The doctors will receive Regular Army commissions at the end of one year and may continue to train as residents at hospitals in the program if they wish. They must serve one year on active duty for each year of training they have received before they leave the Army.

A total of 300 men will be enrolled in the program by January 1, 1949. The Army will accept applications for remaining vacancies from graduates of accredited medical schools, in the top third of their class, single or married, before December 31, 1948.

Wherever possible, internes will be placed in one of three civilian hospitals of their choice.

Unlicensed Sales Cost Vender $50

John Costello, 51, of 500 3d st. nw., yesterday was ordered to pay a $50 fine for selling ice cream and peanuts in the Ellipse without a license.

The vender was arrested about 7:15 p. m. last Tuesday when Park Policeman C. W. Shoemaker said he saw Costello selling the foodstuffs to several persons watching a baseball game.

Costello maintained in Municipal Court that he was only watching the game himself. Moreover, the policeman took him immediately to the Third Precinct station house without giving him time to lock up his truck, he contended.

Costello declared that he had applied for a license to vend in the parks but had been turned down. He argued it was unfair for Government Services, Inc., to be the only venders allowed in the parks.

Assistant United States Attorney Robert Short then introduced a record showing that Costello had been convicted for the same offense 70 times in the last 10 years, 10 of the convictions falling in the last year. He said the maximum sentence for the offense is a $500 fine and/or a six-month jail term, and requested a heavy penalty.

After learning that Costello had paid a $10 fine the last time he was arrested on the charge, Judge Armond Scott declared, "I'll make the fine $50 this time. That's a pretty big jump."

Auto Firm Fined for Abetting Avoidance of D. C. Inspection

The Logan Motor Co., used car dealer, yesterday was fined $50 in Traffic Court for helping a Bolling Field soldier get Maryland titles for the car they sold him to avoid District inspection.

The charge stated specifically that the company "failed to deliver a proper certificate of title to the transferee and aided and abetted the transferee in obtaining license tags in Maryland for the purpose of avoiding inspection of the used automobile by the District knowing full well that the transferee resided at Bolling Field in the District."

The purchaser of the car, Sergt. Nathan Matz, testified that when he bought the car, the company told him to provide them with a Maryland address. He gave them the address of a soldier acquaintance, who lives in Maryland but whom he has never visited, he said.

Matz said his home was originally in Pennsylvania but that he has been stationed at Bolling Field most of the time since 1940. In 1943, he frequently visited a friend in Baltimore, but never actually lived there, he said.

Matz testified that the company failed to make specified repairs they had promised on the car and that shortly after he bought it, the bearings burned out while he was on a trip to Oklahoma. He had to leave the car there, bringing it back here later, he said.

Bowles Is Entrant In Connecticut Race

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Former OPA Director Chester Bowles announced his candidacy for Governor of Connecticut today and immediately repudiated the indorsement of Wallace's Progressive Party. Bowles acted on the eve of the State Democratic convention which is expected to nominate him by acclamation. Party leaders had told him that the nomination was his for the asking.

Bowles

"Many thoughtful political experts have declared that this is a Republican year and that any Democrat is bound to be defeated," Bowles said. "The gruelling effort of a campaign faced with certain defeat is not an attractive prospect. I am convinced, however, that these observers are wrong. The Democratic Party will be victorious in November.

"I am not running as a Republican. I am not running as a Socialist. I am not running as a People's Party candidate.

"I am in flat disagreement with the fundamental principles on which all these parties are based. Under no circumstances will I accept the nomination, or indorsement or support of any party other than the Democratic Party."

To Face Accusers

Rajah Denies Diversion of Baroda Fund

London, Aug. 12 (AP).—The Maharajah, Gaekwer of Baroda, dismissed as "absurd" tonight charges that he—one of the world's richest men—misappropriated almost 10 million dollars in Baroda state funds.

He said through a secretary that he planned to return quickly—presumably this weekend—to answer allegations of the Baroda State Assembly, which has demanded his abdication.

Still resting at his Headley Surry mansion after a trip from the United States aboard the Queen Elizabeth, the 42-year-old ruler made known he wasn't angry over requests for his abdication.

"Why should he be?" said his secretary, Chotalal Bhatt. "These charges and allegations are not news to us. It is repeatedly going on. It is what happens in India."

The secretary said the Maharajah will fly to Baroda by regular airliner and not his own two-engine plane. There he will investigate the origin of the charges and demands for his abdication.

Speculation in Bombay as reported by the Chronicle was that the Maharajah might expel his Premier, Dr. Juvraj Mahta, as a countermove to the assembly charges.

The Chronicle said he might also sever ties with India should his funds in India banks be frozen.

Bikini-Tested Sub Sunk by Planes Firing Rockets

The Navy revealed yesterday that the submarine Skipjack, veteran of the Bikini atom bomb tests, has been sunk by rocket-firing planes in 21 minutes of target practice.

The Skipjack went down yesterday morning about 100 miles southwest of San Diego.

The 11-year-old sub left Mare Island naval shipyard under tow Saturday, and was followed Monday by the carriers Tarawa, Boxer and Badoeng Strait.

The Navy said the Skipjack had been designated as a target vessel. A number of other vessels that survived atom bomb experiments held two years ago at Bikini have been sunk by the Navy recently because they still are radioactive and too dangerous to be sold for scrap.

The Tarawa and the two other carriers are due back in San Diego Friday, an official said.

Balky Telephone Responds to Big Ad

Mexico City, Aug. 12 (AP).—Emilio Checa, manager of an undershirt factory, bought a quarter-page in the newspapers last Saturday to inform the manager of Telefonos de Mexico:

"Thirty-five days ago we reported our telephone out of order. Won't you please have something done?"

The phone works now.

Swedish Ship, Still Afire, Towed Into Baltimore

Baltimore, Aug. 12 (AP).—Still spouting smoke, the Swedish freighter Axel Salen was towed to an anchorage in the lower harbor today after her crew, Coast Guardsmen and fire boats battled a stubborn blaze in her cargo hold most of the night.

She caught fire down Chesapeake Bay about 12 miles, just after leaving here with a cargo of sodium phosphate, cotton goods and fertilizer for San Francisco and the Orient.

Most of the fire was in No. 2 hold, where the sodium phosphate was stored. No one was hurt.

Youth Conference Begins in London

London, Aug. 12 (AP).—Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison pleaded today for respect for minorities and freedom of thought in an address opening the International Youth Conference.

Youth groups of Russia and other Communist countries did not attend. A rival conference of "working youth" is being held in Warsaw. The London meeting is attended by 400 from 26 countries.

Robin Hood's Barn

Congressman Mundt has made a fascinating discovery. "Some innocent-sounding people," he told the crowded hearing room of the House Committee on Un-American Activities on Tuesday, "are guilty of infamous crimes or innocent people have been injured by infamous testimony. We must find the answer." What a pity Mr. Mundt did not think of this before! How does he propose to find the answer? Why, very simply—by going back to a grand jury and letting that body—which, under the American system, is the appropriate body for the purpose and which was pursuing this purpose before Mr. Mundt took over—determine who is lying and who is telling the truth and return indictments accordingly.

In the long trip round Robin Hood's barn made by Mr. Mundt and his colleagues, very grave injury has been done not alone to the innocent people for whom he now shows such belated solicitude but equally to the national security and to respect for the law. The hearings on the Hill have uncovered nothing that was not known, and known for a long time, to the FBI and the Department of Justice. The committee's star informant, Elizabeth T. Bentley, testified that she went to the FBI in August, 1945, three full years ago, and made a full disclosure of all her activities. The FBI instructed her, she said, to continue these activities so they could track down her contacts.

Since the witnesses called by the committee were in large part the same witnesses who testified before the grand jury in New York, it seems a reasonable assumption that the grand jury also heard the whole story. It looks very much as though the Un-American Activities Committee made public a lot of names and associations which the FBI, in the interest of security, and the grand jury, in the interest of justice, preferred, for the time being at least, to keep concealed.

The committee has been at great pains to keep public interest in its disclosures alive—to the extent of touting "mystery" witnesses, who turn out to be no more communicative than most of the other small fry summoned by the committee, and telling tall tales about "uranium shipments" which turn out to be normal and innocuous items of export. It seems to us that General Eisenhower said the most sensible thing that could be said about all this fanfare and fol-de-rol. "We don't want to be fools or naive about this spy scare," he remarked the other day. "We've done pretty well in keeping our vital secrets to ourselves. Our Government is aware of these things, and I don't believe the dangers are great." Maybe the regular law enforcement agencies and judicial institutions of the United States can do their jobs without the "assistance" of the Committee on Un-American Activities.

DP Opportunities

President Truman's nomination of three able men to serve on the Displaced Persons Commission and his request to Congress for an additional two-million-dollar appropriation to speed the commission's work are laudable attempts to make the best of a bad bill. The DP Act which Congress adopted and which the President reluctantly signed in June is not only discriminatory on religious grounds; it is also, from an administrative point of view, senselessly difficult and complicated. Because of the requirement that every DP to be granted a visa be individually screened and that he present assurances that suitable employment and housing accommodations await him in the United States, a small army of special Immigration Service workers will have to be sent to United States consulates in Europe. If the promise of admission to 100,000 DPs in its initial year of operation is to be realized, or even remotely approached, the commission must be organized and must pursue its task with the utmost expedition.

In this connection, it is immensely cheering that the State Department, having conducted a survey of job prospects for DPs, reports that specific employment opportunities are available for many more than the 100,000 to whom admission may be granted during the year ahead. These immigrants, as they arrive here, will do work that needs to be done, will help to swell the production which is the world's best hope for recovery and peace, and thus will help also to curb the inflation which now so imminently threatens American economic stability.

Perhaps the State Department report will help Congress to realize what should always have been evident, that these people will be assets and not liabilities to the United States, that their admission will not only discharge a humanitarian obligation but will at the same time redound to the country's material benefit. If that is realized, we hope that the next Congress will rectify the meanness of the DP measure that the Eightieth adopted. It can amend the most odiously discriminatory feature of the act by the simple device which Senator Smith has proposed, viz, changing the deadline for eligibility from the December, 1945, date insisted upon by the Senate to the April, 1947, date desired by the House. If, in addition, Congress would double the number to be admitted, as the President has requested, Congress could be credited with an act of genuinely enlightened generosity.

Soviet Mystery

The defenestration of Oksana Stepanovna Kosenkina has resolved the question of the feasibility of an investigation of the Soviet Consulate General in New York. This will now have to be done. The woman is in an American hospital, and whether she wants to leave the country, as Consul General Lomakin insists, or whether she wants to stay, will now be determinable. Before the incident, the State Department had clarified the diplomatic situation: other things being equal, a foreigner has liberty to leave the country or to obtain American protection if he or she wishes to stay. The fact is that there is no treaty between the Soviet Union and the United States which would give immunity to a Soviet consulate in America. In the absence of a treaty, embassies and consulates have a different standing, and a consulate, except when protected by a special treaty, is not inviolable. This is the reason that the State Department has said there was nothing to bar service of a subpena on Kosenkina. The point was to try to get at her. Till that point was resolved, a diplomatic objection had been entered with Governor Dewey to the New York service of a writ of habeas corpus upon Consul General Lomakin. Accordingly, Mr. Lomakin would have ignored the writ.

The part that the Consulate General played, if any, in the abduction of the Soviet teacher from Countess Tolstoy's Reed Farm, N. Y., required investigation, anyway. Whether Kosenkina wants to stay or leave, the circumspection of the Consul General was open to question. Unbecoming conduct could have only one outcome. In June, 1941, the United States was able to order and enforce the closing of all German and Italian consulates on the grounds that they were nothing more than centers of propaganda for the Axis powers. The precedent is now being recalled. Aside from the issue of conduct, there is nothing like reciprocity in Soviet-American relations. The Russians have two consulates, one in San Francisco, and the other in New York, but the United States, with a consulate at Vladivostok, has for months been awaiting permission to open a consulate at Leningrad, Russia's New York.

Ambassador Panyushkin in his protest to the State Department and to the press on Tuesday night was more concerned with Kosenkina's fellow teachers at the Soviet school for Russian children in New York, the Samarines, man and wife, than with Kosenkina herself. He alleged that the Samarrines were kidnaped by members of the Tolstoy Foundation at Reed Farm, and formally demanded that the Samarines be returned to the Soviet authorities so that they could be shipped home. The only thing that was certain in this extraordinary story till Kosenkina was pushed, fell, or threw herself out of the window was that this is precisely what the Samarines don't want to do. They appear to have made a getaway from Reed Farm last Sunday, some hours before Kosenkina was kidnaped, allegedly, by Lomakin's minions, and are said to be under FBI protection. That protection, in view of what Secretary Marshall said, is not likely to be given up. Unlike Kosenkina, they have already been served with a subpena to appear in Washington, and are reported to have told all in camera. The advance notice was that they would unmask the "Soviet's totalitarian technique and practices," though what is needed is the key to a mystery that this last incident had made into a cause celebre.

Lopsided Security

Real security for the aged of this country must mean more than public relief. A major objective of the Social Security Act when passed in 1935 was to do away with the poorhouse and poor relief. This was to be achieved through a system of contributory social insurance. But this aim of self-respecting old age is far from achievement. Democratic and Republican congresses both have succumbed to the siren call of greater appropriations each year to the State governments to pay old age assistance and have postponed every major proposal for extending old age (and survivors') insurance. We now have 2.3 million aged (more than one of every five persons over 65) drawing poor relief at a cost to the taxpayers of nearly one billion dollars a year. Old age assistance, as this poor relief is called, is an important contribution to the relief of need, but it remains, in essence, poor relief and each recipient must demonstrate his poverty. The goal of security earned during his working years and paid for through the contributions of himself and his employer for the aged worker or his survivors seems less likely now than it did in 1935.

A principal result of the failure to extend and liberalize old age and survivors' insurance is the growth of union health and welfare funds. The miners' fund has received most attention, but similar funds exist in a number of industries. These funds have come into existence and more will be established because of congressional failure to provide adequate protection for workers against the hazards of old age and death through contributory social insurance.

Congress at the next session should act to strengthen old age and survivors' insurance. But it should also take steps to prevent such lopsided development in the future. The 80 million who hold social security cards may be surprised to know that the cards no longer exists. The board was abolished in 1946 because, in the language of the President's reorganization message, it had rendered an outstanding service and the social security program was now firmly established. The board's successor, the present Commissioner for Social Security, has neither the statutory responsibility nor the position which would enable him to integrate, as the board did, the various phases of social security and to balance the demands of competing lobbies for the aged, the blind, orphans, sick and unemployed.

It is high time the Congress acted on repeated proposals for improving social security. When it does it should establish by statute the commissioner's responsibility for integrating all our efforts as a people to provide security and further strengthen his hand by creating a permanent Advisory Council on Social Security. Backed by a council made up of outstanding citizens the administrators of social security and Congress, too, might better resist the demands which already threaten to make our provisions for the aged a political scandal rather than the assurance of decent security for our aged.

Women On The Farm

Though women are credited with originating agriculture, somewhere down the years they seem to have lost their zest for farming. A recent survey by the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics shows that farm ownership and direction remain almost entirely in the hands of men. However, it is not that women fail to contribute to American agriculture; more than two million of them are working on farms this summer. However, most of these are the unpaid wives and daughters of farmers, or else transient workers. Many millions more of farmers' wives, to be sure, are doing their never-ending stints in farm kitchens, poultry yards and vegetable gardens, but the survey shows that rural women seldom show any inclination to own or run farms. When farms come into their possession, they usually sell them or rent them, and farms generally pass by estate settlement to male members of the family. The figures show that only about 10 per cent of individual farm owners in this country are women, and that half of this number rent out all their land, with another 15 per cent renting out part of it.

Among the many causes given for the decline of Rome is the deterioration of agriculture that came when men were away in imperialistic wars and women were left in charge of the farms. And in more recent years the urgings of farm women have greatly aided the steady trend from rural to urban life. Women definitely seem to like city life best. Perhaps their long race memory of their rigorous role in primitive agriculture and later in pioneer farming has chilled their enthusiasm for the pursuit they once developed as a means of getting their men to settle down and live in one place. Moreover, women have an aptitude for city pursuits, and city wealth is coming increasingly into possession of women—so much so that foreigners have charged that America is already a matriarchy. At any rate, women show far more zeal for running businesses and managing their investments than they do for growing wheat or raising cows.

Abundant Cotton

Department of Agriculture estimates indicate that this year's cotton crop will exceed 15 million bales—the seventh largest crop on record, exceeding last year's output by 28 per cent. This means that our cotton production for the current year will be far above domestic consumption and export requirements which are estimated at about 11¾ million bales. What is left will be added to the carryover from last year, giving a total reserve of about 5.8 million bales.

With prices now in the neighborhood of Government support levels, it is expected that several million bales of cotton will be taken over under the Government nonrecourse loan program. Consequently, as in the case of wheat and corn, the full effect of abundant supplies of cotton will not be reflected in corresponding declines in prices—although the existence of large stored supplies of all three commodities is a price-depressing factor that is a guarantee against a return to the high-level prices that prevailed earlier this year. Indeed, it looks as if the peak of inflation in prices of farm products is now behind us. Lower current prices for grain and cotton will be reflected ultimately in lower prices for meats, various other foods and clothing.

A more realistic formula for adjusting support prices to allow for changes in supply of the supported commodity, as contemplated by the recently passed Agricultural Act, would have brought down prices of superabundant farm products to lower levels. However, that feature of the law does not come into effect until 1950. Meantime the Government will again be loaded down with so-called surplus supplies of grain and cotton due to efforts to keep prices from dropping. Meantime, also, the Administration is clamoring for relief from high living costs. We anticipate Mr. Hoffman will soon begin to feel pressure from interested groups to take over surpluses for disposition by ECA.

THERE SHALL BE NO WAR

We have read accurately the grim octave:
Destruction, death, the shrieking metaphor
Of man become a diaphonic slave
To the unholy utterances of war.
And, white with horror, we have noted how
The slow pentameter, the simile
Of sanguinary progress leave us now
Asking world peace—the only victory.

Nazi Assets in Sweden

In a letter in your paper of July 4 the secretary of the Society for the Prevention of World War III, Inc., has accused Sweden and Switzerland of not carrying out their commitments according to the agreements they have entered into with the Allies with regard to German assets in these countries.

As head of the Swedish administration in charge of the liquidation of German assets—the Foreign Capital Central Office—I wish to state that these accusations, as far as Sweden is concerned, are entirely misrepresenting the situation. The liquidation of German assets in Sweden has been conducted with as much speed as possible and I think it's justified to say that we are as far advanced in this respect as most other countries. Even if on certain points there are differences of opinion as to the interpretation of the accord, Sweden has tried to carry out her undertakings to the best of her ability. EMIL SANDSTROM.

Getting The Truth

From all indications many witnesses will be called before the House Un-American Activities Committee to defend themselves against espionage and/or disloyalty charges. The Washington Post has pointed out, justifiably, that innocent persons are, or will be smeared when the quasi-judicial powers of a congressional investigating committee are exercised in a pre-election, "politics-filled atmosphere and by men who emphasize the "front-page" approach.

It is for the protection of witnesses who were on the fringes of these cases, and whose sins were those of omission, that I suggest Senator Ferguson might say to witnesses before questioning them: "You have held positions of trust in the Government—very high trust in several cases. Miss Bentley's and Mr. Chambers' testimony contains grave charges against you. In the light of the United States' latter day relations with Soviet Russia, including the Canadian spy case, it is probable you will be prejudged by a large segment of the public and found guilty.

"To prevent this taint, I propose that each of you voluntarily agree to answer a half dozen simple questions which the committee will submit in advance. There is one condition—your answers would be checked by a lie detector. To minimize disquieting influences, the room would be cleared, save for one reporter. The lie detector is not infallible, but tests on several witnesses, plus a test on Miss Bentley and Mr. Chambers, would be conclusive."

The little pointer on graph paper offers exoneration to the innocents before Thomas and Ferguson. But can't you guess the reaction of most of the spy inquiry witnesses to such a proposal? I can even imagine that witnesses who were not Communists and whose only faults were past errors in judgment would object. Still, one of the prices of holding Government office (especially these days) is a critical review of the official's record.

It might cause The Washington Post to rewrite its editorials on loyalty among Federal employes. I am not suggesting that Washington is infested with Soviet spies, but even before the spy inquiry case broke, I did not share your complacency on the relatively small number of "disloyal" or "unreliable" people who resigned under investigation or were forced to resign by the President's loyalty board.

Transit Service

Listening to the radio recently, I heard about the wonderful service the transportation company was supplying—"the best in the country," I believe the spokesman said.

Three or four years ago it became necessary for me to travel from Bethesda to a point on North Capitol in the morning. Over the period of nearly three months I never made a connection at the District line, at Tenley Circle, or at Michigan and North Capitol, and it is just as bad today, going either way.

You get off a bus or streetcar and see the other means of continuing pulling out while you run your head off to no avail. You see the streetcar or bus standing idle within 20 feet of you, but you can't get on. You miss a car at Tenley Circle or at Veazey st. by a hair and see four streetcars going north (the direction you want to go) within three blocks. And when the cars and buses are packed—until you can't breathe—did you ever hear a single motorman or bus driver announce a cross-town connection?

Capital Transit has been getting higher fares than most any other city for the last 10 or 15 years, and they haven't given half the service that other companies give. R. E. W.

Churchill and Hyderabad

Mr. Churchill's display of emotion during the debate in the House of Commons at its closing session the other day was very pathetic. The Labor government had refused to intervene in the Hyderabed affair or to discuss past pledges to that state.

The Second World War left in its wake great social and economic upheaval. India, debtor country in prewar days, emerged a creditor with her economy intact, and considerable British investments passed into Indian hands. Britain's economy was depleted; for the first time she found that the "white man's burden" was a burden in fact.

To the Labor government goes much credit for firmly grasping the situation and winding up Anglo-Indian affairs with dignity, good will and friendship on both sides. Now Mr. Churchill and his die-hard followers are out to destroy this good work. They want to champion the cause of the Nizam. They want not only to stand behind the autocratic ruler out of appreciation for the services which the Nizam dynasty rendered to Britain, but even more, they want to see further dismemberment of India.

The demands of the government of India are fair. They are two in number: First, Hyderabad to accede to the Indian Dominion with the dominion controlling only external affairs, defense and communications; and, secondly, the Nizam to institute a democratic form of government in his state. These demands on the part of the government of India, are a logical necessity for internal and external security.

"Lisner Auditorium"

Your August 9 editorial "Lisner Auditorium" was presumptuous.

In the first place, it was the stated purpose of the late Abram Lisner when he gave the money for the auditorium, that it be used for the benefit of the students. His desire was to provide a much needed place for student activities—an outlet for constructive energy, a medium for the expression of talent—in the hope that it would build more school spirit and broaden the cultural scope of every individual studen.. By opening the auditorium to continuous outside use, we students would be deprived of innumerable opportunities for self-expression, entertainment and learning—the type of entertainment and learning that can be achieved only by doing.

Secondly, Mr. Lisner's gift has been valuable to the university in a manner I am sure he never imagined. With the sudden and continued increase in enrollment, it has become necessary to hold certain classes in the auditorium. During the regular school year in the past, at least two classes every day (each one consisting of from 400 to 800 students) have met in the only room large enough to accommodate them: Lisner Auditorium. Of these two classes one was a morning class and the other an evening class, a schedule necessitated by the habits and desires of the students, many of whom can attend only part time—either during the early morning or in the evening.

A third aspect you have not considered is one of the causes of the situation just mentioned. If George Washington University received the support, backing, and assistance of its hometown citizens the way most American colleges and universities do it would be much farther along its program of progressive expansion. With proper support in the past, the physical plant of George Washington University would now be such that Lisner Auditorium would not have become the vital and inalienable link in college life that it has, but would gratefully be put at the disposal of other cultural community uses.

Of the five major universities in this locality the physical plant, its location, and the financial situation of George Washington University are the least commendable (while its scholastic rating is among the highest) even though it has the largest enrollment, because the university asks little (in tuition) while giving the most it can. Why not ask one of the other major educational institutions located here to relinquish some of its facilities for the use of outside theatrical productions? Or for a change do something really constructive on this issue by starting a movement to get Congress to provide funds for building a national memorial theater, in memory of the men and women who gave their lives in defense of the United States in World War II.

In a small but representative, cross-section poll of the students, which I have conducted since your editorial was published, two out of every three students favored a policy of excluding outsiders from the use of Lisner Auditorium, when such use would interfere with the fullest utilization of the auditorium by the students. The use of Lisner Auditorium for commercial theatrical performances throughout the fall and winter season as you propose would interfere in this way, and thus would be more detrimental to the student body than enlightening. WILLIAM F. MEYER.

World Events

By Randolph Churchill

Tito's Example

LONDON.—It is now nearly seven weeks since the Cominform excommunicated Tito, Yugoslavia's Premier, and, with the whole power of the Kremlin behind it, called upon him either to confess the error of his ways or to step aside for some other Communist untainted by his "Trotskyite" heresies.

In those seven weeks Tito has vigorously rebutted the charges levelled against him, has counterattacked with blistering criticisms of both the Cominform and the Kremlin and has been unanimously and enthusiastically indorsed by a full meeting of the Yugoslav Communist Party.

THE OUTSIDE, non-Communist world is still largely baffled by the relative value of all the issues involved in Tito's fight with the Kremlin. Indeed, the mystification produced by these strange events has tended to obscure the tremendous fact that Tito is still in power. In a strange, perverted way this is one of the most encouraging facts in the postwar world.

From whatever motives Tito may have acted, the plain fact remains that he has called Premier Stalin's bluff on a gigantic scale and revealed for all the world to see the limitations that hamper the Kremlin's desire for world mastery. If Stalin cannot keep his own Moscow-trained "stooge" in order, why should the great democracies of the West be so terrified of the bad manners and offensive epithets that are the stock in trade of Russian diplomacy?

Indeed, there is something rather humiliating in the contrast between the demeanor and deportment of Tito at this juncture and that of the United States, Britain and France. While Tito is saucing Stalin to his heart's content, the representatives of the mighty Western powers, armed as they are with the most destructive weapon, are hanging around in Moscow seeing if by some device or other, which is not too flagrantly dishonorable, Stalin can be lured once more to the council table or at least be persuaded to send Mr. Molotov or Mr. Vishinsky to heap new insults on all our heads.

TITO, IT IS true, is only a Balkan brigand, and there is no reason why the Western nations should model themselves after him. But there is something rather degrading in the fact that he should show so much courage and so much cooler nerves than the democratic leaders of such vastly more powerful states.

Tito, of course, has the advantage of knowing much more about the Russians than we do. We can only surmise their terrible internal weaknesses and speculate upon the deadly and corrosive hatreds that divide them. Tito, who spent at least five years in Moscow right in the center of the whole Communist conspiracy and who knows no politics save those based on power, probably can judge the Kremlin's strength and weakness to a nicety. It is also true that as an adventurous political arriviste he has much less to lose than do the peace-loving peoples of the West.

However that may be, it seems clear that we are entitled to draw encouragement from Tito's successful defiance of his supposed masters. This is certainly no moment for the West to show any signs of weakness in its relations with Russia.

On the contrary, it may be that if the West can maintain its composure and stand firmly and unyieldingly together the crack in international communism already apparent in the Balkans may be found to extend all the way to the very heart of the Kremlin.

Hollow Spy Menace

Only the naive will doubt that spies from many nations beside those currently being exposed by the Un-American Activities Committee infest our governmental departments seeking inside knowledge of our plans. Nor will anyone of average intelligence doubt that we, too, use secret agents for ferreting out the plans of possible enemy countries. Despite this universal state of spying and counter-spying, however, peoples trade amicably and live in good fellowship.

In view of the great excitement over the spy expose, centered on what actually happened before 1945, it is pertinent to inquire what actual harm came to the country's interests by reason of the information allegedly divulged. In effect we have heard of no definite harm to our cause in the late war through the communication of intelligences.

When Franklin D. Roosevelt, who permitted the appointment of the men now under fire to office, assumed the Presidency he found the country at the lowest ebb of financial depression and psychological morale in its entire history. When he left it, it had become the most prosperous, the strongest, the best liked country of all time. Admitting the men now accused of being Communists and fellow-travelers filled many offices in his Administration, who will deny, nevertheless, the grand results? Indeed, if Roosevelt could speak, he would no doubt tell us he received more help, administratively speaking, toward the consummation of our unquestioned greatness from the persons being denounced than from the Republicans who denounce them.

German Food Crisis

A Communication

There has been a great deal of discussion, official and unofficial, regarding the alleged food crisis in western Germany. Because of the pro-German propaganda barrage on this important problem, it has been quite difficult to obtain an objective picture of the food situation in Germany. Nevertheless, we have made an attempt to do so with a view toward clarifying the problem.

The Civil Affairs Division of the War Department estimates that the total German population in Bizonal Germany (including Berlin) is 41,064,242. The rural population of Bizonia, according to the same source, is 8,508,900. The total city population of Bizonal Germany, therefore, would be 32,555,342.

We are interested, for the moment, in the food situation of the city population of Bizonal Germany, since it is obvious that the rural population of Bizonia is providing for its food consumption.

The foodstuffs which we are interested in are the most basic and contain a high caloric content. For every thousand metric tons the number of calories, for instance, in potatoes is 720 million, in dry skim milk, 3590 million calories; in wheat, 3600 million calories; in sugar, granulated, 3980 million calories; meat, including fat, 1630 million calories.

The caloric content of the foodstuffs mentioned above is based on the retail level of distribution.

WE HAVE RECEIVED information from the office of the military government regarding farm-to-market deliveries in the Bizonal area of Germany. The figures below represent actual deliveries from July 1, 1947, to January 1, 1948, and estimated deliveries to June 30, 1948:

	Metric Tons
Wheat	1,396,000
Potatoes	3,850,000
Milk	14,726,180
Meat and fat	372,000
Sugar	290,000

If we multiply the caloric value of each of these foodstuffs with their actual and estimated delivery from farm to market, we obtain the following figures:

Calorie Value	(In millions)
Wheat	5,716,800
Potatoes	2,772,000
Milk	14,726,180
Meat	606,360
Sugar	1,154,200
	24,975,540

If we divide the total available calories by the number of city dwellers in the Bizonal area, which is 32,555,342, there would be available in a 12-month period for each of the city inhabitants 767,171 calories. On a per capita per day basis this would amount to an average of about 2101 calories. This applies only to foods which are actually grown and marketed in the Bizonal area. It does not include food shipments from the United States.

However, we learn from the New York Times of January 22, 1948, that 4,334,352 tons of foodstuffs were sent to Germany in the year, 1947. It is well-known that most of these foodstuffs consisted of grains. Obviously if one were to break down this tonnage it would be found that there were some food items which contain even more calories than wheat, while another part might contain less calories. If we base our calculations on the caloric content of wheat, then the total caloric value of these 4,334,352 tons would be 14,520,079,200,000. This caloric value is based on the Department of Agriculture's estimate that bread grains for shipment overseas is 3350 million calories per thousand metric tons.

Once again we divide the available calories by the city population. This would yield 446,012 calories for each city inhabitant on a yearly basis, or on a per capita per day basis an average of 1221 calories. We have obtained the following results:

	Per capita per day average calories
Estimated and actual farm-to-market deliveries in the Bizonal area, July 1, 1947, to June 30, 1948	2101
Food deliveries by the U. S. to bizonal Germany for the year 1947	1221
Total average calories	3322

OUR FIGURES do not take into account the millions of food packages sent to Germany by private individuals and American organizations, nor the exchange of commodities for foodstuffs from neighboring countries, nor do they include wine, vegetables and fruit produced on German soil or imported from her neighbors.

Frankly, while we suspected the tables about the 1550-caloric consumption for the Germans, we never dreamed that they could be so wide of the mark. The point may be raised that we have not taken into consideration the farm population in Bizonia and what it consumes. We did not think that this was necessary, as General Clay himself admitted before the Committee of Appropriations, House of Representatives, in the spring of 1948 that the average farmer and his family consume anywhere from about 2500 calories to about 3200 calories per person per day.

On the basis of General Clay's testimony and on the widely known fact that the German farmers in Bizonia are notorious for hoarding their foodstuffs, our main concern was the so-called plight of the city population. From our calculations it would appear, as has been pointed out, that about 3322 calories, on the average, are available for each city inhabitant in the Bizonal area daily.

BLS Reports

Wholesale Prices Set New Record

Wholesale prices for all commodities spurted to an all-time high in the week ending August 7, the Bureau of Labor Statistics announced last night, thus forecasting even further shrinkage of the consumer's dollar.

The wholesale listings advanced 0.3 per cent during that period, placing the BLS index at 169.2 per cent of the 1926 average. The previous high was 168.9 on July 17, and the index was 11.2 per cent above the figure for the corresponding date last year.

In spite of Washington consumer group's meat boycott, some retail outlets yesterday listed new boosts in meat prices, while many store managers contended that buyers' resistance has been hardly noticeable so far.

Porterhouse at $1.12

One food chain raised meat prices as much as 13 cents in one instance. Porterhouse steak, grades A and AA, went from 99 cents to $1.12; club, T-bone and sirloin steaks, same grades, jumped from 97 cents to $1.09.

Center-cut pork chops in the same chain advanced from 93 cents to 98 cents, chuck roast from 67 cents to 75 cents, and loin lamb chops increased from $1.05 to $1.09.

An official of another chain said "meat prices are up a few cents almost down the line . . ."

One dealer reported that despite efforts of some groups here to snub meat purchases, "business has been good—probably because of the cool weather."

A large market continued to quote $1.49 price for a pound of porterhouse steak—choice grade—and the manager said he was selling all he could buy.

The Labor Department's BLS reported wholesale farm prices up 7/10 of 1 per cent during the week ended August 7, largely because of increases in the cost of livestock and live poultry.

Food Prices Up 1.2 Per Cent

Food prices rose 1.2 per cent, with increases recorded in beef, lamb, pork, dried fruits, lard, black pepper and raw sugar.

Meanwhile efforts were continuing here to combat spiraling costs.

Representatives of the Women's Auxiliary of the United Public Workers of America (CIO) were campaigning by phone in an attempt to enlist city-wide support of a meat boycott.

Members of Henry Wallace's Progressive Party announced plans to tour heavy shopping areas today and tomorrow, distributing leaflets and exhorting housewives from a sound-truck to shun meat purchases.

U. S. Turns Fiscal Guns On Inflation

The Federal Reserve System yesterday joined the Treasury in turning the Government's big fiscal guns on inflation.

Nine of the dozen Federal Reserve Banks raise their "discount rate" from 1¼ to 1½ per cent. The other three will act shortly, a Government spokesman said.

That action will make it more costly for commercial banks to borrow funds from the Federal Reserve Banks to lend to the public.

The result for which the Government is hoping is deflationary—banks will tighten up on their lending to business firms and farmers.

Secretary of Treasury Snyder, almost at the same moment, took a new indirect crack at the rising credit and price spiral.

Snyder announced that another $571,431,000 of Government bonds will be paid off in cash when they mature on December 15, instead of being replaced by a new bond issue.

He gave notice that all outstanding 2 per cent Treasury bonds of 1948-50, issued December 8, 1939, are called for redemption.

This brought to more than $1,022,000,000 the redemption calls issued this week. On Monday Snyder announced that a 2½ per cent, partly tax-exempt issue maturing September 15 will be paid off in cash on that day.

By paying off this volume of securities, Snyder acts in two directions against inflation:

First, he reduces the amount of securities in the investment market.

Second, he removes them from the hands of the banks and other lending institutions, in which the Government bond holdings serve as a reserve against which business loans may be made.

Mexico Puts Controls on Eight Foods

Mexico City, Aug., 12 (AP).—The Government today fixed retail prices on eight essential foods in an attempt to halt the zooming cost of living.

Prices started upward July 21 when the peso was devalued and turned loose to seek its own exchange level with the dollar. Local merchants took advantage of the situation to boost their prices 25 to 40 per cent, though devaluation should have had no effect on prices of food and goods produced in Mexico with Mexican materials.

The national economy department announced the average prices on the eight foods before devaluation will be the ceiling. The eight are: Rice, flour, lard, three grades of beans, coarse salt and fine salt.

Lard is fixed at 30 cents a pound, rice at 8 cents, flour at 6 cents, and the cheapest beans at 7 cents.

The peso, formerly 4.85 to the dollar, has leveled off at about 6.85. Private banks today began buying dollars at 6.82, and selling them at 6.88.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

Dewey And The Congress

THE LAST wilted lawmaker has left Washington, much in the manner of the last wilted lettuce leaf being scraped off an emptied blue-plate. The polls suggest that the special session has further damaged the Congress without greatly assisting President Truman. But what has been really interesting about the whole episode is the light it has cast on the extremely probably future relationship between the Congress and President Dewey.

The fact is that Dewey's demure agricultural seclusion at Pawling, N. Y., has been considerably less complete than is generally supposed. Since his nomination, Dewey has been in constant touch, mainly by telephone, with key congressional Republicans.

THE FIRST and most useful occasion of Dewey's intervention was when Representative John Taber was dead set on holding appropriations for the European Cooperation Administration in conference until hell froze over. Nothing could persuade Taber to approve anything more liberal than the wholly inadequate measure he had jammed through the House. Fortunately, Dewey had helped the redoubtable chairman of the House Appropriations Committee in a difficult primary. Dewey called Taber and pleaded with him for a generous compromise, basing his appeal on old friendship and political expediency. And these arguments won Taber's consent to the appropriation bill that was finally passed.

This was, of course, at the conclusion of the regular session. Prior to the special session, Dewey rejected a suggestion by Senator Robert A. Taft that he intervene with the House leadership against the real estate lobby, and in favor of the full Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill. He then decided to intervene on two other issues—the 65-million-dollar loan for construction of the United Nations headquarters in New York; and the proposal to modify the restrictions on entry of displaced persons into the United States, in order to remove the shocking veiled racialism of the act passed at the regular session.

By great efforts, with the assistance of his astute political manager, Herbert Brownell, Dewey persuaded the House leadership to give way on the U. N. construction loan. But on the amendment of the Displaced Persons Act to allow entry of Jewish D. P.'s he met the unyielding resistance of Senator Chapman Revercomb of West Virginia, a prime specimen of the reactionary, crypto-isolationist group of Republicans in Congress.

Dewey himself only called Revercomb after the Senate leadership and Brownell had both done their best. His pleas were unavailing. As a result, the word is going round that the Republican high command will let Senator Revercomb fend for himself at the polls in West Virginia, where the betting seems to be against his reelection. Special efforts will be made, instead, to help Senator Taft's crony, Representative Brazilla Carroll Reece, to beat the able Estes Kefauver for the Tennessee senatorship with the aid of the Neanderthal boss Ed Crump.

THESE INCIDENTS do not establish a pattern, but they do suggest a problem. The problem is simply, who is to be boss, Dewey or the Congress?

This problem will come to a head immediately after the election, because of the retirement of Senator Wallace White as Senate Majority Leader. The chief candidates to replace White are Senator Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska, who has been actively canvassing for support, and Senator Taft, the real working leader of the Senate Republicans. Taft has so far been silent. Yet it now seems probable that the Republican Senate set-up will be revised, to give Taft the place of majority leader and Wherry the place of floor leader. Indeed, nothing but another Dewey intervention is likely to prevent this outcome.

Taft is one of the two or three ablest men in Washington. He disagrees fundamentally with Dewey on several questions, notably questions of foreign policy. He is as independent as a hog on ice, and he conceives that policy making is the function of the Congress. Dewey, on the other hand, strongly believes that policy making is the function of the Executive.

Obviously, unless Dewey consents to go along with Taft (or unless the Republicans lose the Senate, which is barely possible), there is the raw material here for future trouble. Nor does it seem likely that this trouble will be averted by importing to Washington Dewey's system of meeting with the legislative leaders in Albany for long hours every Sunday evening. Dewey has already told Taft and Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg that he would do this. But national problems are very different from State problems. If knowledge of the facts and constant persuasion could have converted men like Senator Taft to different views, they would have been converted long ago.

The truth is that Dewey's choice in dealing with Congress is already becoming clearly apparent, months before the election. Either he can begin his administration with an act of leadership, insisting on a presidential legislative program that will establish the power of the Presidency. In this case he will meet resistance at once but will have his way in the long run. Or he can begin by giving way to the views of the congressional leaders, almost all of whom are more prejudiced than Senator Taft. In this case the congressional leaders will continue to have their way nine times out of ten. And no one knows which alternative Dewey will choose.

Dewey, Warren to Stump Nation in All-Out Campaign

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 12 (U.P.)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican presidential candidate, will conduct a "vigorous, constructive" campaign from coast to coast in an effort to elect the GOP ticket "from top to bottom," it was announced today.

Herbert Brownell, jr., Dewey's campaign manager, said one of the most extensive drives in the history of the Republican Party was in the making, "even though we are away out in front." He said definite dates and places for major campaign speeches were being worked out with party leaders.

"Governor Dewey and Governor Warren will conduct a vigorous, constructive campaign and they will travel extensively throughout the country," Brownell told a press conference. He added that many requests for personal appearances have been received from Southern and so-called border States.

Brownell made the announcement after a lengthy conference with Dewey, New York National Committeeman J. Russel Sprague, and other campaign leaders.

He said "many thousands of Democrats and independents" are coming over to the GOP cause.

Dewey's top political adviser refused to be drawn out on whether the high cost of living would be a major issue of the campaign. He also refused to comment on the public reaction to the special session of Congress.

"The people are shocked and surprised at the attitude President Truman has shown in attempting to cover up the Communist infiltration in our national Government," Brownell said. "Our mail shows much more interest in the Communist investigation than anything that happened in Washington in the last three weeks."

Fair Practice Employment Office Set Up

Acting Secretary of Labor John W. Gibson yesterday created a fair employment office in the Labor Department.

He said it is the first to be set up in the executive branch under the President's July 26 order to eliminate discrimination in Federal Government jobs.

Gibson said his own directive goes further than Mr. Truman's order. He said it applies not only to departmental employes and job applicants, but to the public serviced by the department through such agencies as the Apprenticeship Training Service.

He estimated the order covers more than 3300 employes in Washington and regional offices across the country.

Gibson appointed Thacher Winslow as fair employment officer. Winslow will appraise the department's present hiring policies and handle cases of discrimination which may arise. A system of hearings and appeals is provided in event that such cases are not settled by agreement.

The order directs personnel officers and bureau heads to fill jobs only on the basis of merit and fitness without discrimination as to race, color, religion or national origin.

Warning Given Gov. Jester By Dixiecrats

Houston, Tex., Aug. 12 (AP).—Texas States' Rights Democrats, who last night were hosts for the formal opening of the Southerners' presidential campaign, today threatened Gov. Beauford Jester with opposition in the November general election.

The threat came as Nowlin Randolph, president of the Houston Bar Association, nominated E. E. Townes, Houston attorney, as permanent chairman for a Texas States' Rights strategy mass meeting.

Randolph threatened Jester with November opposition unless the September State Democratic convention in Fort Worth "is handled in a legal way."

Reminding the approximately 200 States' Righters attending the meeting of the fate of Charles I of England and Louis XVI of France, Randolph commented:

"We don't decapitate political leaders today who flout the will of the people, but we might be able to get them out of office.

"We ought to tell Lord Beauford, the Duke of Jester, that there is no need for him to bear any further the responsibilities of his high office and that he can leave the 'people's path' and follow the dim patch that leads to Corsicana and oblivion."

10 Victims of Thirst Found in Sahara Desert

Casablanca, Morocco, Aug. 12 (AP).—The bodies of 10 more men who apparently died of thirst were found today in the Sahara Desert where the temperature has reached more than 150 degrees Fahrenheit in the sun. The bodies of three travelers were found in the area Monday.

The 10 victims found today had been working on a railway line. They were said to have been Arabs.

U. S., Britain Plan Joint Maneuvers

Frankfurt, Aug. 12.—For the first time since the end of the war, American and British troops will engage in joint large-scale maneuvers lasting two weeks at Grafenwohr in the United States zone, beginning September 8, European Command headquarters disclosed today.

A battalion of British paratroopers, numbering 1000 men, will join in the war games over the 50,000-acre area now being used as a permanent training ground for the United States occupation forces.

A squadron of United States zone constabulary will participate in French army maneuvers in the French zone beginning Tuesday.

Britain Cuts Tobacco Ration Another 4%

London, Aug. 12 (AP).—Manufacturers cut cigarette and tobacco supplies another 4 per cent today. Shops rationed customers to 10 smokes a day. Some retailers went out of business.

The manufacturers' action came a month after the Labor government reduced by one sixth the amount of tobacco they could use. The government said it acted to save dollars.

Picket Line Violence Costs Alleged Red NLRB Job Appeal

The National Labor Relations Board refused yesterday to reinstate a worker discharged by an employer because of alleged Communist leaning and for violence on a picket line.

The board sidestepped a direct ruling on the Communist issue but upheld the discharge for picket-line violence.

It overruled Trial Examiner T. B. Smoot who recommended that Dearborn Glass Co., Chicago, be required to reinstate Mary Anderson, a member of the United Auto Workers (CIO). The company said it discharged her because of picket-line violence during a strike in July, 1946. It said it should not be required to reinstate her because it believed she was a member of the Communist Party.

The woman denied party membership or that she ever attended meetings of the Communist Party.

Smoot found she was discharged because of her union activities which he said was a violation of the Taft-Hartley law.

Retail Sales Of Appliances Climb in Area

By S. Oliver Goodman

Sales of electric appliances in Washington and two nearby Maryland counties increased in June, following the previous month's sharp slump.

Hills

Seven of 11 categories showed sales gains in June, according to a retail sales compilation by William Hills, managing director of the Electric Institute of Washington. In May, nine of the 11 categories were lower as compared with the same month last year.

Feature of the month was the continued expansion in sales of television sets, Hills pointed out. June sales in video totaled 1575 sets, against 139 in the same month last year.

Meanwhile, appliance sales for the first six months this year continued substantially higher than in the same 1947 period in most categories. Sharpest gains were in the radio field, followed by refrigerators.

Sales figures for June and the first six months this year compared as follows with the same 1947 periods:

	June, 1947	June, 1948	6 mos. of 1947	6 mos. of 1948
Ranges	359	358	1,836	2,462
Refrigerators	2406	2,413	8,139	12,489
Oil burners	411	157	2,113	853
Ironers	72	72	917	757
Washers	1,496	1,901	8,923	11,276
Water heaters	141	175	1,889	1,158
Radios	2,573	2,829	29,435	38,193
Radio-phono	711	944	8,363	7,259
Television	139	1,575	1,110	7,397
Vac. cleaners	1,136	959	4,748	7,443
Roasters	163	200	1,818	1,366

The figures are based on retail sales data filed by Institute members and cover the District of Columbia, Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties.

STILL CLIMBING: July sales of Potomac Electric Power Co. totaled 182,811,761 kilowatt hours, an increase of 13.3 per cent over the same month last year. In the District of Columbia alone, sales aggregated 156,216,099 kilowatt hours last month, up 12.5 per cent.

ODD LOTS: Before the war, hotels broke even when 61 per cent of their rooms were occupied. Now they must fill 84 per cent of their rooms, American Hotel Association estimates . . . One of New York's most famous hotels, the 2000-room Hotel Pennsylvania, formally was sold to Hotels Statler Co., Inc., in a multi-million deal . . . Auto output this week is estimated at 102,368 units against 103,916 last week . . . Ingot and steel production totaled 50,145,401 tons during first seven months this year, against 48,917,242 in similar period last year.

FANCY COSTS: Among factors listed as pushing up your auto insurance costs are fancy fenders and elaborate radiator grills. Records show that it costs 100 per cent more to settle property damage claims now than in 1941. The new-type fenders including headlights, tail-lights and a substantial portion of the body make for higher repair bills, according to an analysis by the National Association of Insurance Agents.

BONDS CALLED: Secretary of the Treasury Snyder announced yesterday that all outstanding 2 per cent Treasury bonds of 1948-50, dated December 8, 1939, are called for redemption on December 15. There are $571,431,150 of these bonds outstanding. The action is part of the Government's campaign against inflation. The redemption of this issue will tighten the bond market by removing the securities from dealing, and will reduce bank holdings of the issue. The latter in turn will reduce the amount of commercial lending which banks may carry on using the Treasury bonds as a reserve.

Flash Flood at Riverdale Halts Traffic, Washes Out Bridge, Submerges Roadways

JUST LIKE OCEAN CITY—Youngsters of the 6600 block of Edmonston rd., near East Riverdale, Md., romp in the flooded street after heavy rain played a repeat performance in the Riverdale area yesterday. A half-inch fall sent Maske's Creek overflowing its banks to stop traffic and flood streets in a three-block area

Houses Are Damaged And Edmonston Road Span Is Washed Out

Soggy Washington was hit with more than a half inch of rain yesterday while a flash flood in the Riverdale, Md., area damaged scores of houses and submerged roadways.

At least 25 homes in a three-block area in the town of Riverdale were swamped by raging waters, according to Fire Chief Lance Reed.

The bridge on Edmonston rd. between Riverdale and Greenbelt was washed out. All streets in Riverdale except Riverdale rd. were impassable at the height of the siege.

Area Hardest Hit

The area bounded by Edmonston rd., 54th ave., Riverdale rd. and Powhatan st. was hardest hit, fire department workers reported.

They said two engine pumps and an auxiliary pump were in constant service from 5 p. m. until 5:30, when 10 basements had been pumped out. They expected to finish with other homes during the night.

An overflow along the banks of Maske's Creek in East Riverdale sent water swirling through streets and into basements in the 6600 block of Edmonston rd. A number of automobiles were stalled, and police were sending traffic through in slow single file.

The south side of the creek was under water over a two-block area.

Yesterday's rainfall in Greater Washington amounted to .75 of an inch. Rain that began the day before continued up until 10:20 a. m., according to the Weather Bureau.

All told, 2.5 inches were recorded for the 24-hour period ending at 6 p. m.

The afternoon downpour began at 2 o'clock and lasted until 4:40 p. m. The temperature dropped from 80 to 70 degrees between 2 and 3:18 o'clock. High for the day was 83, checked at 1:28 p. m., and low was the 70 recorded less than two hours later.

An assortment of boating mishaps were reported in the Baltimore area, with 12 persons safe and dry after narrow escapes. Four of them were missing most of the night after their speedboat capsized, but they returned safely yesterday.

In Washington, the weatherman said no more rain was forecast for today. The weather should be partly cloudy, with highest temperature about 85 degrees.

School 'Workshop' Resounds With More Divergent Views

Montgomery County's teaching program underwent more verbal overhauling yesterday as parents and school officials met for the second of three sessions to find out what's wrong with the school curriculum.

Officials said attendance at yesterday's workshop held at Richard Montgomery High School, Rockville, was less than half that of the first session held two weeks ago. Some 50 parents were present yesterday.

Mothers made up the large majority of the parents. Among the few fathers present was John H. Hiser, Bethesda theater owner, leader of an indignant parents group protesting the quality of teaching in some county schools.

The Hiser group is asking that more emphasis be placed on the fundamentals of education, especially the three Rs.

"Children count too much on their fingers now and they do not know the multiplication tables," Hiser told Mrs. Ruth Gue, elementary school supervisor, during the discussion of arithmetic.

Interest at the workshop centered in arithmetic and social studies. Eleven committees had been set up to study certain subjects during the month-long workshop, but some could not function yesterday because of lack of attendance.

The policy of "skipping" parts of the multiplication table to return to them later was scored by Hiser and other parents. In reply, school officials said some of the tables are "skipped" because they are more difficult and are more easily learned at a later date.

More uniform teaching of subjects throughout county schools, and homework assignments were also requested by the parents.

Assistant Superintendent of Schools E. Merritt Douglass told the parents of the dangers of "overlearning" caused by premature study of a subject and the differences in children's aptitudes. This factor accounts for some of the school practices criticized by the parents, he said.

The second half of the second session between parents and educators will be held at 8 p. m. today in the Richard Montgomery High School. The third and final session is set for August 24-25.

In another development, Dr. Edwin W. Broome, county superintendent of schools, disclosed that booklets on communism prepared by the House Committee on Un-American Activities will be furnished all county teachers for use as background material.

Use of the 30-page booklet, he said, would "promote a better understanding of communism and a way to help guard against it." The booklets are being furnished by the Chevy Chase Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

2 Men Seized Lugging Grips Held in Bond as Housebreakers

There was something incongruous, the detectives reasoned, in the spectacle of two men lugging four apparently heavily loaded suitcases along the 1400 block of P st. nw. so early in the morning—1:30 a. m.

So Detective Sergts. Nunzio Bonaccorsy and James Roche and Precinct Detective R. V. Gary, all of the robbery squad on a routine cruise, stopped the men with a few pertinent questions.

The replies didn't sound right, so the suitcase toters, Franklin Nickens, 26, of 1737 Seaton st. nw., and Joseph Cooper, 18, of 2143 9th st. nw., and their luggage were taken to headquarters.

There the suitcases were opened revealing linens, blankets, silverware and similar household valuables, which the men confessed removing from the home of Mrs. William W. Mathewson, 2020 R st. nw. Mrs. Mathewson was out of town with her family at the time. Entry was made by breaking a rear door panel.

At the residence, the detectives found the first floor and basement cleaned out of everything movable except furniture. On the second, third and fourth floors, silverware and a multitude of other items were neatly stacked together as if ready for quick removal.

Arraigned before Municipal Court Judge Armond Scott, later in the day, Nickens was held in $3000 bond and Cooper in $1000 bond for a continued hearing August 19 on housebreaking charges. Police said Nickens had been paroled in 1947 from District Jail, where he had been serving time for housebreaking.

In a double housebreaking, 170 war bonds of $25, $50 and $100 denominations and two diamond rings were reported stolen from the home of Allison G. Acton, 2612 32d st. se., last Sunday and Wednesday. Total value of the bonds could not be ascertained.

Police also were seeking the intruder who broke into the filling station office of Leon J. Edelin, 3107 Bladensburg rd. ne., Wednesday and removed a money bank containing $17.

In another theft a metal box containing $175 in cash and $2344 in checks yesterday was reported stolen from the Harry H. Conrad Co., 1430 Irving st. nw.

Judge Hears Naked Truth, Forced to Free Stewed Nude

A charge of stealing a pair of dungarees was dismissed yesterday against a 30-year-old laborer, who was accused of wearing nothing but an "awful look on his face" when he took the pants from a clothesline.

The defendant, Cooper Johnson, of 53 H st. sw., told Municipal Court Judge Armond Scott that he was so drunk the night of the theft that he couldn't remember anything that had happened.

Mrs. Catherine Yates, of 485 N st. sw., told the court she saw Johnson in her back yard about 1:45 a. m. August 11.

"He didn't have a stitch of clothes on. He was absolutely naked. He had an awful look on his face," she declared. She said she told him to go away, and when she looked out back a few minutes later, her husband's dungarees were missing from the clothesline.

Pvt. William G. Wood, of the Fourth Precinct, said Johnson was clad only in the dungarees and a pair of socks, when arrested.

Johnson's attorney, E. Roosevelt Page, asked for a dismissal of the case on the grounds that Johnson had been held by police 32 hours after he confessed before he was brought into court.

Judge Scott denied the request with the remark: "If he had been held for that period before police got a confession, I might grant your request. Under the circumstances, particularly since police said they needed more time for investigation, I cannot do it."

Judge Scott finally dismissed both the charge of petit larceny of the dungarees and a charge of attempted housebreaking on the grounds that Johnson was too drunk to form intent.

2 Men Hurt Speeding From Police

D. C. Truck Crashes Into Telephone Pole; Pursuers Say Pair Hit 70 Miles an Hour

Two Washington men were injured yesterday when their speeding truck crashed into a telephone pole in Arlington County as they were pursued by police.

The men, Eugene H. Johnson, 26, of 32 K st. ne., and Walter A. Lewis, 31 Logan ct. nw., were admitted to Alexandria Hospital with possible skull fractures.

According to Lieut. James W. Baber and Sergt. Francis N. Johnson, who were off duty and driving in Baber's car, the truck passed them at about 70 miles an hour almost forcing Baber's car off the roadway on Route 1, Alexandria.

Baber sped after the truck. Just as the heavy vehicle rumbled over the Arlington County line, it swerved and smashed into the pole, the policeman reported.

The truck was operated by Johnson, an employe of the Ehrlich Poultry Co., 1259 4th st. ne., owner of the vehicle.

In another accident yesterday, Judith Roberts, 3, Route 3, Gaithersburg, suffered a fractured leg shortly before 7 p. m. when she was hit by an auto as she swerved her toy wagon across Travilah rd., near her home. The child was admitted to Suburban Hospital, Bethesda.

Pvt. William C. Barton, 31, of the Fifth Precinct, suffered back injuries when the patrol wagon in which he was riding collided with a truck at 4th and F sts. sw. He was treated at the Police Clinic.

Driver of the patrol wagon, Pvt. Glenn M. Griffin, 31, also of the Fifth Precinct, and John N. Head, 23, 1530 Simms dr. se., driver of the truck, were directed to appear at the corporation counsel's office for a hearing Tuesday. Damage to the patrol wagon was estimated at $500. The truck's damage was set at $150.

New Parking Firm Elects First Officers

Election of officers and appointment of a committee to raise $50,000 working capital for "fringe" parking featured the initial meeting yesterday of the Merchants' Parking Corp.

Maj. Gen. David McCoach was elected president at the meeting in the Second National Bank of the downtown merchants' group which plans to operate a series of parking lots with shuttle bus service to downtown Washington.

The organization, recently incorporated in Delaware, hopes to raise its working capital among downtown merchants, a spokesman said, inasmuch as its prime purpose is not money making but indirect profit through increasing business in downtown stores.

Preliminary plans also were made at the meeting for closing deals for the first three parking lots the group has been considering. These include one in Temple Heights at the intersection of Florida and Connecticut aves. nw.; another at 26th and E sts. nw., near the Christian Heurich Brewery, and another, part of the Municipal Center parking lot now in operation at John Marshall pl. and C st. nw.

Total Charge 45 Cents

Merchants Parking Corp. hopes to provide parking and shuttle bus service for a total charge of 45 cents.

In addition to General McCoach, the officers include: George Quirk, vice president; John A. Reilly, treasurer; Arthur J. Sundlun, secretary, and Joseph C. McGarraghy, counsel.

Besides the officers, the directors include: Jennings Snider, Frank R. Jelleff, Andrew Parker, Morris Cafritz, B. B. Burgunder, jr., Carter Barron, and one yet to be elected.

Members of the executive committee include McCoach, Quick, Reilly, Sundlun and Parker.

Members of the finance committee and the groups from which they will seek capital include: Parker, general chairman, department stores; Sundlun, other retail merchants; Edward C. Baltz, building associations, and Reilly, banks.

WSSC Sets Water, Sewer Line Record

More water and sewer lines have been constructed in Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties during the past year than all other Maryland counties and cities combined.

A total of $7,883,000 in water and sewer construction was expended by the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission in the two counties to surpass even Baltimore city which recorded only $3,984,000 in such construction.

The WSSC said it had built almost 115 miles of water main and sewers to compare with only 37 miles in Baltimore city.

Included in the Montgomery County and Prince Georges programs a spokesman said, were 50 miles of water mains and 63 miles of sewer lines.

A total of 4575 new water connections were made and there were 4258 sewer connections. The connections provided service to 25,000 additional persons.

SUMMER PUPILS—Above are some of the pupils in the Webster Americanization School, which is closing its summer course after turning newcomers into more knowing Americans

"God be with you till we meet again,
By his counsel's guide, uphold you,
In his arms securely fold you;
God be with you till we meet again."

The students in the functional class at the Webster Americanization School chanted over the words together, hesitating a little over the word "guide."

Some nationalities in the class wanted to pronounce the "u" in guide. Then the teacher, Mrs. Caroline K. Gray, who has been at the Americanization School for 14 years, went on to explain something else that went with the verse:

"Goodby," she said, "is a contraction, a going together of God be with you."

The class nodded.

No Compulsion to Attend

It was the next to last day of the Americanization School's summer session. It had rained early in the morning and the students began straggling in about 9 o'clock. There is no compulsion to attend and some do not arrive until they have finished their housework.

Mrs. Gray's class is made up of such people.

There is Mrs. Jennie Smith of 5134 8th st. nw., mother of seven children, five of them boys. Her family is raised and college educated. Now she is starting her own education in English.

During the summer term, Mrs. Gray has taught her pupils how to write checks, make out money orders (most are sending some money abroad), and deposit money in savings accounts.

Ironically enough, one student in the class, an elderly man, had been signing his checks with an X until he attended Americanization class. When he proudly presented his signature at the bank the cashier refused to honor it—at least until explanations were made.

Although school is "out" today for the Americanization students, there is no slackening of their interest, no wild feeling of joy at being released from classroom drudgery.

Most of the students—ranging from 10 to 70-odd—will be back when the fall term starts. All of them are eager, inquisitive learners.

Mrs. Howard Judson, former Adams School teacher who started at Webster School this summer, pointed out the contrast between Americanization students and regular school students.

"These people are so proud when they learn something. It is amazing how quickly they advance. They do not accept learning as a matter of course."

Through the medium of the 850-odd words of basic English, teachers at the school are giving students a working vocabulary they may expand to full English whenever they are ready.

The Webster Americanization School, designed to prepare aliens for United States citizenship, is part of the public school system of the District of Columbia and is financed by District funds.

In the advanced class yesterday Miss Lura M. Bulick, who has been teaching at Webster for the past seven years, was giving her class a lesson in economics:

"Cost denotes the money paid by the purchaser of a thing.

"Price is the sum asked by the seller.

"Value is what the article is considered to be worth on various grounds, sentimental or otherwise."

There are "standard" properties in the school rooms at Webster. A bust or picture of George Washington, the pledge of allegiance to the flag, a recitation of the four freedoms. They are not "properties" to the students—Crete, Spartan, Italian, French, Armenian, Greek, Peruvian, Spanish, Russian, German, Polish, Cuban, Turkish, Chinese, Japanese, Austrian—who have gone there to learn how to be Americans.

Vincent Stack Begins Duties As Land Officer of NCPPC

Vincent E. Stack of 4801 Connecticut ave. nw., World War II Marine colonel, yesterday was sworn in as land purchasing officer for the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Stack, most recently director of the appraisal and land division of the Public Housing Administration, succeeds the late Norman C. Brown, who died July 8.

Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant III, NCPPC chairman, in announcing the appointment, said Stack was selected from some 10 applicants, among other reasons, because of his "familiarity with Washington and environs . . ."

Stack, a native of Macedon, N. Y., came to Washington as a child and attended Central High School and Georgetown Law School. Subsequently he trained in the United States Marine Officers' School.

Following World War I service, Stack was associated with real estate firms in Washington and Palm Beach, Fla., and also served with the International Banking Corp. During the '20s he was manager for the National City Bank branch in Trujillo City, Dominican Republic.

In 1934 he became an official of the housing division of the Public Works Administration, serving in various capacities until he reentered the Marines in 1941. During World War II he served in Guadalcanal under Gen. A. A. Vandegrift.

He is married to the former Eve Reynolds. They have no children.

Falls Church City Planners Meet Tonight

Four major problems affecting the city status and future annexation plans of Falls Church, Va., will be tackled tonight at a special meeting of the incoming city council.

The community of Falls Church will officially become a city Monday. The future council, which takes office September 1, will recommend action on the four points to the present council.

According to Mayor-elect Albert Orme, the new council meeting at 8 p. m. in the Town Hall will study:

1. Bids of two engineering firms to survey possible Falls Church annexation of 1 square mile of adjoining Fairfax County territory.

2. How to transfer tax authority from Fairfax County to the new city. The city, which will levy all local taxes, will have to rebate only the school tax to Fairfax.

3. Recommendations for nominees to the new Falls Church post of commissioner of revenue as well as treasurer and Police Court

Flare-ups Mark Fare Increase Hearing

PUC Chairman Charges Opponents Have Failed to Show Single Fact

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Further flareups marked the tenth day of the temper-ridden Capital Transit Co. fare raise hearings yesterday before the District Public Utilities Commission.

Harry R. Booth, the counsel for the Washington Committee for Consumer Protection, momentarily withdrew from the case, but on reconsideration decided to continue.

His action followed a charge by PUC Chairman James H. Flanagan and Assistant Corporation Counsel Lloyd B. Harrison, PUC counsel, that Booth's witnesses at yesterday afternoon's session "have not produced a single fact," but had instead offered only opinions.

Says Fair Hearing Denied

Booth retorted that the commission had not permitted a fair hearing in this case."

Angrily, Harrison, who was seated a few feet from Booth, jumped up and moved that the PUC exclude Booth from the hearing "for contemptuous action."

Flanagan, the PUC chairman, decided "not to adopt the suggestion of the counsel, although the suggestion is very tempting." He repeated that Booth had "not presented one iota of evidence."

An earlier witness, Mrs. Sylvia Wubnig, representative of the Washington League of Women Shoppers, drew fire from John H. Connaughton, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, who appeared for his group.

Connaughton asked whether the league had been listed as a subversive organization and whether her membership in the federation had been questioned on that ground. Booth objected to both questions as irrelevant and Flanagan sustained the objections.

Predict Traffic Cut

Mrs. Wubnig, and Carey DeWitt Elridge, George Washington University professor and representative of the Progressive Party of the District, both contended that a rise in rates would reduce bus and streetcar traffic further and force a further request for a fare boost.

Connaughton at Wednesday's hearing said his group supported a 13-cent, three tokens for 35 cents and a $1.75 weekly pass. The CTC has asked 15 cents, two tokens for 25 cents and a $1.85 weekly pass.

Earlier witnesses complained that old vehicles are used on routes through Negro areas and that motormen are discourteous.

The chief engineer of the PUC, Fred A. Sager, told the hearing that checks made "about every three months" indicate that the firm is in "substantial compliance" with minimum operating standards with few exceptions.

The day's hearing opened with statements by three governmental witnesses on population, Federal employment and the cost of living.

Howard G. Brunsman of the Bureau of Census estimated the population last year at 861,000, a boost of 29.8 per cent over an actual count in 1940 of 663,091.

John W. Mitchell of the Statistics Division, Civil Service Commission, said Federal employment here (excluding military forces) would increase about 1000 a month during the next year, but this addition would not offset the drop which took place from June 30, 1945, on. The level then was 258,000 and last month was 206,116.

Mrs. Ethel D. Hoover, chief of the consumers' prices branch of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, testified that retail prices here have risen 7.8 per cent in the period from May, 1947 to May 1948, as compared to a 9.3 per cent rise in all large cities during the same period.

The information from the three witnesses had been requested by Booth as an indication whether the firm's prediction of declining traffic was justified.

Bootlegger Makes 110th Court Visit

David Douglas Davenport, 32, self-confessed Union Station bootlegger, made his 110th appearance this year in Municipal Court yesterday.

He was brought in on four charges of illegally selling whisky and two charges of illegally keeping and selling whisky in the railroad station.

Pleading not guilty, he was ordered held under $1500 bond for a jury trial, set for October 8. Another charge of disorderly conduct was continued to August 18.

Capt. W. A. Peel, head of the Washington Terminal Police, said Davenport was arrested on the ABC violations in Union Station Wednesday night. He had been arrested on a warrant for being disorderly August 2.

During the past year, Davenport paid more than $250 in fines and served 30 days in jail. Charges against him have ranged from assault to vagrancy. He has no fixed address.

Tips for Those Afoot

If you can't spend Friday the thirteenth (today) safely tucked away in bed, here are some tips from the Red Cross for breaking the day's traditional jinx:

While the Red Cross doesn't exactly advocate walking under ladders, it insists there's more danger in tripping over a curb in an attempt to avoid them.

It doesn't find fault with shying away from black cats in one's path, but feels it is more important for pedestrians to keep out of the path of automobiles, black or any other color.

The worst thing about breaking a mirror is not seven years' bad luck, but the danger of cutting one's fingers on the broken pieces.

Finally, the Red Cross cautions the public to follow simple precautions to prevent accidents at all times, just as though every day were Friday the thirteenth.

Boys Give 'Benefit'

If the Arlington Hospital campaign for $85,000 succeeds, it may be due in no small measure to the efforts of four young thespians.

Hospital authorities said yesterday the author-producer-director-star of an original play, "Tarzan and the Crooks," yesterday brought three members of his cast with $4 for the fund.

The versatile doner was Bobby Mendelsohn, 10, son of Dr. and Mrs. Matthew Mendelsohn, of 3921 N. 5th st., Arlington. Bobby said he "just thought the play up in bed one night."

Bobby and his brother, Barry, 6, together with Harry Zackrison, 11, and Michael Cardoza, 8, all residents of Buckingham Apartments, presented the play in a courtyard last week. Despite a downpour, the show went on. Admission charge was 5 cents.

Injured in Ball Game

Louis Lethbridge, 41-year-old Ashton, Md., farmer, blocked home plate wisely but too well in a softball game at the Montgomery County Farm Bureau picnic yesterday and wound up in the hospital.

Lethbridge, catching in the game played at the New Farm Bureau Fair Grounds in Gaithersburg, Md., suffered a fractured right leg and possible fractured left leg as a result of the home plate collision. He was given first aid on the scene by Chief Charles M. Fox of the Gaithersburg Rescue Squad and taken to Montgomery County General Hospital by the rescue squad.

'Please' vs. 'Greetings'

Montgomery County authorities have learned that the pen can be mightier than a law suit.

County Treasurer John B. Diamond said yesterday a total of $3825 in back taxes has been received in response to 60 warning letters to persons who owed personal property taxes. The letters were sent out in June by County Attorneys F. Barnard Welsh and Thomas C. Kelley.

Melon Salesman Sought

Police broadcast a lookout yesterday for a watermelon salesman who reportedly made off with $250 gained in disposing of 400 melons here since last week.

Harry C. Gunn, 37, of Richmond, Va., said he came to Washington with the load of fruit and hired a man with sandy hair, about 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighing 185 pounds, to help sell the load.

He helped, Gunn said, and also disappeared with $250 which he collected in the process.

'Temporary Divorce' Forced By Work System, Says Priest

Failure to achieve mental or spiritual union in modern marriages is probably more common today than instances of unsuccessful physical union in marriage, the Rev. Edward Dowling, S. J., of St. Louis, Mo., said last night.

Speaking to about 1000 students at the final evening session of the Summer School of Catholic Action at Catholic University, Father Dowling said the "industrial system forces man and wife together when they are both nervous and weary." "The same system" he added, "forbids them even a brief friendly telephone call when they are at their best."

Called "Temporary Divorce"

This "temporary divorce," which he said is forced on married couples "six days a week," strikes a "dagger" at the unity of married couples. It results in the "twin bigamies"—a husband's attachment to his business and a wife's attachment for "her" children.

Father Dowling said "business comes out all right in the arrangement," but the "children of a mother" are at a serious handicap when pitted against the children of a happily united couple.

The Rev. Daniel A. Lord, S. J., director of the school session, called upon the students to "pledge" themselves to the "Eucharistic Crusade" of the Knights of the Blessed Sacrament, a voluntary association of churchmen and women who vow to take the Holy Communion once a week.

Crusade Revived

Father Lord announced that the "crusade," which had five million members after World War I and had been allowed to "die out," is now being revived." He concluded:

"Anyone to whom Christ says: 'Would you go to Christ once a week' and who denies Him, is losing faith. Those persons are simply saying to Christ: 'Not completely, Lord; just for a while.'"

Silver Spring Fete to Open New Underpass

A gala celebration is planned by Silver Spring (Md.) for the formal opening on September 11 of the Georgia ave. viaduct underpassing the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks.

Gov. William Preston Lane of Maryland will cut the ribbon to let the first automobile pass through the million-dollar underpass, begun 14 months ago.

Two-Hour Parade

Charles H. Kopeland, executive secretary of the Silver Spring Board of Trade and chairman of the "Avenue of Progress" committee in charge, said a two-hour parade from the District line to the underpass would precede the ribbon-cutting ceremonies.

The parade will proceed north on Georgia ave., turn at Colesville rd. to Dale dr. and end at the new Montgomery Blair High School Stadium.

The allied civic groups have arranged for a pageant at the stadium, to be concluded at about 6 p. m. by the appearance of Miss Mary Jane Owens, recently crowned as "Miss Silver Spring."

Street dancing from 9 p. m. until midnight in front of the Silver Spring Postoffice will be sponsored by the Silver Spring Moose Lodge.

Groups Sponsor Floats

Industrial, civic, commercial and fraternal groups will be represented by floats in the parade, and all branches of the armed forces have been asked to participate, Kopeland said.

The retail merchants' division of the Silver Spring Board of Trade has promised financial backing for the celebration, which will cost more than $4000, Kopeland estimated.

Delays in completion of the underpass have stirred complaints from Silver Spring merchants. Blair Lee 5d, president of the Board of Trade, estimated two million dollars in gross sales had been lost to the merchants while traffic was detoured.

Private funeral services for Stuart H. Cramer, 65, who died Tuesday at his home, 1747 Irving st. nw., will be held today, with burial in Arlington Cemetery.

A native of Marinette, Wis., Mr. Cramer came to Washington 10 years ago from Syracuse, N. Y. He had been an employe of Warner Brothers Tivoli Theater here for six years at the time of his death. He had previously served with the Navy aboard the battleship Connecticut from 1906 to 1910.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Mary Cramer.

Harrington, Retired Hack Inspector, Dies

Lieut. Joseph D. Harrington, 64, retired hack inspector for the Metropolitan Police, died yesterday at his home, 1423 36th st. nw.

"Uncle Joe," as he was affectionately known to more than 7000 Washington taxicab drivers whose activities he governed with almost paternal care, had been in ill health with bronchial asthma for some time before his retirement last March 1.

Lt. Harrington

Lieutenant Harrington served two terms as hack inspector, the only man to do so, from 1925 to 1930 and from 1941 until his retirement.

On May 8, after finally relinquishing his hack inspector post, the veteran policeman was honored at an American League baseball game by "Uncle Joe's Angels," as the late Col. Ed Kelly once termed the city's hackers. At home plate ceremonies he was presented with an automobile and a trust fund of nearly $4000, all raised by subscriptions from his cabbie friends.

Numerous Tributes Voiced

"You couldn't find a man more square and honest than 'Uncle Joe,'" Arthur S. Harder, president of the Taxicab Advisory Council of Washington, said when he received news of Lieutenant Harrington's death. Harder recalled how the hack inspector urged all hackers during the war to do everything possible to help visitors and servicemen in the city.

Typical comments from cabbies at the time of his retirement expressed the respect and love his "angels" bore for him: "He'd always give a guy a break . . . a lie didn't ever pay with Joe . . . If you were honest he'd break his neck for you . . . A real guy . . . Best hack inspector Washington ever had."

Born in Georgetown, Lieutenant Harrington attended parochial schools and St. John's College. He joined the police force in 1918 and was assigned to bicycle duty in the Third Precinct. He served in the First Precinct under Capt. (later Supt.) Ernest W. Brown and was moved to the Traffic Bureau when his precinct commander was made inspector in charge of traffic.

"Uncle Joe" was once called "Courtesy Joe" by Colonel Kelly when he selected him as a model traffic policeman to instruct others in the finer aspects of such duty.

Headed Police Details

For 12 years he was in charge of the police detail at the Daughters of the American Revolution convention. He served as marshal of the American Automobile Association schoolboy patrol parade for eight years and on several occasions was in charge of the police escort for Hollywood stars here for the President's birthday ball.

During World War II he cooperated with the Office of Defense Transportation and the Office of Price Administration, leading police efforts to break up victimizing of servicemen by a few unscrupulous drivers.

His record shows 14 commendations during his nearly 30 years' service to the citizens of Washington as a policeman.

An unobtrusive man, Lieutenant Harrington's greatest pleasure was getting behind the wheel of his automobile and driving through the streets, crowded with "his" cab drivers. He was often on the streets until the early hours of the morning, watching over the cabbies; ever willing to help them out if in difficulty, but as prompt to censure when merited.

Lieutenant Harrington is survived by two brothers, John A. Harrington, with whom he lived at the 36th st. address, and William L. Harrington, Ferguson, Mo.

From 1940 to 1942 he served as executive officer of the Miami air station and later as commanding officer. In December, 1942, he became air officer on the staff of the commander Caribbean Sea Frontier and at the same time commanding officer of a fleet air, and was awarded the Bronze Star during this service.

From August, 1944, to September, 1945, he was commanding officer of the aircraft carrier USS Bonhomme Richard and received the Legion of Merit at this time.

Peaches Declared 'Unfit'

3 Quit Hospital Board in Split Over Financing

Prince Frederick, Md., Aug. 12 (AP).—Four new members were serving on the board of directors of the Calvert County Hosptial today after a split over the use of slot machine receipts for a new hospital building.

Arthur W. Dowell, president of the 12-member board, said the group had accepted the withdrawal of Dr. Clarence Hutchins, Gorman Lyons and Austin Bowen.

The fourth vacancy occurred when Benjamin Hance, former chairman of the State Board of Motion Picture Censors, retired for health reasons.

Dowell said Hutchins objected to the method of financing the new hospital after it was approved by a public vote last June. He was joined by Dr. Hugh Ward, but Dowell said Ward had since withdrawn his resignation.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Hospital Corridors Instead of Baselines

Babe Was Baseball; Picture Isn't

By Orval Hopkins

I AM nearly defeated by the delicacy of the task of reporting on a movie about Babe Ruth when the big hitter seems to lie so near death. Certainly it can be said in all taste that "The Babe Ruth Story" opened yesterday at the Warner Theater, that a good crowd of men and boys queued up to see it, and that they cheered at its conclusion, a demonstration in which I heartily joined, though possibly for different reasons.

The truth is that I have seen, in a fairly representative cross-section of the working press, scarcely a good word said for this picture, and thus incited, I attended the Warner determined to find something to which I could point in cheery appreciation.

The story takes Ruth from his purported boyhood in a Baltimore saloon, through tenures with St. Mary's School, the Baltimore Orioles, the Boston Red Sox, the New York Yankees and the Boston Braves, and closes on brooding note with the Babe being wheeled on a cot down a gloomy hospital corridor. The baseball atmosphere is only of the sketchiest, consisting principally of shots of William Bendix, who plays Ruth, throwing, batting or trotting around the bases.

Bendix wears a big false nose for the portrayal and looks approximately as much like Ruth as I do, which there is no resemblance, if I may employ the patois. Bendix is quite acceptable batting left-handed and quite unacceptable throwing left-handed. This, of course, is no fault of Bendix's. If you don't throw left-handed you just don't, and the fact is apparent from any conceivable camera angle.

Not Much Baseball

The principal quarrel, it seems to me, that baseball followers and Babe Ruth worshipers will have with this film is that it's too much around the fringe and not enough a part of both the Babe and baseball. Babe Ruth was, after all, through no great aspiration of his own, the man who got baseball up on its feet after the debacle of the Black Sox scandal of 1919-20. He was baseball, in a sense, and he was the Yankees. His name was lent to aphorisms which became so common as to enter the great limbo of deathless cliches: The House That Ruth Built, and, As Ruth Goes, So Goes the Yankees. His life was baseball; he was the life of baseball.

Claire Trevor Good

I found Bendix mostly unsatisfactory as Ruth, and this is a crotchet I'm sure everybody will reserve the right to exercise. Claire Trevor does well enough as Mrs. Ruth, and Charles Bickford plays a priest, the same kindly man as nearly as I could tell that he portrayed in "Song of Bernadette" some years ago. Sam Levene turns in his usual professional job as Phil Conrad, a friend of Ruth, though he is asked to perform some unfortunate antics. Fred Lightner plays Miller Huggins, manager of the Yankees, and the characterization made me squirm.

There were one or two other items I objected to: the featuring of a song, "Singin' in the Rain," around the period of 1919-20, some 8 to 10 years, if memory serves, before it was written; the boys' choir, but presented as strictly a pickup gang, which crooned in highly professional manner, softly and tenderly, "Take Me Out to the Ball Game," as the Babe lay ill in a hospital; the unwarranted introduction of people like H. V. Kaltenborn, who is shown propounding the state of the Babe's condition in that last long sequence.

There is no question that this will be a hearty puller at the box office. The name of Babe Ruth is still magic. I wish a story of his life might have been better handled.

Feast of Color, Music and Costuming

'Judy's' a Lush Film About Some Other Gal

By Sonia Stein

THIS isn't the Judy Foster I know. And certainly not the Randolph Foster. And most certainly not the Father Foster.

"A Date With Judy," which opened yesterday morning at the Capitol Theater, is based on the characters in the NBC radio program of that name, but it's a far cry from the radio show.

However, in abundant repayment for ruining the characters of Judy's father and brother, and to some extent Judy herself, the film is a feast of color, music and the dressmaking art.

Jane Powell plays what's left of Judy with a nice ingenuous charm, and sings several of the delightful songs with which the picture is generously sprinkled.

When the story isn't busy making opportunities for Jane to sing, it goes thisaway. Judy has a patient admirer named Oogie, who gets treated just the way most patient suitors do. Judy falls in love with a handsome soda fountain clerk (working his way through college, of course) and gives Oogie the fast brush.

The Kid Sister

The handsome young man regards Judy as the mere child of 16 that she is, but finds Oogie's sister, Carol, beautiful. And nobody can gainsay that one. Carol is played by Elizabeth Taylor, who looks as if she had been copied from the cover of a candy box.

Meantime, Judy's father had been taking rumba lessons to surprise his wife on their anniversary, but Judy gets confused in her little mind and thinks father has developed Middle Age. The fact that Carmen Miranda is the rumba teacher probably excuses her from thinking what she thinks.

(And the fact that Carmen is teaching the rumba to Wallace Beery, who plays Judy's father, gives you some idea of the kind of humor that this picture has to offer.)

Xavier Cugat is around for laughs, too.

Scotty Beckett makes a very attractive Oogie and Robert Stack fits the handsome young man part with no edges slopping over.

Very Nice Threads

The dresses worn by Judy and Carol are "simply out of this world" as young ladies their age allegedly say. Helen Rose is the designer. Madame, my compliments.

"Judaline" and "It's a Most Unusual Day" are the outstanding musical goodies, but "I'm Strictly on the Corny Side," for which Alec Templeton wrote the music, and "Cuanto Le Gusto" are in there pitching.

Joe Pasternak produced this item for MGM, and among them what knows, that's said to account for its splendor.

There's much that's good in "A Date With Judy," and the Capitol has already discovered that the population is ready to push the doors down to see it. The theater has scheduled an extra show at 9 a. m. Saturday to ease the crush.

The stage show is also top drawer this week. I don't know what the Evans Family brags about when it is lining up bookings, but it could well brag about its costumes. Son and daughter dance very well, and when Mama and Papa start in it's easy to see where the second generation learned what it knows.

Terry Lawlor is refreshing—she chooses songs which tell a story and aren't worn to death, and has a voice besides.

Sam Jack Cavorts

The Pitchmen have a little gadget which is small enough to fit in the mouth and versatile enough to imitate any instrument in the orchestra. This sounds very dull indeed, but believe me it is not.

What with the essence of humor lying in timing, it's not surprising that humor in the dance is often the funniest kind there is. The Three Honey Brothers support my point. For a finale they drag Orchestra Leader Sam Jack Kaufman up on the stage and he turns out to be quite a comedian, too.

Lynn Allison is back again to sing with the house orchestra, and, as any Capitol habitue knows, that's good news.

D. C. Theater Deal Called Off Again

The Federal Works Agency yesterday turned down a third proposal for lease of the Old Belasco Theater.

The rejection was announced by Wallace Cohen, attorney for Joseph Curtis of New York, one of the original bidders.

While declining to divulge contents of the bid, Cohen admitted that he sought to have the Government assume some "limited responsibility" in event it cancels the lease in less than the proposed 10 years. Controversy on this point led to rejection of the original two bids.

Cohen, however, emphasized that Curtis, nephew of Harry Cohn, president of Columbia Pictures, plans to "continue to look until we find a place where we can put up a nondiscriminatory theater."

The American National Theater and Academy seeks the same objective. Officials are reported readying a new bid for submission to the FWA. ANTA also has announced that it will seek other quarters if efforts to obtain the Belasco collapse in entirety.

Lawyer Arrested In Franklin Park Asks Court Bill

Phillip Warren, 42, a New York lawyer, yesterday petitioned Municipal Court for a bill of particulars on his arrest last Tuesday on a charge of soliciting alms in Franklin Park.

In the petition he declared he would ask for the disbarment of the assistant United States attorney, who prosecuted the case, and who, he contends, held him up to ridicule and "caused him mortification."

The petition declared that he had resigned his position as legal adviser to the Chief Justice in Guam to carry on his humane work in Franklin Park. He declared that he organized the Franklin Park Civic and Humane Association, devoted to charitable purposes including aid to impoverished park habitues.

In the petition, Warren, who is on personal bond, said he would subpena hundreds of witnesses for his trial set for next Tuesday.

The assistant United States attorney who handled the case is C. Frank Reifsnyder.

5 Dead, $3,000,000 Lost in Sugar Strike

Georgetown, British Guiana, Aug. 12 (AP).—Five persons dead and a loss of three million dollars in export trade is the toll to date of a 15-week-old strike of plantation workers on the seven sugar estates lining the Demarara coast of this colony.

Since more than 6500 workers walked out last April 27 demanding higher pay and better working conditions, sugar exports have dropped an average of 9000 tons a month.

Rescigno Brilliant in 'Rigoletto'

By Paul Hume

Verdi's "Rigoletto" succeeded in intimidating wind and weather last night to recommence the Lyric Opera Association's two-week festival at the Watergate.

It was a variable performance, led with brilliance and fine motion by Nicholas Rescigno. His knowledge of traditions, mixed with sound musical intuition and conducting authority gave good support and guidance.

Robert Weede's embodiment of the title role is a well wrought conception. Vocally he handles the part with ease, and the bravura passages emerge in flaring vigor. His denunciation of the courtiers in act three won him one of the season's big tributes from the audience.

George Roberts made his operatic debut as the Duke of Mantua. Vocally he is not yet sure of himself. Thus his first aria, and the tenor line in the quartet came off fairly well while duets and later arias sounded little more than collegiate. His voice is a good one for the part, and he must contrive to improve its support, and to lend it some grace in phrasing.

Roberts has a fine figure for operatic tights. However, he must learn to use those long legs of his with ease and savoir faire, as well as to walk and gesture in a manner indicative of real presence.

Jane Frazier's Gilda was more on edge in production than her Rosina. Only in her big aria and at occasional moments later did she avoid that constricted tone which ruins so many coloratura sopranos. With her natural gift for opera, she ought to work at a more open style of singing.

The chorus sang its important assignments with true inflection, adding a great deal to the drama. Of the smaller roles, Bette Dubro's Maddalena was outstanding. That young lady knows where she is going and will get there. Nicholas DeMarzo was a sonorous, sinister Sparafucile, and Maria Pasca, Victor Tatozzi and Ralph Telasko handled their duties well.

Britain to Give France $204 Million Credit

Paris, Aug. 12 (NYHT).—Britain has agreed to give France 204 million dollars to cover French purchases from British sources during the year ending June 30, 1949.

The credit is designed to cover the gap between what France sells to the United Kingdom and the British Commonwealth and what she buys from them. It is the first concrete result of the payments plan to foster trade between European countries agreed to by the Organization for European Economic Cooperation three weeks ago and approved in principle by Economic Cooperation Administrator Paul G. Hoffman during his visit to Paris.

Drunk Driving Costs Boy, 16, $100 Fine

A 16-year-old Washington boy, Raymond E. Spears, 6615 8th st. nw., yesterday was convicted of driving while drunk and fined $100 by Trial Magistrate Arthur P. Owens of Hyattsville (Md.) Police Court.

Charged with four offenses following his arrest last Saturday by Police Chief Henry J. Nebel of Bladensburg, the youth was also convicted of speeding, acting in a disorderly manner and resisting an officer.

The boy, son of Oren Spears, a former park policeman, also was fined $25 on the speeding conviction. Fines totaling $35 on the other two charges were suspended.

Magistrate Owens said he would have been more lenient had the youth not been arrested in the District 25 hours before his arrest Saturday by Chief Nebel for traffic offenses. Charges of speeding, passing through two stop signs and turning out hislights are pending against the youth as a result of this arrest.

The youth, a Calvin Coolidge High School student now working in a filling station, had to be subdued with a pair of handcuffs, Chief Nebel testified.

Arabs Blamed in Destruction Of Jerusalem Water Station

Tel Aviv, Israel, Aug. 12 (AP).—Saboteurs today blasted the Latrun pumping station, vital to Jerusalem's water supply. The government of Israel declared the act constituted a glaring breach of the United Nations truce, "fraught with the gravest consequences."

At Haifa a United Nations spokesman said the blast had been reported to the U. N. Security Council at Lake Success as a truce violation by the Arabs. He said the Arab Legion was in control of the Latrun area and must be held responsible. The spokesman added, however, that a truckload of Arab "irregulars" had been seen near the station an hour before the blast.

The station had been held by the Arabs, but was placed in a "no man's land" yesterday by agreement between the Arab Legion and the United Nations. The station had been taken over by U. N. personnel and the Arabs had withdrawn about 1000 yards.

The blast wrecked U. N. plans to start delivering water to Jerusalem Friday.

The blast prompted the Israeli government to withdraw a previous agreement to evacuate the villages of Ajanjul and Buweira and permit unarmed Arabs to return.

The villages are situated near strategic Hill 312, which the Jews refused to yield. The hill overlooks the highway to Ramallah, an Arab strong point.

Foreign Minister Moshe Shertok sent a note to Count Folke Bernadotte, United Nation mediator, informing him of the decision to retain the villages.

"We feel we must review the whole position afresh in the light of this most glaring breach of truce," Shertok told Bernadotte.

No piped water has been available to Jewish residents of modern Jerusalem since a week before British forces withdrew from Palestine May 15.

BABE RUTH, who always could hit a longer ball than the late Lou Gehrig and with more flourish too, retained his championship on the Warner screen yesterday. The semidocumentary "Babe Ruth Story," measured alongside Hollywood's biography of Gehrig, "The Pride of the Yankees," keeps the Babe far out in front thanks to his two-hour stand-in, William Bendix.

POVICH

And no thanks to the Hollywood re-write men who corned up Bob Considine's original script. Bendix is a believable Babe Ruth who, saddled with some of the worst lines and situations ever handed an actor, waded smartly through the mess and gave the screen its best baseball picture.

During the 12 reels of "Pride of the Yankees," there was never any temptation to confuse lanky, gaunt Gary Cooper with husky Lou Gehrig and the producers had a loser from the moment they made that brash miscasting. But Bendix is a wonderful Babe Ruth, with girth, a nice wide putty nose, and a swashbuckle and heedlessness of everything but kids.

To a generation that perhaps never saw Babe Ruth play ball, Bendix is Babe Ruth, and he even had the old guys like us fooled for most of the picture.

THE "BABE RUTH STORY" has been catching it from the critics, and it's easy to fault it if you want to carp. It's no home run theatrically. Technically, it's full of flaws. Hollywood has laid it on thick enough to insult the hypercritical moviegoer. The movie tries to show Babe Ruth calling his famous 1932 world series home run shot into the center field bleachers in Cubs' Park, when any baseball fan can tell that Bendix is pulling the ball dead into right.

But the picture does make the Babe out to be the big, lovable guy that he is and that's what Bendix is, too, in the picture anyway.

I've never met him off the screen, so there can be no debate with me on that score. Bendix is a Ruth you'd like to believe, even if there are misgivings about it but I don't know if they've overdrawn it too much. He had me believing.

They could have left the anachronisms out—modern announcers like Mel Allen and Harry Wismer, well known to current radio audiences but swinging on the gate in 1932, purporting to give the play-by-play of Ruth's feats in those early days. But there I go, carping too, when I am saying I like the show.

BENDIX MOVED thruogh the whole story giving it a wonderful try, even when Hollywood called on him to get flip with Yankee Owner Jake Ruppert and Yankee Manager Miller Huggins, for laughs that were strict Hollywood manufacture and weren't Babe Ruth at all. But on Bendix the scenes almost looked good, which is probably the supreme compliment to his acting.

They wrung every last tear out of Ruth's well-known fondness for kids and over-did that, too, to a degree calculated to drive original story writer Considine to the nearest Picadilly bar if he hasn't already left his Olympics assignment in London. The Babe loved kids, true enough, and he did promise to hit home runs for a certain sick boy, but he never walked off a ball field in spikes to carry a boy's sick dog to a hospital and forget he was supposed to play a game that day.

Yet there was Bendix doing that same thing and making you like it even when you know it is golden bantam of the purest seed with not even the saving charms of Wallace hybrid. No actor who is supposed to be a ball player for 12 reels ever achieved so much art with so little to work from in the way of script.

IN BENDIX'S HANDS even the old gags were good. The scripters stole unconscionably the fined-and-suspended Babe in the dark hours Keefe yokel rookie in his early days in the majors, even to the point of resurrecting the old chestnut of the Pullman hammock for the convenience of rookie left-handed pitchers as an arm rest.

But Hollywood couldn't resist dragging in the gamblers (who would proposition the fined-and-suspended Babe in the dark hours of his banishment from the Yankees. Two straight rights to the jaw finish off that pair, and now free to be himself and not Ruth with a bat in his hands, Bendix is something super. Yet in that long camel's hair coat and that camel's hair cap that is the badge of the Babe, he's Ruth too.

After all, it's just a movie. Hollywood didn't have to take all that license with it, but the nice thing is that the story of Ruth is too powerful for even Hollywood to mess up more than a trifle. It's going to be better boxoffice than "Pride of the Yankees," which raised a cry in this breast to "Break up Hollywood." . . . . .

American Yachtsmen Win Crown; Boxers Fold

By Gayle Talbot

London, Aug. 12 (AP).—America's gentlemen sailors mopped up the Olympic yachting honors, usually a European monopoly, today but managed to send only one man into the finals of the boxing tournament the United States was expected to dominate.

This surprising turnabout featured the next-to-last day of heavy competition in the weary, puffing 1948 London Games.

United States yachtsmen won the overall championship in the Olympic regatta with two firsts, a second and a third in the five classes and atoned for their complete shutout in 1936 when the Star Spangled Banner never once rang out over the bay.

The Llanoria, handled by a five-man crew from Oyster Bay, N. Y., captured the International Six-Meter championship, biggest of them all, and a father-son team, Paul and Hilary Smart of Noroton, Conn., finished on top in the two-man Star class.

Smith Loses Semifinal

The resouding American success at Torquay, however, was not duplicated at the Empire Exposition Poolhouse where only Welterweight Horace Herring of St. Petersburg, Fla., was able to bash his way into the boxing finals.

The 24-year-old Navy steward's mate scored a decision over Doug Du Preez of South Africa. He meets J. Torma of Czechoslovakia in the final tomorrow night.

Lightweight Wallace Smith of Cincinnati was derailed by J. Vissers of Belgium on a decision in the semifinals.

The other two Americans who lasted until today—Featherweight Edward Johnson of Kansas City and Heavyweight Jay Lambert of West Jordan, Utah—were eliminated in the quarterfinals.

Three American swordsmen—Dean Cetrulo of Hollywood, Calif., Tibor Byilas and George Worth, both of New York—slashed their way into the semifinals of the individual sabre tournament and posed a real threat to the Hungarians, who have held the title since 1924.

Thomson Rides Well

The United States Army's horsemen continued to hold their own in the still uncompleted equestrian event.

Lieut. Col. Earl F. Thomson of Lake James, Ind., returned one of the fastest times in the endurance run today.

He carried his mount over 21 miles of treacherous hurdles in two hours and two minutes to become a leading contender for honors in the three-day competition.

Having already completed dressage—maneuvers calling for a display of man's control over his horse—he next goes into the jumping event, last on the program.

In the canoeing races at Henley on the Thames, the Yonkers (N. Y.) team that won the 10,000-meter Canadian pairs championship, fell short in the 1000-meter race.

D. C.'s Bill Havens 5th In 1000 Singles Finals

Best performance by the District area canoeists in the Olympic program yesterday was the fifth place won by Bill Havens, 1610 Isherwood st. ne., in the 1000-meter Canadian singles finals.

In the 1000-meter kayak event, Ray Clark, of Washington, and John Eisemen, Chevy Chase, were ninth and last in their heat of pairs. Tom Horton, also of Chevy Chase, was sixth among the eight kayaks in his heat.

Bill Havens, 29-year-old GW student, is the brother of Frank Havens, 23, who finished second in the 10,000-meter singles grind on Wednesday.

U. S. Trackmen Defeat British, Lose 440 Relay

London, Aug. 12 (AP).—The United States Olympic track and field team defeated a picked squad from the British Empire, 11½ to 3½, today in a dual meet before more than 40,000 at White City Stadium.

Only one point was awarded in each of the men's events, with total heights and distances figured in field competition rather than individual performances. The only tie of the meet came in the high jump.

The British achieved a measure of revenge for their loss in the disputed 400-meter relay at the Olympics by beating the American sprint relay foursome at 440 yards with a combination including two speedy Australians.

The three United States hurdlers who swept their event at the Olympics opened the meet by duplicating their Olympic sweep.

Bill Porter, Olympic champion from Northwestern University, won the 120-yard high hurdles in 14 seconds flat, establishing a new British record. Clyde Scott of Arkansas was second and Craig Dixon of UCLA third, just as they finished in the Olympic 110 meter hurdles.

Harrison Dillard of Baldwin Wallace, who has a 120-yard clocking of 13.6 seconds up for world recognition, did not compete in the hurdles. Coach Dean Cromwell held the Olympic 100-meter champion for the sprint relay.

Dillard Fresh, Too

Even with Dillard fresh, the United States lost the 440-yard relay to a strengthened British Empire team which gained partial revenge for Britain's defeat in the disputed Olympic 400-meter relay final.

John Bartram and John Treloar, both of Australia, teamed with Britain's Alistair McCorquodale and Jack Archer to finish 3 yards in front of the American foursome in 41.8, also a new British record.

The Americans ran with Barney Ewell of Lancaster, Pa.; Lorenzo Wright of Wayne, Dillard and Mel Patton Southern California, the same quartet which won the Olympic sprint final only to be temporarily disqualified until an appeal jury saw the official movies.

They were handicapped by a slow exchange of the baton between Wright and Dillard. As a result, Patton never had a chance against Archer on the anchor leg.

Truman Will Attend

Griffith to Be Honor Guest In Own Ball Park Tuesday

By Morris Siegel

Post Reporter

In honor of his long and meritorious career in baseball, 78-year-old Clark Griffith will be the guest of honor in his own ball park next Tuesday evening when the Nats play the New York Yankees.

President Truman heads the dignitaries who have accepted invitations to pay tribute to the former pitcher who rose to manager and later became owner of a major league team.

Arranged and sponsored by the local chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America, the gala ceremonies will outdo opening day rites, traditional high spot of Washington's baseball season.

Supreme Court justices, Cabinet members, military leaders and many of Griff's old friends and "enemies," ballplayers, will be on hand for the evening.

President Truman, a baseball fan and a friend of Griff's of long standing, cheerfully accepted and requested Griff to sit in the presidential box. Mr. Truman will introduce Griff to climax the affair.

And Mickey Haefner, bothered with a sore arm for two weeks, advised Manager Joe Kuhel he's set to take his regular turn on the mound once more.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 12 (AP).—Spec Sanders, the big back from the University of Texas, showed how a one-man gang operates tonight, but the Buffalo Bills came . . . the last three minutes to tie Sanders and his New York Yankees, 28-28, in an All-America Conference exhibition football game at Yankee Stadium.

Indians Slip To Second In Spite of 29-Hit Rout

St. Louis, Aug. 12 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians massacred the St. Louis Browns, 26 to 3, in the second half of a twilight-night double-header, falling just one run short of tieing their own high-scoring record of 27 runs, set in game with Boston 25 years ago.

The Browns annexed the twilight affair, 8 to 4. The split forced the Indians to yield first place to the idle Philadelphia Athletics by a percentage margin of .6018 to .600.

The modern major league run record is 28, set by the St. Louis Cardinals against Philadelphia, July 6, 1929.

By banging out 29 hits the Indians also came within 1 of tieing the league record of 30 established by the New York Yankees on July 28, 1923.

The Tribe exploded for nine runs in the first innnig and scored almost at will from then on as five Brownie pitchers paraded to the mound. They were kept scoreless in the second and ninth.

The nine-run blast included a homer by Pitcher Gene Bearden with two men on and two doubles by Hal Peck. Bearden and Peck had four hits apiece. Larry Doby, Jim Hegan and Walt Judnich also hit homers and Manager Lou Boudreau batted four runs across.

Bob Feller relieved Bearden on the mound in the eighth when the Indnans had a 26-to-1 lead and gave up two of the Browns' runs, when Dick Kokos singled with the bases full in the ninth.

Joe Ostrowski, making his first start of the season in the opener, spaced 11 Cleveland hits, while long-range clouting by Eddie Pellagrini and Dick Kokos helped pin the defeat on Sam Zoldak, former Brownie. Three of the Tribe's runs came on homers by Allie Clark and Lou Boudreau.

Theater Heads Reveal Part They'll Play in 'Youth Month'

New York, August 12.—Theater people announced today they will take an active part in observing Youth Month in September on a national scale.

President Truman recently issued a proclamation setting aside September for States, cities and communities to see that girls and boys have adequate facilities and sufficient opportunities for the proper kind of recreation.

Charles Skouras, president of the National Theaters Amusement Co., and Ted Gamble, president of the Theater Owners of America, are heading up the theaters' program.

An instructional movie has been made to show the general public what can be accomplished by organizing entire communities in this effort.

Theaters will be made available all over the country for various types of events in which the youngsters are interested.

Skouras and Gamble made their announcement at a luncheon attended by leading New York sports writers and sports broadcasters.

An outstanding youngster probably will be selected as the "Youth of the Year" for special recognition during Youth Month.

This honor may go to Robert Bruce Mathias, the 6-1 190-pound 17-year-old Californian who won the decathlon championship in the Olympic games in London last week.—BUS HAM.

Chesapeake Fishing Fair Begins Today

Tilghman Island, Md., Aug. 12 (AP).—Fishing Fair fever is boiling up again in this anglers' haven on the Eastern Shore.

The lid is bound to pop off this weekend.

That's when fishermen from all over Maryland and nearby States converge on "Tilghman's" for the 1948 Fishing Fair.

The fair traditionally is the high water mark of Chesapeake fishing seasons.

Capt. W. Randolph Harrison, president of the Fair Association, said today 1948 will be no different from other years.

Fishermen by the thousands, traveling via yawl boats and lavish cruisers, are due in port Thursday night and Friday for the weekend event.

Pennants are up and all the other trappings of a fair are ready.

The fair comes to Tilghman for the third time this year. It originated here in 1936, returned again two years ago.

By custom, the association will shift its annual fiesta to a Western Shore port next year. Annapolis, which celebrates its 300th anniversary in 1949, already has its invitation in.

The fair, or "grand contest," runs from Friday through Sunday. Altogether, 45 prizes contributed by State officials and plain fishing folk will be handed out before anchors are lifted.

Awards are at stake for a fanciful variety of accomplishments. They're for big fish, calling fish, being the youngest angler present, coming the longest distance, best fishing photograph, most skillful lady with a hook and line—even singing.

You can win one just by being the fattest person in sight.

It's the same as a country fair, with piscatorial trimmings.

Other than the recreation it offers angling enthusiasts, the fair has a practical purpose.

The association, a nonprofit organization, stages its annual event to acquaint sportsmen in the Eastern States with Maryland's vacation potentialities — especially its 125-mile long fishing hole, Chesapeake Bay.

Detroit Printers Beat N. Y., 3-1

Detroit, Aug. 12 (AP).—The previously undefeated New York team was beaten, 3 to 1, by Detroit today in the Union Printers International Baseball Tournament.

It left the local squad the only undefeated team in the double-defeat-and-out contest.

U. S. Bowlers Lose

Demaret, Ransom Tie At St. Paul

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 12 (AP).—A pair of surprising 67s, something that wasn't figured to happen, boosted Jimmy Demaret, Ojai, Calif., and Henry Ransom, Ravinia, Ill., into a first-day lead in the $13,500 St. Paul Open Golf meet today.

Because heavy rains had promoted heavy growth of grass, the boys weren't supposed to assault par of 72 very easily. But Demaret and Ransom proved otherwise.

The happy-go-lucky Californian was the first to shoot his 67, thus taking much of the attention of the gallery of 4000 away from Lloyd Mangrum, the heavy money winner from last week's Tam O'Shanter. Mangrum got a 69 on his first round today.

Knotted one stroke behind Demaret and Ransom were three other professionals—Ky Laffoon, St. Andrews, Ill.; Otto Greiner, Baltimore, Md., and Bill Nary, Phoenix, Ariz.

The field, cut to 95 by last-minute withdrawals, will play another 18 holes tomorrow.

Zale Opens Training For Bout With Cerdan

Chicago, August 12 (AP).—Tony Zale, world's middleweight champion, today opened his training campaign for his 15 round title bout against Marcel Cerdan, French challenger, at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, September 23.

Zale, tanned and rested after two week's vacation at Hot Springs, Ark., plans to do only light gymnasium exercise for the first ten days.

Slingin' Sam's Two TD Passes Steal Show in 'Skin Scrimmage

Los Angeles, Aug 12.—To the surprise of practically nobody, Sammy Baugh was as prominent as a wart on a debutante's nose today when the Washington Redskins staged their first full-dress scrimmage of the budding season.

Starting his twelfth season with the 'Skins, the 34-year-old Texan passed for two touchdowns. The first one was a flat pass to Halfback Dick Poillon, who made a spectacular catch on the 18-yard line and tight-roped down the sidelines. Dick also added the extra point.

After Rookie Fullback Cloyce Box intercepted Tommy Farmer's pass in the third quarter and returned it 15-yards to the enemy 39, Baugh came off the bench and engineered another touchdown drive in six plays. He tossed to Dick Todd for eleven, then pitched one to Fullback Glenn Barrington for 3-yards and a score. Again Poillon added the extra point.

Tommy Mont, looking very good, sparked a scoring drive of 60-yards in the first quarter. Ed Quirk, rookie fullback from Missouri U., punched big holes in the line and a pass from Mont to Bob Nussbaumer picked up 18 yards. Tommy nailed Paul McKee in the end zone with a 5-yard heave good for six, and then kicked goal.

Harry Gilmer appeared only briefly because of a bruised shoulder. He completed one pass and was terrific on the two plays in which he carried the ball. He returned a punt through a broken field for 40-yards and sneaked through a hole at right tackle with a burst of speed that carried him 33 yards.

"We're still a long way from home" Coach Turk Edwards commented afterward. "There were a lot of good things today, but there also were a lot of bad things."

Tom Dean, 250-pound tackle obtained from the Boston Yanks in a trade for End Joe Duckworth and Quarterback Jim Youel, was released today. Dean, who suffered a concussion four years ago, has been complaining of headaches. He was examined earlier in the week by two brain specialists, who advised him to quit the game.

Wrestlers, Like Movie Stars, Know How to Face Camera

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Laverne Baxter became crazy with the heat at Turner's Arena last night and threatened to cut television a new channel.

Disqualified by Referee Max Baer for "unnecessary roughness," the big guy whipped Tony Galento, punched the former world champion, roughed up two special policemen, threw a hook into Promoter Joe Turner, jr., threatened to swallow Galento's manager, Willie Gilzenberg and told off some 3000 customers.

Utter confusion, it was, but everything of import occurred facing the elevision camera, while Press Agent Dave Herman wrung his hands and kept chanting, "This is awful—this is awful." He wasn't far from wrong, either—it was terrible.

Cast in the villian role, Baxter put on a show that was a honey. He was a composite of all the mean men who ever lived in and out of this world. He was so ornery he pulled hair out of his own head and threw it in his own face.

As was to be expected with a cozy mat mate like Galento around, the engagement smacked little of wrestling, but turned into a slugfest with Galento and Baer opposing Baxter, who was ready to lick anybody in the house of in Northwest Washington for that matter.

Baxter came into the ring with his right hand taped and apparently dipped in plaster paris, and proceeded to give Galento a series of facials. Tony's face was no Elizabeth Arden job to begin with, and Baxter's treatments didn't improve it.

Tony perhaps became more active than the script suggested. Anyway, Baxter went brserk and for a while it looke das if the ground would be flat for miles around where his victims hit the ground.

Baer, after 7½ minutes, informed the crowd via of gestures, that Baxter had fouled his way out. Baxter then went double berserk, or the wrestling equivalent thereof.

Two dainty babes, Elvira Snodgrass and Rose Evans, clashed in the show's semifinal. Rose rambled all over Elvira at the beginning but Miss Snodgrass finally pinned her.

Golden Superman proved a serious comic and snapped down Jessie James, not to be confused with the outlaw by the same name, although he was nasty enough. Harry Armos flattened Buck Johnson and George Mackrakis made Orloff Erickson yell "uncle" in Swedish.

One wrestler suffered an honest-to-goodness cut eye and, being at ringside through the power of the press, I now possess the only shirt in town that has been given a blood transfusion.

Inefficiency Cost Tam O'Shanter Chance, Says Metz

Arkansas City, Kans., Aug. 12. (AP).—Dick Metz, Arkansas City professional golfer, has filed a protest in what he charged as inefficiency in connection with the recent Tam O'Shanter golf tournament at Chicago.

Metz said he learned from a newspaper article that he had been selected to participate in the climactic winner-take-all final of the tourney, which was won by Lloyd Mangrum. However, he stated, he had been informed earlier by Bill Gordon, Tam O'Shanter pro, that he would not be selected to appear in the special event.

On Gordon's information, Metz declared, he left for Sringfield, Mo. It was in Springfield that he said he read the newspaper article. He went to Springfield to enter the Ozarks open tourney.

Orange Bowl Enjoys Prosperous Prospect

Miami, Fla., Aug. 12 (AP).—Approximately 34,000 persons come to Miami for the Orange Bowl festival and spend $2,500,000 in four days, Orange Bowl Committee President Will M. Preston said today.

Profit on this season's festival is expected to reach $4000, Preston told a luncheon meeting. However, he offered little hope to those who want tickets to the Orange Bowl football game. "No one can bring order out of the Orange Bowl ticket chaos," Preston said. "We have 122,000 requests and only 60,000 seats."

Gene Wolfe Loses in 3d Round

Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 12 (AP).—Washington, D. C.'s last three entrants fell by the wayside in the United States Golf Association's national junior championship tournament here today.

Foster scored a one-up second round triumph over George Fullis of Glascow, Ky., this morning, and then met defeat this afternoon, 6 and 5, to Ken Venturi of San Francisco.

Wolfe won, 4 and 3, this morning over Bill Jameson of Chattanooga. But in the afternoon, he dropped a 3 and 2 match to Iving Cooper of Long Beach, Calif.

Fourteen-year-old Bolster was beaten, 5 and 3 by Bob Lowry, jr., of Hunterville, Ala. Bolster was four down at the turn but hung on until the fifteenth hole when he bogied.

U. S. Trackmen Defeat British

The United States won the mile relay despite a brilliant last lap by Herb McKenley of Jamaica, who made up more than 5 yards on America's anchor man, Mal Whitfield of Ohio State.

Whitfield, Olympic 800 meter champion, was challenged by McKenley on the last curve but had enough left to come home nearly 4 yards ahead. Whitfield was timed in 47.1 for his quarter and the American team in 3:13.4.

An American team of Dave Bolen, Colorado; Bob McMillen, Los Angeles Athletic Club; Bob Chambers, Southern California, and Herb Barten, Michigan, won the 2-mile relay in 8:00.6 Barten finished 3 yards in front of J. W. Ramsey of Australia, completing the anchor half mile in 1:51.2.

Steeplechase Taken

Sam Felton of Harvard took the hammer throw with a toss of 177 feet 2 inches, as the United States also swept that event.

The Americans also took the first three places in the pole vault, won by Olympic Champion Guinn Smith of the San Francisco Olympic Club at 14 feet.

An American combination of Hurdlers Dick Ault of Missouri and Jeff Kirk of Pennsylvania and Steeplechaser Bill Overton of Auburn and Browning Ross of Villanova won an eight-lap steeplechase relay in 8:41.2.

The 4-mile relay went to the British Empire team, which defeated a foursome composed of Clem Eishen of Washington State, Roland Sink of Southern California and Don Gehrmann of Wisconsin, United States Olympic 1500-meter men, and Jerry Thompson of Texas, 5000-meter entrant in the Olympics.

John Winter of Australia won the high jump with a leap of 6 feet 6 inches but the event wound up in a standoff when the heights of the two teams totaled 19 feet each. That gave each team half a point.

Another sweep for the Americans came in the javelin throw, won by Steve Seymour of the Los Angeles Athletic Club on a toss of 222 feet 7½ inches.

Reckless A's Get Cautious For Tonight

Philadelphia, Aug. 12 (AP).—The Philadelphia Athletics, hungering for an American League pennant since 1931, kept their fingers crossed today on the eve of Friday, the thirteenth.

Superstitious? You bet.

The first place A's are only—one percentage point ahead of second place Cleveland—and Owner-Manager Connie Mack is concentrating on staying there.

Watchful Friday

So today's baseball rest period is a prelude for tomorrow's jinxday watchfulness, a tightening-up of everyday "precautions" like:

No A's player will use a bat that has fallen across another club in the dugout rack. All the bats must be upright and those that fall are not used during a game.

Joost Wears Out Cap

Second Baseman Pete Suder refuses to step on the chalk sidelines coming on or off the field.

Third Baseman Hank Majeski declines to sit on the dugout bench. He reclines on the ledge near the water cooler.

And, what's more, Majeski and Shortstop Eddie Joost insist on wearing the same caps all through the season.

Southpaw Lou Brissie, already winner of 12 games, refuses to part with a tattered and torn sweat shirt. He acquired the shirt at the tail end of the 1947 season when he joined the Mackmen—and he says he'll wear it till he's through playing baseball.

Fain Wants Service

First Baseman Ferris Fain isn't lazy but he won't pick up his glove when he goes out on the field. The A's first-base coach has to pick it up and toss it to him.

Outfielder Elmer Valo, often called the A's good-luck ballplayer, won't go out to right field unless he has his own lucky charm in his back pocket. Valo once stopped a game and hustled back to the clubhouse to get it.

Wilmington Pro Just Misses Ace

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 12 (AP).—Dave Douglas, Wilmington, Del., pro golfer, came within 6 inches of scoring a hole-in-one in the first day of the $13,500 St. Paul Open today.

His bid came on the 135-yard fourth hole, when his tee shot landed 6 inches from the cup, forcing him to take a birdie deuce. He wound up the day's initial 18 holes with a 70 on his three-under-par 33 on the out nine and a one over par 37 coming in.

Dodgers Open School Monday at Pulaski, Va.

Pulaski, Va., Aug. 12 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers of the National League will hold their second baseball school here Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

More than 150 prospects from several States are expected to come here to display their baseball talent. The school will be in charge of Rex Bowen. Bowen will be assisted by Frank Rickey, who discovered many present day stars including Johnny Mize, first baseman of the New York Giants.

To Marry in Paris

Mary Munn's Engagement Expected Soon; 'Victim' Tells of Berlin Air Lift

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

OVER in Paris an engagement interesting to Washingtonians will soon be announced. Mary Munn, younger daughter of Mme. Jacques Allez and Palm Beach's Charlie Munn, is to marry Viscount Duncannon, heir to the Earl of Bessborough, the former Governor General of Canada.

Mary, who is a sister of Mrs. Larry Doyle of New York, is a niece of Ector and Gurnee Munn. Her mother is a sister of the late George F. Baker, jr., and through an assortment of Munn marriages she is connected with such high bracket tribes as the Wanamakers.

Young Duncannon, who is a first secretary in the British Embassy in Paris, has a fine war record, served with Duff Cooper in Algiers, came to France when Lady Diana's husband was made Ambassador, has stayed on with the new diplomatic incumbent. Lord Duncannon, incidentally, is half French, his mother having been born a De Neuflize. The Bessboroughs live these days in a lovely Georgian place outside London. The wedding is to take place in September in Paris rather than in New York so the commotion won't interfere with the pleasures of Charlie Nunn's early Palm Beach season.

From 'Cold War' Zone

SPY chasing has so filled the national gazettes we have overlooked a bit what an amazing job United States pilots are doing handling the Berlin airlift. Here's a just-received-letter from a German occupant of the cold war zone. It's a good peek at what the "victims" are thinking.

Kladow, 12 July 1948

TO: Wiesbaden Air Force Base

Please allow me to devote some words to your flying personnel. I am living under the so-called air-lift in Kladow and have lost my home in Berlin. My current home is a modest arbour and I have had a very nice home in the west part of Berlin. I hardly can believe that the same Nation which has destroyed my home with bombs and fire bombs is now, in such a noble-minded way, sending airplanes to save Berlin.

The current bad weather condition with its deep hanging clouds has required the utmost concentration and energy from your pilots. I watched the big planes from my home, flying through the heavy clouds, disappearing for seconds, appearing and disappearing again. In the fog and dense clouds it must be impossible to see. I saw in my mind how your pilots must concentrate to foresee what will be necessary for a safe landing without endangering personnel, freight and the plane. I can also imagine the relief a pilot must feel after a safe landing. How would I like to thank every one of your unselfish pilots for what they are doing for us "Berliners," for us who have been worrying for 10 years, freezing in winter time and fighting against undernourishment.

Believe me, everybody around here knows that we Germans never can become Russians—the same as the Russians never can think as a German. Only a small part wants a connection with the East—"Why" is not hard to answer.

I would be very thankful if you would inform your flying personnel that we are watching their planes with interest and thankfulness, and that we felt sorry hearing of the crash of the C-47 when three of your brave flyers lost their life.

I would have liked to write this letter in your native language, but my knowledge of English is not so good yet. Although I am 69 years old, I am learning your language for being able to know and understand more about your country.

Respectfully yours,
Fritz Lorbeer and Mrs. Kaete Lorbeer

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Neuland Give Reception at Shoreham

MR. AND MRS. PAUL NEULAND, who were married in a Hapsburg castle in Austria last February and spent a long honeymoon in Austria, Italy and France, entertained at a delayed wedding reception yesterday afternoon for their Washington friends.

Mrs. Neuland is the former Miss Joanne Noone, who was with the American Legation in Vienna when he wedding took place.

Yesterday she sought to recapture some of the old world charm of Vienna in the Terrace Room of the Shoreham Hotel. An orchestra played Viennese waltzes for dancing and earlier in the afternoon strolling musicians serenaded the guests with old Austrian tunes.

Mrs. Neuland wore her wedding gown, of black chantilly lace over beige-pink which had been fashioned from an old shawl. Her hat was black bonnet type showing a fringe of curls and was trimmed with a single beige-pink rose.

Among the guests at this pleasant party were William Park Armstrong, special assistant to the Secretary of State, and Mrs. Armstrong; Gen. and Mrs. E. A. Evans, he's executive director of the Reserve Officers Association; Mr. and Mrs. Allen Evans, Harley Hise, new chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and Mrs. Hise; Mr. and Mrs. James E. Colliflower and their daughter, Rose.

Mrs. Christian Ravndal, wife of the director general of the Foreign Service of the State Department, came with the Deputy Director and Mrs. Don Smith, as her husband is away.

Others there were Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Shaughnessy, Mrs. A. Ogden Pierrot who is leaving soon to join Mr. Pierrot, new Counselor of the United States Embassy in Peru; the commercial attache of the Spanish Embassy and Senora de Trelles, and Mr. and Mrs. Wilhelm Goertz.

Robin Oldses Visit Mrs. Robert Olds

Mrs. Robert Olds has with her for a visit her step-son Maj. Robin Olds and Mrs. Olds, the former Ella Raines, Hollywood star.

Mrs. Olds will leave on Sunday for New York to meet her son, Gore Vidal, who is returning from a European trip with Tennessee Williams, author of "A Street Car Named Desire." Gore Vidal, who is in his early '20s, is already the author of two successful books.

Mrs. Olds and her son will motor to California where Mrs. Olds formerly lived and will stop en route for visit Mrs. Olds' parents, former Senator and Mrs. Thomas Gore.

Staying at Westport

Mrs. Louis E. Harris is spending some time at the Westport Inn, Westport, N. Y., where she will be joined by her daughter, Miss Ruth Ann Harris, who has been at school in Vermont.

Girls' Nation Hears Warning On Red Groups

Mrs. Lee W. Hutton, national president of the American Legion Auxiliary, told the delegates of Girls' Nation yesterday to watch out for the Communist organizations in colleges and business world.

Speaking before the final session of the 96 delegates from every State in the Nation Mrs. Hutton warned the girls of anyone who did not think "ours is the finest government yet developed."

Mrs. Hutton's address, which paralleled earlier talks heard by the teen-agers, marked the end of the 5-day session of Girls' Nation, sponsored by American Legion Auxiliary.

Mrs. Hutton quoted from an article in the August issue of the American magazine in which Dr. Harry D. Gideonse of Brooklyn College stated that thousands of boys and girls in schools and colleges are being "exposed and catching the communism virus."

In his article, Professor Gideonse told of the report of the House Un-American Activities Committee which deseribed the widespread activities of the Communist youth organizations.

Mrs. Hutton cautioned the Girls' Nation delegates to "beware of the newcomer who speaks well of communism and decries the United States and its services to the people just as you would beware of one who advocated low moral conduct. A person is judged by the company she keeps, so seek out the best."

Following Mrs. Hutton's talk, Mrs. E. A. Campbell, chairman of Girls' Nation, presented the delegates with graduation certificates.

Don't Scrub And Clean Too Often

Here is a welcome, and perhaps, surprising piece of news for harried housewives. There is a part of your home that shouldn't be kept too clean.

Yes, if you have asphalt tile floors, you may actually be in danger of overcleaning them, according to a large tile manufacturer. Asphalt tile doesn't need hard scrubbing. In fact, it will wear and retain its original beauty far longer if you don't subject it to rough abrasives, strong cleaners, and too much water.

When asphalt tile floors must be washed, warm soap suds are the thing to use, followed by a warm clear-water rinse and a thorough wiping with a soft, dry mop. Care should be taken not to flood the floors with water. Once clean, your asphalt tile should be treated to a good grade of water emulsion wax, applied according to the manufacturer's directions on the bottle.

After polishing, a daily dusting with a soft mop or cloth will keep dust from being ground into the waxed surface. Make a special point of wiping up spilled materials immediately, and apply another coat of wax as soon as possible after spillage occurs. When a damp cloth is required to wipe up heavy soil, dampen it with cool instead of warm water so that the protective wax coating will not soften and wipe away.

To protect asphalt tile floors from being dented and marred by furniture, there are several good types of glides and cups which you can buy in almost any hardware or department store. For lightweight furniture that is moved more or less frequently, glides with a flat smooth base or rubber wheel casters are a good investment. For heavy furniture which is not so frequently moved, furniture cups made of a composition material are to be had in pleasing neutral colors.

Battlers Against Totalitarianism

who was affectionately known as the "Mad Sheriff of Dutchess County" and who once, briefly and tempestuously, was married to Diva Lina Cavallieri.

Back in 1940, after the Nazis occupied Paris and Nazi sympathizer Henri-Haye was sent here as French Ambassador, Christopher organized all sorts of boycotts against the ambassador and what he stood for. One of the most unusual demonstrations was the picketing of the Monte Carlo night club during a benefit sponsored by American Vichy sympathizers. Pickets walked up and down outside during the party carrying explanatory placards much to the embarrassment of Mrs. Harrison Williams and other members of the international set who went out socially with M. Henri-Haye.

Later Christopher organized, with the cooperation of Dave Martin (author of "Ally Betrayed"), the protest against Mihailovitch's trial. Witnesses, including Army officers who had been with Mihailovitch, newspaper correspondents who had been in Yugoslavia, were rounded up from all over. Those without funds were given money to come to New York and testify, money was raised to send them to Yugoslavia to appear at the trial. Only, of course, Tito's government refused visas.

Emmet did a very fine job, amassed some unusual information. Common Cause, Inc., with which he is now associated, was founded by Natalie Wales Latham Paine in conjunction with a group of prominent intellectuals. Natalie is the tiny, piquant person who thought up the idea of "Bundles for Britain." After the war she worked on the New York Times. Common Cause, Inc., aims to take a practical part in counteracting communism. Not only is food and other creature comforts sent to countries where communism is being imposed but a most successful effort is being made to spread information about our form of democracy.

Mrs. Pepper's Florida Recipes

Good Eating From the Sunshine State

This is the tenth in a series of articles on regional cookery in the United States, featuring favorite menus and recipes of congressional wives.

By Lucia Brown

THE sunny "land of flowers" is also a land of good eating, according to Mrs. Claude Pepper, wife of the senior Senator from Florida.

Ponce de Leon may not have found the fountain of youth there, says Mrs. Pepper, but he did discover a country from which flows a wealth of good things that make living—and eating—more pleasant. Golden oranges and tangerines, out-of-season vegetables, pale yellow grapefruit, bright green limes, even coconuts, pineapples and sugar cane flourish in Florida's groves and fields and swampy Everglades.

Pretty Mrs. Pepper was born in Alabama but moved to Florida in her childhood. When not in Washington, she and Senator Pepper make their home in Tallahassee, the State capital. It is in northwestern Florida midway between the Georgia line and the Gulf of Mexico.

Though she disclaims being an expert cook, Mrs. Pepper has a file of favorite Florida recipes and waxes enthusiastic about the native dishes of the Peninsula State. She often serves them at the Pepper's Washington home at 1661 Crescent pl., n.w.

Melon-filled Pineapple
Turtle Soup
Pompano en Papillotes
Okra-and-tomatoes Peas
Spoon Bread
Florida Green Salad
Fresh Coconut Ice Cream

Watermelon and cantaloupe balls would be mixed with pineapple chunks, marinated in sherry, and served in half pineapple shells for the first course. As one of the vegetables, okra and tomatoes would be simmered together and seasoned with a bit of chopped onion, butter, pepper, and salt.

The green salad would include strips of Florida avocados, lettuce, celery, and tomatoes, with a tart French dressing. The coconut ice cream would be made by adding freshly grated coconut to the usual ingredients for vanilla ice cream.

The main dish, "Pompano en Papillotes," features one of the prize fish of the Gulf area, cooked in paper cases. The pompano is a member of the mackerel family and grows to a length of 18 inches. It is used filleted in the following recipe:

Pompano en Papillotes

1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon flour
1 onion, minced
Meat of 1 cooked crawfish
½ cup boiled shrimp
1/3 cup crab meat
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash Tabasco sauce
1 egg yolk
6 pompano fillets

Melt butter, stir in flour, and add minced onion, browning mixture slightly. Add crawfish, shrimp and crabmeat, chopped fine. Cook for 3 minutes and add salt and tabasco sauce. Remove from heat. Stir in egg yolk. Parboil pompano fillets 5 minutes. Place each fillet, opened flat, on individual sheets of parchment paper. Divide sauce among fillets by placing spoonsful on fold. Fold fillets, then fold parchment paper over so that each fillet is encased in a separate bag. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit) for 10 minutes. This recipe serves six persons.

By Henry Rohland—The Washington Post

MRS. CLAUDE PEPPER, wife of Florida's senior senator, serves a salad made of watermelon, grapefruit, oranges, and other fruits from her home state

DOWN on the rocky keys of Florida, small green limes were found growing when the first settlers came. Many years later, in 1927, Floridians began growing a new kind of lime, the Persian. These are larger than the native limes, have no seed, and contain a great deal of juice. They are delicious for pie-making, says Mrs. Pepper. Her favorite, easy recipe follows.

Persian Lime Pie

3 eggs
1 can sweetened condensed milk
3 tablespoons sugar
1 baked 9-inch pie shell

Beat egg yolks, add condensed milk and lime juice. Mix well and pour into baked pie shell. Beat egg whites until stiff and add sugar. Cover pie with meringue and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) until golden brown.

HUSH puppies are a famous hot bread down in Florida and there's a story that goes along with the recipe:

Years ago, it's said, the Negroes in Tallahassee used to gather on warm fall evenings for sugar cane grinding. After their work of grinding cane and boiling down juice was completed, they would cook themselves a savory snack over the big outdoor fire.

Around the edge of the circle, their hounds would gather with much sniffing of the air and many whines of hunger. To quiet them, the Negroes would stop eating fried fish and corn pones for a minute, tear off a piece of the bread, and toss it to the dogs with the admonition "Hush, puppy!"

Nowadays, hot fried hush puppies are considered the natural accompaniment for Florida fish fries and other outdoor meals. They're much like other corn pones, says Mrs. Pepper, except that chopped onion is added. The recipe follows:

Hush Puppies

2 cups white corn meal
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1½ cups sweet milk
½ cup water
1 large onion, chopped fine

After sifting dry ingredients together, add the milk and water and stir in chopped onion. Add extra meal or milk if necessary to make a soft, workable dough. Form into flat pones about 5 inches long and 3 inches wide. Fry in hot deep fat until well browned. Serve immediately. When served with fish, fry in same fat that fish was cooked in.

SWEET POTATOES are a Southern favorite which the Floridians often cook in combination with oranges. Mrs. Pepper likes to use orange blossom honey in the following recipe but agrees that any kind will do.

Sweet Potato And Orange Casserole

6 sweet potatoes, cooked and sliced
½ cup brown sugar
5 tablespoons butter
2 medium-sized oranges
½ cup orange juice
¼ cup strained honey
¼ cup fine bread crumbs

Arrange a layer of sliced sweet potatoes in a greased baking dish; sprinkle brown sugar and dots of butter on top. Cover with thin slices of unpeeled orange. Repeat layers. Over all, pour orange juice with which honey has been mixed. Finish by sprinkling bread crumbs, brown sugar, and dots of butter over top. Cover, and bake in moderate oven 30 to 40 minutes, removing cover for last 15 minutes.

Cooking Cues

Add diced frankfurter or crumbled bacon and slices of hard-cooked egg to potato salad when it is to be the main luncheon or supper dish; mix the frankfurter or bacon right into the salad with the dressing and celery, but use the hard-cooked egg sliced as a garnish.

To stretch a small amount of steak cut it in thin diagonal slivers; saute an onion for each person to be served—cut in thin strips—in hot fat in a skillet, then add the beef slivers and cook quickly stirring to brown the meat. Add salt and pepper to taste and serve on hot buttered toast.

A delicious and quickly made dessert may be concocted from a box of devil's food cake mix and half a package of fudge mix. Bake the cake according to the directions on the package and cut half of it in four squares. Now make a chocolate sauce according to the recipe on the package of fudge mix and serve over the hot, fresh cake squares.

Grind leftover luncheon meat with sweet pickles, or mix with pickle relish. Add mayonnaise or salad dressing to moisten and use for sandwiches.

To pep up a macaroni or potato salad, add a little prepared mustard to the mayonnaise, blending well. Finely diced or grated onion is also a flavor help for both these salads; or use a generous amount of onion powder and mix with the dressing.

Banana Treats for Hot Weather

1 cup mashed ripe bananas* (2 to 3 bananas)
2 teaspoons lemon juice
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1/3 cup milk
2 egg whites
1 cup heavy cream
2 egg yolks
1 teaspoon vanilla

*Use fully ripe bananas . . . yellow peel flecked with brown.

Mix together bananas and lemon juice. Add sugar, salt and milk, stirring until mixed. Beat egg whites until stiff. Whip cream until thick and shiny but not stiff. Beat egg yolks until thick. Combine banana mixture, egg whites, egg yolks, cream and vanilla. Turn into freezing trays of an automatic refrigerator. Freeze, with indicator at coldest setting, stirring every 30 minutes until mixture begins to hold its shape. Freeze until firm. Eight servings.

VARIATIONS

Banana Strawberry Ice Cream—Add ½ cup mashed strawberries, sweeten with ¼ cup sugar, during final stirring.

Banana Date Ice Cream—Add ½ cup date paste during final stirring. To make date paste, simmer ½ cup cut pitted dates with ½ cup water for 10 minutes. Cool.

Ideal for Summertime

A CREAMED combination of crabmeat and mushrooms makes an ideal dish around which to center a summertime meal. Accompanied by a tossed green salad, and with fruit for dessert, it makes a light but filling lunch or dinner.

CRABMEAT AND MUSHROOMS

1 6½-ounce can crabmeat (1 2/3 cups)
1 4-ounce can mushrooms (¾ cup)
Liquid from mushrooms plus water to make 1 cup
1 cup evaporated milk
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
Few grains salt
1 pimiento, chopped
1 tablespoon lemon juice
6 slices of toast

Remove bones, then shred crabmeat. Cook mushrooms slowly in butter about 5 minutes. Sprinkle with flour and stir to blend thoroughly. Add mushroom liquid, water and milk, and cook until thickened, stirring to keep smooth. Season with salt. Add crabmeat and pimiento. When ready to serve, season with lemon juice and pour over slices of dry toast. This recipe makes 6 servings.

Fur Coat Story

There Are Good Buys Under $500 This Season, But Choose Carefully

"WHAT is the best buy I can get in a fur coat for $500 or less?"

About this time of year the average American woman who is considering buying a fur garment, is asking this question in worried tones.

Teen-agers can be happy in a furry jacket costing $80 or $90. Other women can efford to spend enough on a mink or broadtail to be certain of quality. But those in the "$500 or under" class find themselves haunted by doubts. Is it worth the money? Will it wear well? Does it become me, or will I look like a tent?

So, taking first things first, let's look at the available furs in the under $500 price range for this season:

1. DYED MUSKRAT. But don't get a muskrat dyed to look like sable or mink. It never really does. Get one that is frankly dyed a becoming color. This fall oxford gray muskrat is new and flattering. For the young, ivory muskrat is a stunning coat, to be worn for either day or evening. There is also the natural silvery muskrat tone, which is always good.

Muskrat is one of the longest-wearing furs, and should give years of service if correctly styled and made.

2. KIDSKIN. Though this fur is not as long-wearing as muskrat, it will give long service if wool lined, and the edges bound in the same fabric. Get it in the simplest possible style.

3. HOLLANDER DYED SEAL. This sturdy fur is especially smart in traditional black. However, furriers are offering interesting variations of color this year by presenting these skins in new navy blue.

4. MOUTON. Here is the best buy in the budget department, for it wears practically forever and new processing makes it light and pliable. It is ideal for college and career girls. Mouton also is being dyed in new colors of green, gray or navy.

5. PERSIAN PAW. This fur is made from the paws of Persian lamb, and is not as sturdy as most of the furs listed above. If properly made, however, it will give satisfactory wear and is becoming to a great many types of figures.

6. SQUIRREL. This is being dyed in dark brown tones that are rich and flattering. It is, as well, one of the loveliest and most flattering of furs when done in the familiar gray tones. However, it is best recommended for jackets, as a long coat will show wear more quickly. All the fragile, soft furs are better for jackets, since a long coat first shows wear where you sit on it.

ONCE having selected the fur you prefer, then begin considering style, quality and construction. Go to a reliable furrier, frankly ask his advice, and don't look for bargains. Since you are probably not trained in expert analysis of fur values, you must depend on the honesty and advice of a furrier you trust.

After you have been informed of the quality of the skins and workmanship, look at the line of the garment. Does the collar, set of the pockets and shoulder become you? If you are small, beware of the big, shawl collars and wide cuffs popular this season. Choose, instead, a small rounded or pointed collar, neat cuffs.

Select the length that is best suited to your figure and wardrobe. If you have only one fur coat, the most sensible course is to buy a three-quarter length, from 36 to 38 inches. Then your coat will be right whether skirt lengths go up or down, whether one dress is longer than another. This type coat can also double for day or evening wear.

FOR the young we choose this full-length silver muskrat in the new shade "dawn." Narrower sleeves are the new look and cuffs come into their own again. The collar is flattering to the face either down or buttoned high under the chin. (This model is priced at local shops at $410, including tax.)

Lelong Closing Sad Shock To Paris Fashion World

By Florence Mills

Associated Press Newsfeatures Writer

Paris.—The closing of Lucien Lelong's fashion house shocked fellow haute couturiers and saddened even the man in the street.

Lelong was halfway through assembling his fall collection when doctors forbade him to continue, insisted he quit the worries and hard work of the couture business. The slim, dapper, 58-year-old Lelong, always ready with a radiant smile and words of welcome for everyone he met, has been sick for a long time. The intense strain of the war years took its toll of his health. During that period he was chairman of the Chambre Syndicale de la Couture Parisienne.

First Since War

Famous houses such as Vionnet, Mirande, Doucet, Poire, Chanel and Louise Boulanger have gone, leaving only memories of their superb mastery in France's trade of trades.

But some of them have left successful pupils who have established houses of their own. Madame Vionnet groomed Charles Montaigne and Jacques Griff in just the same way that Lucien Lelong trained Christian Dior, creator of the "New Look," and Pierre Balmain, youngest designer in the business.

Nearly every fashion house in town has been through the rumor mill at some time or another, with resultant whispers of bankruptcy, bad business or closure.

Clientele Is New

Foreign customers haven't yet reached prewar numbers by any means, and most of the big French buyers of prewar days have evaporated in a cloud of postwar poverty. A new class of people constitutes that clientele now.

But haute couturiers on the whole are philosophical about the future. Only when Europe recovers economically will their own recovery be complete. They are quite resigned to the fact that it will take years.

Very few changes have taken place in the actual operation of the dressmaking business.

Paris haute couture is a fine art. There are no short cuts to achieve that art. It takes as long now to make a dress properly as it did 30 years ago. Only designs, not methods, have changed.

Electric sewing machines haven't replaced the old treadle. Careful balance tacks, accurate tracing and two or three fittings per customer are still necessities—and it takes a week to make one dress.

Change It at Once

When you buy a pattern for a nightgown, slip or anything you are likely to use a number of times, make any alterations necessary after the first cutting. Then you will not wonder each time just what it was you did to that pattern to make it correct.

How to Protect Table

Could you tell me what would be the most satisfactory way of protecting the finish on an oak able? I have one which is not solid oak and which I wash with a damp cloth two or three times a day. As a consequence, the finish is being impaired. Would a coat or two of wax or shellac be suitable? I have wax and shellac on hand. M. C.

Shellac is rather easily marked by water and heat, so I do not think it would be wise to cover the table with this. These are clear plastic finishes that would protect your table and be more resistant to warmth and moisture. You can contact one local store selling such a finish by telephoning North 7557.

The table would also be protected by the application of wax. Clean it well, let it dry, then apply a thin coat of the wax. When this has dried about 15 minutes, buff well with a soft cloth. If possible, avoid washing the table so frequently. A good buffing should generally be adequate for cleaning and would help build up the wax finish. Even though the table is used constantly, fresh applications of wax should be necessary only about every two months. Be sure to take off old wax before applying fresh. Old wax can be removed with fresh liquid wax, just as old fingernail polish can be removed with fresh polish.

Last year, you published a recipe for ripe tomato chili sauce, using whole cloves and other spices. It was very good and now I can't find the recipe I saved? Do you have a copy available? R. E. H.

I believe that the following must be the recipe you mean:

Chili Sauce

4 quarts (24 to 28 medium-sized) peeled and chopped tomatoes.
2 cups chopped sweet red peppers
2 cups chopped onion
1 hot pepper, chopped
2 tablespoons celery seed
1 tablespoon mustard seed
1 bay leaf
1 teaspoon whole cloves
1 teaspoon ground ginger
1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
2 3-inch pieces stick cinnamon
1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1½ cups vinegar
2 tablespoons salt

Combine the tomatoes, sweet pepper, onion and hot pepper. Put celery seed, mustard seed, bay leaf, cloves, ginger, nutmeg and cinnamon loosely in a thin white cloth. Tie top tightly. Add to tomato mixture and boil until you have but one half of the original amount. Stir frequently to prevent sticking. Add sugar, vinegar and salt. Boil rapidly, stirring constantly, about 5 minutes. Remove spices. Pack chili sauce into hot, sterile jars. Fill jars to top and seal. This recipe makes about 5 pints.

A surgical preparation was squirted on our wallpaper accidentally. The ingredients, according to the package, are chondrus, tragacanth, glycerine, water and boric acid. Can you tell me how to remove the resulting stain? D. P.

Cover the spots with a thick layer (about ¼ inch) of a soft paste made of Fuller's Earth or powdered chalk, moistened with carbon tetrachloride or any of the other well-known noninflammible spot removers. The paste should be allowed to remain until dry, then removed with a soft brush. It may be necessary to repeat. If the paper is old and soiled, it should first be cleaned in the area around the stain with wallpaper cleaner. If this is not done, the paste will leave a cleaned place surrounded by a dirty ring.

I recently purchased a new kitchen sink. Our water in this locality tends to be on the iron side, hence the sink basin is already turning a bit yellowish. Is there any way possible for me to keep it white? L. M.

The houseware's section of large department stores usually carry rust-removing preparations to be used on porcelain. Some of these come in the form of scrubbing powder, with special rust-removing agents added. If such preparations are not available in your local stores, you can order them from the houseware's sections of large Washington department stores. Rubbing with a cut lemon will also sometimes remove iron rust stains from sinks. Another method is to apply a weak solution (5 per cent) of oxalic acid (poison) with paper toweling. Rinse this off thoroughly after a few seconds. If the acid is left on the surface too long, the finish will be weakened or even removed.

Less Noticeable

If milady has not the time to remove the remainder of the polish from her fingernails and paint them anew, she is wise to remove all polish and go without any rather than appear with smatterings here and there of red on her nails. It will take but a minute and be far less noticeable.

First Aid for Hair and Scalp

By Betty Clarke

SPRAY YOUR HAIR . . . with brilliantine during the summer to protect it from the sun's rays, says movie star Doris Day

HAVE YOU ever had a sunburned scalp? If you haven't keep your fingers crossed. It not only is a painful experience (sometimes people find it hurts, even to brush a sun scorched head), but hair and scalp will be robbed of natural oils.

Summertime hair worries necessitate more frequent washings and brushings. The temptation to go without a hat is great, and besides the accumulation of dust acquired in a day, there also is the problem of how to keep the hair neat while indulging in summer sports. Golf, tennis, fishing, sailing, swimming and motoring will help make a chore out of your normal beauty routine, unless you wear a crew cut.

Doris Day, film star, says she found brilliantine the perfect solution to help keep her hair from drying out. She applies it to her hair before a sunning. This may attract particles of dust and sand which will lodge in the hair, but since she washes her hair after every sunning anyway, it doesn't make any difference.

She also found that using a hair lacquer when motoring is helpful. However, one caution is necessary—hair lacquer is not foolproof. You should wear a band or ribbon of some kind around your hair, even if you use the lacquer. Otherwise, if your hair does blow, it will look worse than ever.

Any girl who ever has had sunstroke, or who even courts the possibility, should wear a hat when exposed to the midafternoon rays of the sun. A large cartwheel hat can be worn on the beach to protect not only the head but the eyes.

For Girls Who Wear Glasses

The girl who wears glasses, says the August issue of Charm, the Magazine for the Business Girl, will always receive a second look when her eyes are framed in becoming rims and her hair and make-up are styled to suit her face.

As an accessory, vividly-tinted glass frames brighten your wardrobe as much as a gaily-colored hat. There are quantities of frames in new shapes, shades, and materials to choose from this year, and whether you buy one neutral pair to wear with everything or several pairs in different shapes and colors, you'll do well to choose your glasses with an eye toward face flattery, says Charm.

Special emphasis must be paid to your hair-do and make-up when you wear glasses, Charm advises. Eddie Senz, famous Hollywood make-up artist, says hair should be snugged closely to the head at the temples except when a square, wide jaw needs top width for balance. Any forward movement of hair is kept back of the cheeks, even when the face is wide. This leaves a clear field for the glasses.

Hair is allowed on the forehead in a polished dip, fringe or bangs to diminish a face that is long, or a forehead that is too wide or bulging. Height for a wide face or low forehead is gained by slanting the part and the waves or by making wavy bangs arch slightly.

Outline lipstick carefully; accent a natural eyebrow line with pencilling; and tip lashes with mascara, but discreetly. (Lenses magnify tiny details about the eyes.) For that neat look, powder foundation should be blended all the way to the eyes.

New, flattering glasses, framed by the right hair-do and worn over a smooth make-up help you to see and be seen.

Exercises for Flabby Arms Will Round Out Triceps

By Ida Jean Kain

TAKING a critical view of the place where the sleeves leave off, we hastily ask the clerk to show us some dresses with a bit more of a sleeve. Invariably the answer is that dresses are not featuring much of a sleeve this season. And there we are, left holding the bag, literally!

It is bitterly baffling . . . why designers should snatch away all protection, and why upper arms are such a sorry sight. There is no accounting for fashion's whims, but the solution to the arm problem is buried in the science of muscular movement. An excellent way to find the most effective means of dealing with lazy arm muscles is to analyze what would happen if these muscles went out of whack. In the case of the triceps on the back of the upper arms, it appears that we would be inconvenienced very little. We could still eat heartily. The triceps are not the lifting muscles, or the elbow benders, or the everyday working muscles. They are used mostly to forcibly extend the forearm.

Since we don't use the triceps in routine activities, this makes the upper arms a "dead area," muscularly speaking. It's little wonder they do not get prettier as time flits by.

What to do? Nobody wants to go back to using washboards again, so we'd better find other means of toning the triceps . . . or strike out for sleeves.

One very simple fixer is to hold the arms in the position that puts the triceps to work. Hanging straight down at the sides, the triceps muscles are not on the job unless there is a slight twist. Get the habit of holding the arms with the front of the arm facing directly forward . . . this puts the inside part of the elbow, the soft part, directly sideward, toward the body, which adds just enough of a twist to tone the triceps. It really does the trick in keeping arms shapely, so check up on the way you habitually hold your arms.

ANOTHER beauty trick is always to rub the backs of the upper arms briskly with a rough towel after bathing, to stir up circulation in this dead area.

Those are preventive measures. If it's too late for that, the corrective measure is exercise, or activity that brings the triceps vigorously into action. The summertime activities include swimming . . . any stroke; golf and pushing the lawnmower. The calisthentics movements are straight out from the shoulder, using a forcible thrust. Turn on a lively tune and thrust out vigorously and rhythmically in time to the music.

Fear not; exercise will not make your arms bigger! Exercise normalizes. It develops the triceps muscles, but it can't grow fat. So exercise will help round out scrawny arms and tone the muscles to improve the shape of heavy arms.

On the Town

REMEMBER when the Sheraton lounge inaugurated the policy of having gals with flimsy skirts trotting around with your drinks instead of waitresses in uniforms? Some said women wouldn't like the gimmick because they would have to be competing with the waitress for the boy friend's eye. Now everyone knows that it's the gal who drags the guy around to this spot or that. If she doesn't issue the orders directly she's certain to let her man know just where she wants to go. Another side was that the men would go crazy over the idea and drag the little woman down there despite any objections she might have. The neutral side of the whole thing was that it would be such a pleasant change to see a waitress in something other than the usual garb no one would object. It looks pretty much like the latter theory is top dog in this matter because it has certainly helped business—and wolfing, other than the silent with-the-eyes-and-imagination sort, is nil because of a lot of diplomacy on the part of the hostess.

Speaking of the lounge, they have a new bit of entertainment down there in the form of Murray Lane at the organ and Harry Orns on the grand. Murray got his start with three years at the Governor Clinton Hotel in New York and later became a staff organist for N. B. C. Harry has done stints with the late Ben Bernie and with Carmen Cavallero. He was also in the Meyer Davis outfit in White Sulphur Springs when the Duke of Windsor turned hot drummer man for a moment some time back. The boys turn out a very nice bit of background for drinking music.

TONIGHT the Bali comes through with another top attraction: the Charioteers. The boys are all graduates of Wilberforce College in Ohio and have worked together since. They were with Bing Crosby for four years and worked the "Hellzapoppin" show for some time. According to their press agent, they never have to write a single note down. All they go through is a one hour rehearsal and then their "unique collective memories" have the whole thing down pat. Nice work if you can do it. They're booked in for a week and possibly longer if the crowds like them as much as is expected.

Speaking of musical combos, the Kuehn (never have learned to pronounce it) Brothers in the Neptune Room had a rough break. They were all signed up with Mercury Records to cut a few sides, which is a break for a comparatively unknown bunch, when Petrillo clamped his ban on recordings. Their thoughts on the matter are censored, but they hope the ban will be lifted soon.

Yars and yars ago when insurance companies had their own fire fighters they issued signs for clients' houses. If your house was burning merrily and the wrong company's boys happened to be passing they either politely turned their heads or whipped out their marshmallows and had a party. Marjory Hendricks, owner of the Watergate Inn, has started collecting a few of these old replicas of our less civilized (we wonder) days. They're very colorful and add a touch to her already numerous antiques.

How to Keep Crackers Crisp

Tips on how to keep crispy crackers crisp during even the warmest, most humid days of the summer are given by Dr. Stanley Jackson, director of laboratories of a company which maintains the world's largest cracker and cookie bakery under one roof at Long Island City, N. Y.

Dr. Jackson advises that crackers should be kept in a warm dry place. He says the practice followed by some housewives of keeping crackers in tins is good. Also, he suggests that the box of crackers be kept in the storage compartment of a gas oven, and says another good place is on top of the outside of the refrigerator.

Wax wrapped packages protect crackers against humidity which causes moisture and detracts from flavor so Dr. Jackson emphasized the importance of properly opening and closing the box. First, he urged homemakers not to break the wax wrapper until the box is ready for use. He stressed opening the package carefully along the indicated dotted lines and retaining the protective wax wrapper. Further, he emphasized proper closing of the inside wrapper before the box top is put down.

If crackers become uncrisped, Dr. Jackson suggested that they be heated in a slow oven for about 10 minutes, for this removes the humidity-caused moisture and the cracker will regain its fresh appealing taste. Dr. Jackson cautioned against overheating crackers, for this can lead to rancidity. He suggested heating crackers for the brief 10-minute period just before serving.

Big City Finds Its Heart In Kilmer Shooting

DOROTHY

Dorothy is the pretty young former nightclub employe who was accidentally shot by a policeman recently.

When the doctors announced that Dorothy would never walk again, unsolicited contributions started rolling into newspaper offices and radio stations.

Here at The Washington Post, the first cash arrived from Thelma N. Trescher of 2100 Massachusetts ave. nw. (Three checks were sent to this column, from donors who wish to remain anonymous).

Jay Owen, who does a clever stint on WINX between 1 and 4 p. m., started getting telephone calls from his listeners. "Why don't you do something for that girl?" they asked.

JAY

So Jay started plugging for contributions for Dorothy, and in the first two days he raised more than a thousand dollars.

The most remarkable thing about the widespread desire to "do something" for Dorothy is the spontaneity with which it began. It just goes to prove that folks in a big city aren't always as cold and heartless as they're sometimes painted.

If you'd like to send Dorothy a card or a note to cheer her up, here's the address: Miss Dorothy Kilmer, care of Emergency Hospital, 1711 New York ave. nw.

And as long as you're writing, you might want to tuck a check into the envelope, too.

HELP!

In trying to complete my files, I find that neither I nor The Washington Post's circulation department has three back issues: November 9 and 13, and December 10 (all 1947). I'd certainly appreciate your help in locating one copy of each of those issues.

PERSONAL NOTES

Mrs. S. W. Galhuly, 4111 W st. nw.: Thanks, pal. When they were forced to face the issue they had to resort to a mighty lame alibi.

Warner A. Hines, Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md.: June 13, 1948, was a Sunday, and I've checked through that big Sunday paper three times, but failed to find the article to which you refer. Are you sure of the date?

P. S.—Your money is going to Children's Hospital.

Mrs. John O. Henderson, 3825 N. 5th st., Arlington, Va.: Children's Hospital would be glad to get those 45-inch crutches. Thanks.

Richard E. Doughty, 1238 W st. se.: Thanks for the book of old ballads. I especially enjoyed the ending of "The Dying Hobo"—

"The hobo stopped, his head fell back; he'd sung his last refrain. His partner took his hat and shoes, and caught the east-bound train."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Three lovely kittens, full of fun." (Chestnut 6641.)

DEPT. OF UTTER NONSENSE

A 12-year-old relative of mine writes from Camp Theodore Roosevelt (Willow, Md.) that he has learned from his fellow Boy Scouts "why the lady objected to having an operation performed on her husband."

It seems she didn't want anybody opening her male.

SIC TRANSIT GLORIA

The fellow at the next table at the Chicken Hut was explaining the military insignia on the walls to his girl.

"That outfit was in the ETO," he said presently.

"It was?" she answered sweetly. "What's ETO?"

MISCELLANY

People are still nicer than anybody, as witness these reports from three different District Liners . . . Mrs. A. E. Lackey of 1077 S. Edison st., Arlington, Va., tells me that her 16-year-old brother, Chan Wysor, came to Washington from Dublin, Va., recently, for a bit of sightseeing. On finding himself suddenly devoid of money, Chan had to ask a cop for a dime for streetcar fare. Officer 433 obliged with a grin, but wouldn't give his name . . . Shucks, Chan, that's Private Nelson R. Marsh of the Traffic Division. He lives at 23 2d st. ne. . . . Marion Brinson reports a courteous motorman—No. 1661, of the Benning line. He helped an elderly gentleman board his car, and then helped him off again when the ride was over. His name, Marion, is L. W. Keller of 3730 D st. se., and he's been with Capital Transit since early in 1941 . . . Mrs. Margaret S. Thompson of 243 N. Barton st., Arlington, Va., also wishes to hail a courteous (but otherwise unidentified) bus driver who took special pains to see that she didn't miss her bus when she overslept one morning. Mrs. Thompson says:

I guess I should have stood in bed;
'Twas such a gloomy day.
But nothing helps like courtesy

Listen to Bill Gold each noon, Monday through Saturday, over WINX (1340) and WINX-FM (98.3).

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—Fritz Reiner, the conductor, tells of the day he was rehearsing his orchestra in Strauss' "Electra." In the midst of the rehearsal of this strangely dissonant piece, Reiner suddenly tapped his baton for silence, and asked a violinist: "Do you know where we are?" . . . "No, maestro," said the violinist. "I too am trying to find my place."

One of the memorable moments in American art took place at the home of Billy Rose, where Edward G. Robinson—who owns one of the finest private collections in the world—came to inspect Rose's paintings. Robinson walked through the room while his host studied the actor's face for any signs of his reaction to the paintings. Robinson stopped in front of the Frans Hals. "That's a Hals, isn't it?" asked Robinson . . . "Hahls, Rose triumphantly corrected his pronunciation . . . Robinson puffed his cigar, studied the picture, and asked: "What did it stand ya?" . . . "30 Gees," Rose replied . . . "Yeah, yeah," drawled Robinson, smiling a smile to indicate that it had been offered to him for less, and Rose smiled back—a smile to indicate that he could get twice as much for it now.

Mark Ethridge, the Louisville editor who headed the U. N. Mission to Greece, will be the newspaper adviser to the State Department's "Voice of America." Four other advisers, representing magazines, radio, etc., will be named . . . Morton Wishengrad, the man responsible for the ABC Network documentary, "Communism, U. S. Brand," personally is a supporter of Norman Thomas . . . Although the Met has announced that it would have no fall season, its opera stars have been asked not to make any commitments until Labor Day . . . Local 802 isn't demanding wage increases from the Met, but asks only unemployment and social security provisions for the musicians . . . Herbert Morrison is leading the fight inside the British Cabinet for recognizing the government of Israel . . . Lennie Kent says he watched a gin-rummy game played by men who were so rich that the stakes were an annuity a point.

Irving Stone, who has written the new biography of Gov. Earl Warren, is telling this story: When Warren was nominated, he put in a long-distance call to his son, Bobby, who was on a fishing trip in California. "Son, I've been nominated for Vice President," Warren told him. There was a pause, and then Bobby answered: "Is that good?"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Thomas Makes Insurance Story

By Drew Pearson

Here is more of the Parnell Thomas story—the story about the Congressman who hasn't learned that those who live in glass houses cannot throw stones.

THOMAS

One of the nice things about being chairman of the Un-American Activities Committee is that you can pay some of your office staff from funds of that committee. And bouncing Congressman Parnell Thomas of New Jersey has learned to do this to perfection. He transfers clerks and stenographers back and forth between his own staff and the committee's as if he were taking kings on a checkerboard.

One of his transferees has been Vera Halyburton, who happens to be the Congressman's favorite secretary, and who at the moment draws the handsome secretarial salary of $5000.

When in Washington, Congressman Thomas usually lunches in his private office with a bottle of premixed martinis and Miss Halyburton. He also loans Miss Halyburton his car from time to time, and as a result, on November 25, 1945, came near upsetting his insurance partnership.

It so happened that Miss Halyburton had been enjoying some Alexander cocktails at the home of a friend, on the afternoon of November 25, and insisted on driving home on her own.

Shortly thereafter she tearfully reported that she had collided with two parked cars, with considerable damage to all three.

The police report of the accident states that "Miss Halyburton was taken to Casualty Hospital in Scout Car 91 and treated by Dr. Richard Gitter of the staff for abrasion to left knee and contusion to chest. Not serious. Not admitted."

Officer John Burton of Precinct 9 also reported that the vehicle involved had failed "to give full time and attention," that the vehicles were "in apparent good condition," that the road was straight, the surface dry, the weather clear, and that it was daylight.

How hungry Congressman Thomas is for headlines was indicated by a telegram he immediately sent to Rossman Wynkopp, managing editor, Bergen Evening Record, Haskensack, N. J. It read:

"For immediate release. Miss Vera Halyburton, assistant secretary to Representative J. Parnell Thomas, was seriously injured early Sunday night when a sedan she was driving crashed into two parked cars on Maryland ave., Washington, D. C. Miss Halyburton . . . will not be able to return to her desk for some time. Representative Thomas explained he had instructed his secretarial assistant to use his car on Sunday in order to keep the battery from running down. Both of the cars into which Miss Halyburton crashed were badly damaged, and Representative Thomas' car was demolished. PARNELL."

The facts, however, were just the opposite.

Miss Halyburton went to see Dr. Robert Bosworth on November 26, who told her she was suffering from shock and nothing more. He advised her to return to work. Because she complained about her chest, however, Dr. Bosworth sent her to Sibley Hospital for an X-ray and later in the day phoned the Congressman's office that the X-ray showed nothing wrong.

Next day, November 27, despite the above medical report, Representative Thomas got busy to collect insurance. The Congressman runs his own insurance firm, Thomas & Godfrey, and he wrote a letter to his partner, Spencer K. Godfrey, estimating the damage to his car at $612.

"It is important that the insurance company give every consideration to Miss Halyburton's case," he continued. "The injuries to Vera are bad. The doctor believes she has a slight concussion; she has been X-rayed for chest injuries; has various bruises and is in a highly nervous state."

Representative Thomas received word back two days later that the matter had been turned over to the Employers Liability Assurance Corp. His policy, he was reminded, contained a $500 medical-reimbursement clause.

Miss Halyburton did not work that week, but on Friday felt well enough to motor all the way to Ambler, Pa., and the next day was able to sit out in the cold to watch the Army-Navy football game. Next Monday she came back to Dr. Bosworth complaining that her chest hurt. He told her it was exposure from cold at the football game.

Meanwhile, the Congressman continues to harass his own insurance partner.

"I am certain," he wrote on December 4, "that Miss Halyburton's doctor has advised that the shock of the accident has brought about a complete collapse of her nervous system. My observations of Miss Halyburton since bears this out.

"It will, therefore, be necessary to make a settlement for her shock, over and above the injuries to her head, chest and back."

Two weeks later, Representative Thomas again wrote his insurance partner, Godfrey, that the Employers Liability Assurance Co. is "giving us poor service in connection with claims arising out of the accident in which my car participated." He said he had personally told the company's adjuster "that I thought $2000 was a fair settlement for Miss Halyburton," but no settlement had been made.

Now, Thomas continued, he was "beginning to think that the amount was too low." Miss Halyburton's condition seemed to be getting worse.

"I think the longer the insurance company delays the settlement in her case, the more they will be called upon to pay. I certainly would be forced to testify in favor of Miss Halyburton and I am confident that everyone else will testify in her behalf, which would be very bad for the insurance company if the matter had to go to court, but naturally I would like to avoid a court trial.

"We have given quite a lot of business to the Employers Liability Assurance Co.," concluded the Congressman. "Now I want justice in return and frankly if the insurance company doesn't do something, I will have to insist that we don't give them any more business."

In the end, the insurance company refused to be bluffed. Despite the ranting and wailing of the man who now poses as a great American and as an example to lesser Americans, there was no payment to Miss Halyburton. Furthermore, the Congressman got not one cent for damage to his car.

Friday, the 13th

The 13th day this month is on . . . A Friday, to be sure . . . And that is something some of us . . . Would rather not endure . . . For some of us have funny thoughts . . . About a broken glass . . . A cat of darkest color or . . . A ladder we must pass . . . And some of us will stay in bed . . . Because we are so tense . . . About the possibility . . . Of meeting accidents . . . But we should know there really is . . . No basis for belief . . . That this must be our special day . . . Fo rtragedy or grief . . . So let us have the common sense . . . To put our fears away . . . And realize after all that this . . . Is just another day.
